Mr. Breach reviewed briefly the beginning of public school music in America; told something of its growth, and of the important place which it holds today in those schools where it has secured a hold. He mentioned especially the part which it played in finding and developing talent which would otherwise never be discovered or developed, and the very important role which it played, and would play, in greater measure in the future, in developing the musical appreciation of the student body as a whole.

At the close of Mr. Breach's talk he presented five of his high school pupils who gave a delightful program of solos, duets and quartets, which were most enthusiastically received. They not only proved themselves gifted with voices of unusual beauty, but they sang with a poise and musicianship remarkable in such young people.

In response to a special request Mr. Breach sang two numbers which brought the program to a fitting and beautiful close.

The pastor preaches next Sunday morning and evening on the following themes, "The Passion of the Early Church," and "The Selfish Fool."

What were the secrets of the success in the early church? Does the church today know that secret? What were the methods of the early Christians? These questions you will hear answered in Sunday morning's message. What constitutes the selfish fool? Is it sinful for a man to be rich? Can a person dress in purple and riches and enter the kingdom? These were questions that were put to Jesus. They are practical questions today. How shall we answer them? Hear the message Sunday evening.

The wall will be replaced after the tree stumps are removed.
