

Sinclair Appeal Lost; Only Hoover Can Lift Ninety-Day Jail Term Now

Supreme Court Turns Down Appeal of Rich Oil Man For Re-hearing—Three-Month Jail Sentence For Failure To Answer Questions in Teapot Oil Case.

Washington, April 22.—The last judicial avenue by which Henry F. Sinclair might have escaped the sentence of three months imposed upon him for refusing to answer questions of a senate committee was closed today by Supreme court's refusal of his application for a re-hearing.

Only a presidential pardon can disturb the court's ruling that the senate was acting within its authority in seeking to elicit testimony from the oil man concerning the leasing of Teapot Dome Naval Oil fields, and that Sinclair must serve his 90-day sentence in that case.

Shortly after refusing to grant Sinclair's plea—without handing down a written opinion—the court heard argument on the appeals of Sinclair, H. Mason Day, a business associate, W. Sherman Burns and William J. Burns, for contempt sentences imposed by the District of Columbia Supreme court for shadowing jurors during the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial.

Court Acts Promptly

The court acted promptly in disposing of the oil man's motion for a re-hearing, as it was only two weeks ago that it handed down the decision sustaining the lower court.

In acting reconsideration, Sinclair's counsel had urged congressional committee the only government agencies where a citizen "can be compelled to sacrifice his fundamental rights or invite a criminal prosecution" without being afforded the "right to be heard in a court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of safeguarding these fundamental rights."

George F. Hoover, of Sinclair's counsel was granted two hours instead of the usual hour for presenting the appeal from the jury shadowing conviction. The time was divided among counsel for the four defendants. Sinclair was sentenced to six months in jail on the charge; Day to four months; the elder Burns to 15 days; and his son, W. Sherman Burns, was fined $1,000.

Patient: "I'm dreadfully nervous. I've never had an operation before."
Nurse (crossingly): "You need not feel frightened, ma'am. Neither has the doctor."

Poe Stresses The Need of Livestock In North Carolina

Tells Farm Hands Club the State Has One Cow Per 16 Persons; Low Rank Compared to Others.

Raleigh, April 19.—Cows should have calfs and cows in their menageries, in order to let our children know what they look like," Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer, told the North Carolina Farm Hands Club at a meeting here yesterday afternoon.

"The eastern counties of North Carolina now have only one cow per 16 persons—or just enough for the cream to go in our coffee," Dr. Poe added.

"While we once stood fifth in value of crops, we now stand about eighth. We rank forty-seventh in livestock value per farm. Iowa and North Carolina, with about the same area, show $2,000 and $3,000,000 valued acres respectively. In this State the taxes have to come from a small part of the farm. Our present program does not employ our farm labor throughout the year, as livestock raising does in Iowa," Dr. Poe continued.

"While we must have richer land to grow livestock, we must first have a few head of stock to give us the incentive to feed and develop our soils. Then the livestock will help us directly in soil improvement."

Not least in importance is the need and value of dairy and poultry products for our tables. The best way to grow our livestock is through the interest of the boys and girls on the farms," he continued.

George R. Bonn, newly appointed superintendent of State farms, advised that the best market would be found for medium sized birds and animals. "We all want small, tender and juicy meats, rather than large, old and tough ones," he told the farmers.

Hoover Between 2 Fires on Proposition to Farmers Aid

West Not Satisfied. Discontented Noted as Fight Moves in Congress

Washington, April 22.—How that Hoover has had an opportunity to study and digest the President's message, inquiry was made today as to prospects for farm relief legislation this side of dog-days. It was said that the senate committee on agriculture was "cutting up" and it is apparent at this writing that the President will have to look to the house rather than to the senate for sympathy and support of his policies. As the revelations were heard about the senate and house corridors it likewise became apparent that the farm program would fall far short of what the western farm interests had hoped for.

At this moment, the President is between two fires—there is the criticism, not so outspoken as yet, that the proposals of the President are inadequate and that there is the open criticism in conservative quarters that the program of the executive really goes to extreme lengths. The Post here forcibly expressed the sentiments of this conservative group when it said:

Veal Experiments

"An experiment of vast dimensions is outlined in President Hoover's message to Congress. His conception of the powers and duties of the proposed federal farm board is so bold that it may take away the breath of old-time believers in the theory that the best government is that which governs least. Mr. Hoover's farm board would possess powers far transcending those of the Interstate Commerce commission or any other agency set up to regulate industry. It would have at its command hundreds of millions of dollars, to be expended at its discretion within somewhat vague limitations. It would have power to "create and sustain" farmer-owned corporations engaged in buying warehouses, lending money against stored commodities, purchasing entire crops and disposing of them in orderly fashion, and creating clearing houses for the better marketing of perishable products. The board also would have control over handlers of perishable products through a license system.

"In addition to these positive powers, the board would investigate question of overproduction so as to furnish guidance to the farmers and would devise methods for eliminating unsuitable lands and for developing industrial by-products out of agricultural products. Finally, the board would be the driving force in developing co-operative marketing organizations."

Because the President did not expressly indicate his opposition to the debenture plan, as he did to a tax or fee a number of senators feel that they have a free hand in this respect and a serious attempt will be made to adopt this feature when the bill reaches the senate. Senator Simmons, who thinks the President expressed his views with force and clarity, without throwing new light upon the situation in making a study of the debenture plan which has the support of the National Orange and of some of those who have made a study of farm legislation enacted by certain European countries. Senator Simmons said today he was unaware of it, if it was the intention of the Democrats in the senate to propose a substitute farm bill.

Deficit of $1,500,000 Democratic Problem

Leaders Meet in New York to Try To Decide In Secret What to Do About Debt

New York, April 19.—Leaders in the Democratic party met at dinner at the Ritz-Carlton hotel tonight to try to decide in secret what to do about the party's $1,500,000 national deficit.

John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, was host. He said it was an executive session, he indicated there would be no publicity about what happened.

Besides discussing ways and means of wiping out the big debt they incurred last year while trying to elect Alfred E. Smith President, it was believed the leaders would discuss future policies of the party. But they were not talking about it—not for publication.

Former Governor Smith, his friends, W. F. Kenny and James J. Roridan, and the members of the party's national executive advisory committee were among the invited guests.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt is a member of the executive committee, but he was not present. He went from Albany to Boston today to visit his sons at Croton and Harvard.

Other members of the executive committee are former Senator Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island, James J. Hoey, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, and Public Service Commissioner George R. Van Name. Senator Gerry, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland and J. Bruce Kramer of Montana, and Joseph Shomo of Kansas are members of the advisory committee.

Thus far, the chief contributions to pay off the deficit have come from sale of former Governor Smith's campaign book and in response to his radio appeal delivered a few nights after election. About $20,000 has been raised.

Plenty of room in the NEW SUPERIOR Whippet

THE larger bodies of the new Superior Whippet Four and Six afford more spacious interiors, with extra head room, leg room and elbow room.

The beautiful and ultra-modern design of the new Superior Whippet makes it the style authority in both the Four and light Six classes. Many tasteful refinements include longer lines, higher radiator and hood, chromium-plate, and sweeping one-piece full-crown fenders.

The faster speed and pick-up of the new Superior Whippet result from a higher compression engine, giving more than 20% added horsepower. Low consumption of gasoline and oil, and dependable performance insure exceptional operating economy and minimum service costs.
