

Hillsville Motorcade Starts Here 9 A. M.

Band Concerts On Mt. Airy Streets Before Starting

All is in readiness for the big road celebration at Hillsville tomorrow. The motorcade from North Carolina will form in this city at 9 A. M. and by ten o'clock a stream of cars will be speeding over the Fancy Gap highway on their way to meet the Virginia motorcade at the state line where the two will join in one grand procession for the little mountain town of Hillsville.

Reaching Hillsville one hour's travel the Carroll County people will stage a historic parade under the direction of Atty. Glenn Edwards, with Capt. D. W. Bolen taking a prominent part. Galax will furnish some interesting stunts among them being a mock circus and at noon the bands from Winston-Salem, Mount Airy and Radford will give a concert.

Five hundred girls from Radford college will stage a pageant immediately after lunch with the president of the school, Dr. J. P. McConnell, presiding, Powell Chapman and H. G. Shirley will speak on behalf of the Virginia delegations followed by Lieut. Gov. J. Elmer Long, who goes to personally represent Gov. McLean.

The Charlotte delegation will continue its trip on to Asheville at the conclusion of the program at Hillsville. On reaching the West Virginia city a banquet will be given the North Carolinians by the Bluefield Chamber of Commerce.

Elaborate preparations are being made to care for the vast throng of people that will journey to Hillsville. Nelson & Moody of this city will have their ambulances on hand with a corps of trained nurses to give first aid to any who may need it. And the Winston-Salem delegation is bringing a like equipment from their city. In such a large motorcade it would be a miracle for all the cars to properly function. To take care of this the garages of Mount Airy will send along with the procession their wrecking cars and a full force of expert mechanics to take care of any motor trouble.

Preacher Morrison Not The Man

Rev. C. A. Morrison, Methodist preacher, asks us to make a statement for him clearing up the misunderstanding in the minds of some of the people in Mount Airy and community occasioned by the publication of the list of members in the Democratic Club two weeks ago. The name of C. W. Morrison appears and many have confused it with the Rev. Mr. Morrison's initials which are C. A. Morrison. Rev. C. A. Morrison is not a member of the Democratic Club.

Miss Belle Graves Weds Phil Haskins

A very quiet marriage that came as a surprise to their friends took place in the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. George O. Graves on Pine street at 10 o'clock Saturday morning when Miss Belle Williamson Graves became the bride of Mr. Phillip Hall Haskins.

The affair was unannounced and only witnessed by the immediate families of the contracting parties.

The reception hall and living rooms were decorated with lovely white dahlias in tall flower baskets and in the music room where the ceremony took place a beautiful improvised altar was arranged with ferns and tall cathedral candles. Miss Julia Prather, close friend of the bride presided at the piano and as the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march announced the approach of the bridal party Rev. R. H. Daugherty, pastor of the bride, took his place at the altar. Then came Miss Sarah Graves, sister of the bride, as maid of honor gowned in brown satin with hat to match an darrying an arm bouquet of butterfly roses. The bride and groom entered together, never had the bride been more attractive than when attired in her going away costume of tan and brown carrying a bouquet of Brides' roses and orchids with shower of valley lilies she plighted her troth. The simple, yet impressive, ring ceremony of the Methodist Church was used while Miss Prather played softly "To a Wild Rose". As the ceremony was completed the joyous strains of Mendelssohn's Recessional pealed forth and the happy couple left for a motor trip north.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. George O. Graves prominent furniture manufacturer of this city and was educated at Salem college. The groom was reared at Amherst Massachusetts and was graduated from the Massachusetts State college majoring in landscape architecture.

They will go as far north as the groom's home and will visit Washington, D. C., New York and points of interest en route returning to this city to make their future home here.

Election Ballots Being Prepared

Registration of Voters Now in Progress; Books Close Saturday, Next Week.

The job printing department of The News has just completed the order for the election ballots to be used in the election in this county on Nov. 6th. The contract with the election board called for the printing of 18,000 ballots. The ballots are divided into five sheets as follows: the presidential electors with the candidates for president and vice-president, the state offices, the county offices, the various township magistrates and constables, and the amendments. This makes five different ballots that will be handed to the voter at the polls. The ballots are prepared in the same manner as for the past two elections and complying with the provisions of the special election law for this and other counties of the state. Following the printing of the ballots they are to be folded, blank side out, and sealed in packages of 50 each, and thus they are to remain until used at the polls, utmost caution being taken that no ballots reach the public only as they are handed the voters when they make application for them at the polls on election day.

Upon being handed the five ballots the voter enters a booth where he can unfold them, mark them according to his wishes, fold them back, and cast them in their respective boxes without any one ever knowing how he voted. The ballots contain the candidates for both parties on the same ticket. One column contains the Republican candidates, and another column the Democratic candidates, the head of the column designating the party ticket. Provision is made for making a cross mark in a circle at the head of the ticket where the voter wants to cast a straight ticket. But where any scratching is to be done the voter will make cross marks in little squares opposite the name of each candidate he desires to vote for.

