Homes for 300 Needed For Three Days.

Mount Airy is faced with a task that must be put across, that of caring for 300 delegates to the Baraca-Philathea convention. The committee is not meeting with the success they hoped for in listing desirable homes for the visitors.

We say "task" and while it is a task in one sense it is also a rare privilege to have as our guests for three days the cream of the youth of towns and cities all over the state.

These delegates are usually the leaders in Christian work in their community, they are chosen to represent their churches in the various churches and each church sends its best.

If this were not true we would still be under obligation to uphold the credit of our town for generosity and hospitality and open our homes to these visitors, making them feel welcome and leaving a good impression with them to carry back home.

We want them to think of Mount Airy with real pleasure and appreciation.

Of course we will take care of them but let us do it freely and generously so that it will be a pleasure to all concerned.

Bed and breakfast for three nights and mornings is all that is being asked. Other meals will be provided for away from the homes. If for any reason it is not possible to take delegates there are some vacancies in hotels and boarding houses where they can be placed. If you have no vacant rooms but will furnish breakfast phone Mrs. C. B. Shelton, or phone her if you have rooms but can't furnish breakfast. She may be able to place them in your neighborhood so that it will be convenient for all concerned. If you have neither rooms or breakfasts to offer phone her or send her a check to pay for your delegates' board elsewhere.

Why Do Sailors Paint Their Ships

If anyone wants to see an almost lavish use of paint, varnish, and enamel, let him journey to a shipyard, dry dock or any big seaport and watch work on ships—everything from row boats to dreadnoughts; from dorys to liners. And that isn't all, for the docks are painted and the warehouses are painted and everything is, in short, in ship-shape. Why?

Simply because the experience of ages of navigation have taught us that exposed property on the sea and near it is not safe—neither for itself nor for human lives—unless protected by the only real protector—PAINT, VARNISH AND ENAMEL.
The same rule applies to your home, your business buildings—all your property that's exposed. Follow the rule of the sea!
