A Note Of Thanks.

We want to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives for their many acts of kindness shown us during the sickness and death of our beloved mother and mother-in-law.

We wish it were possible for us to thank each one individually. May God's richest blessings be upon you. -Your friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Denny; Mr. and Mrs. Rob't. Jones.

Paradise.

When the hunting season is at its height.

The gang comes in most every night. Around Harb Boyd's good hot fire, And talk of "hunts" they never tire.

Davis Smith is first of all. What did he eat to grow so tall? The country will do for him a seat. With plenty of floor space for his feet.

Then Lewis Martin saunters in, Wearing his perpetual grin, Grabs the peck measure, gets in the ring. And looks around for little Bill King.

Will Monday don't come every night, But when he does he knows a sight. 'Bout where the finest coveys feed, Getting fat on bugs and seed.

And then they talk so fast and loud, I never have heard such a crowd. All 'bout how this dog made a stand, And this one covered so much land.

How one man run 'em off the ground, Just where the finest birds were found.

And "Whats the prospects for next day?" And "Have you been down Black-water way?"

They never speak a single word. That don't begin and end with "bird." Why them fellers idea of Paradise. Is not a home beyond the skies, But a stubble field that has no bound.

And an open season the whole year round.

Well Known People Wed.

A wedding of interest to the people of the county took place last Saturday at the home of Rev. Ira Ferguson in Pilot Mountain when Mrs. Annie Blue, of White Plains and Wm. Westmoreland, of Denton, were united in wedlock. The bride is the widow of the late John Blue, of Turners Mountain, who was famed for his fine apples and peaches that he yearly brought to this market, having a fine orchard on the mountain.

The marriage of this couple has connected with it an unusual romance, as they became acquainted with each other through correspondence in a newspaper in this state, later leading to private correspondence and then to the wedding.

Death Claims John H. Fletcher

John H. Fletcher age 69 years died at his home south of this city Friday afternoon after a lingering illness of several months. His funeral was conducted Sunday afternoon from his home by Rev. W. P. McCarter and interment was made at the Doss burying ground. Those of his immediate family surviving are his wife, four sons and three daughters; one daughter being Mrs. S. O. Marshall of this city. Those who attended the funeral from other cities were, his sister Mrs. Jennie Umberger, Palmyra, Pa., his sons J. B. Fletcher, Newport, R. I.; A. F. Fletcher, Waynesboro, Va., and brother James Fletcher, of Winston-Salem.

The Literary Club Has Interesting Program.

Members of the literary department of the Woman's Club met Friday afternoon with Mrs. John Sobotta at her home on Pine street. The subject for the afternoon was "The Poetry of The Reconstruction Period." Mrs. Reid Jackson discussed Sidney Lanier's life and place in American poetry and gave several beautiful selections from his finer works. Mrs. Calvin Graves presented Joaquin Miller as representing the West and gave many highlights on his unique personality and poetry, reading "The Missouri," his best descriptive poem, and the "Passing of Tennyson." The remainder of the program was discussion of the New England group of Victorians. Mrs. Randall Sparger reported on Emily Dickinson, and Helen Hunt Jackson and read a few of the charming poems of each. Miss Katherine Price concluded the program with Thomas B. Aldrich, George E. Woodbury, Edward Roland Sill, John Bannister Tabb, and Lizette Reese, reading some of their characteristic poems.