At the head of every ticket is printed full instructions on the proper way to mark the ballots. Should any voter not be certain as to how to mark his ticket, or not be able to read and require assistance, such assistance will be given him on his applying to the registrar. In the past this aid was rendered by one man but this has been changed and this year an aid rendered the voter will be in the presence of two men—a Republican and a Democrat—in order that there can be no room for a charge of unfairness in the marking of the ballots for voters who cannot read or write sufficient to prepare their own ballot.

The registration books are now open in all the voting precincts of the county. On Saturdays they are to be kept at the voting places and during the other days of the week, excepting Sunday at some convenient place in the precinct. The books will close for registration on Saturday, Oct. 27th—next week. To register one must be 21 years old, live in the state one year, the county six months and the precinct three months.

Help Beautify Mount Airy With Spare Shrubbery

A very fine piece of work is being undertaken by the Mount Airy Woman's club through the civics department and garden club in their efforts to beautify the school grounds at the Rockford Street and North Main schools and this should be a community project in which every man, woman and child can help and feel civic pride.

The school board has arranged for the preparation of the ground for the shrubs and bulbs and parents are asked to send any shrubs and bulbs and evergreens that can spare from their own collections, or where their shrubs need thinning to give them to their children the last Friday in the month with the roots wrapped and where possible a label attached to tell what the plant is and let the children deliver them to the janitor of their school.

Those who cannot send to the schools or who do not have children in school either members or non members of the club are asked if convenient to bring or send them to the

Many Farmers Bringing Tobacco Here; Market Average Increases This Week

Little School Boy Victim of Accident

Little Isam Spencer who was struck by an automobile on the Winston-Salem road Wednesday of last week about the noon hour as he was on his way to dinner, died of his injuries last Friday night at the hospital. His injuries were such that no hope was entertained for his recovery from the first. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Spencer and was eight and a half years old. Those who knew him say he was a good and obedient boy and popular with the people of his neighborhood. His funeral was attended by a large number of friends and lovely floral offerings were proof of the high esteem in which he was held.

Miss Worley Goes to Elkin

Miss Maude Worley left Wednesday to begin night school work in Elkin. Miss Worley has been very successful with the work here 102 pupils being enrolled and leaves the work in fine condition for the teachers who will continue the schools here for another fifteen nights. The pupils of the school being conducted at Rockford Street school gave her a very generous fruit and candy shower Monday evening as a token of their appreciation of her efforts for them.

Miss Worley speaks very highly of the pupils of her schools here and says she has never had schools where the pupils showed more interest and enthusiasm in their work or made better progress.

Walking Not Lost Art With These Girls

In these times of automobiles when we ride to the office, ride to church, ride up town, ride down town and ride to work or play, as the case may be, it is refreshing to find, here and there, someone who really loves to walk; among the few we would cite our readers to two young ladies of this city who walked all the way to Pilot Mountain and two miles below that town where they visited a friend. Starting about nine o'clock Saturday morning Misses Mary Birkner and Vera Smith journeyed at the rate of a little more than three miles per hour stopping 45 minutes en route to rest and eat lunch.

A group of young people had planned the trip but only the two had the nerve to make the start when the time came for it. On Friday Misses Smith and Birkner walked beyond the W. E. Jackson place on the Fancy Gap road and on Sunday, accompanied by James Carey a northern friend, they walked to the White Sulphur Springs. They laughingly declare should a group be organized to cross the continent on foot they would be among the first to join.

Local Warehouses Nearing Two Million Pound Figure; Growers Keep a Steady Stream of Tobacco Flowing to Market

The local tobacco market started off this week with a floor average of a little more than fifteen dollars, following a decline in the average last week, brought about by the marketing of a large amount of very common grades. Warehousemen are encouraged with the showing they are making here in comparison with other markets, and are told that there is a greater degree of satisfaction here than to be found on the other markets.

One large farmer from Yadkin county was in the city today with a truck load of tobacco, and stated this was his first trip here to sell tobacco. He said he had always sold on other markets, but had a tenant who kept bringing little lots of tobacco to Mount Airy. Last week the farm owner said he carried a load of tobacco to his old warehouseman, while his tenant brought a load of the same grade to Mount Airy. When they both got back home the farm owner found that his tenant had gotten several dollars more for the same amount and quality of tobacco. And so the old farmer said he was going to sell the remainder of his crop in Mount Airy. When he met our warehousemen he was well pleased with the courtesies extended him, and told The News that the fellows who were running the warehouses here were real men, and that he could tell from his first visit that they were doing all they could to get the most for the tobacco grower.

J. Sanford Chilton is supervisor of sales for the local market and is making an effort to bring many more new farmer customers to this market. In this work he is being assisted by the merchants and business people of the city. Already the market is nearing the two million pound mark.

Below is a partial list of the many farmers who have sold tobacco on this market during the past few days together with some of their sales:
