

Laws Of Far-Reaching Import Are Effective In This State July 1st.

Workmen's Compensation, Marriage Bans and Highway Patrol Acts Went Into Force Monday at Midnight.

Raleigh, July 1.—North Carolina awoke today to find three of the most far-reaching pieces of state wide legislation enacted in recent years effective for the first time. At the stroke of mid-night last night the new workmen's compensation act, the new marriage bans law and the act making effective the highway patrol were operative for the first time.

Under the new acts the minor who seeks a marriage license without previous notice, the workman, employed by an employer or employing firm using more than five persons, who is injured, and the motorist who runs afoul of the law will be directly affected by the legislation.

Perhaps the most far-reaching bill of the three is the compensation act. This bill in North Carolina is applicable to employes and employers of firms or individuals that work as few as five people. The state itself, counties, cities, towns, factories, contractors, offices, stores and even churches that employ as many people as five—including choir singers—are affected by the new act and their employers protected and limited by it.

The industrial commission, charged with the administration of the compensation act, has estimated that there are 16,000 employes and employing firms in the state which will be affected by the bill with persons affected running into the hundreds of thousands. Under the terms of the bill agricultural and domestic labor is exempt.

Under the bill every employer of more than five persons is listed as an acceptor of the terms of the bill unless he communicated otherwise with the industrial commission and the same is true of employes. Notice of acceptance has been received from 1,200 employing firms and notice of non-acceptance has come in from 200 employes of two saw mills.

The state, many counties and cities and several employing businesses have elected to take their own risks under the law instead of insuring with some liability company. Among the large firms so electing is the Cannon mills, which employ thousands of persons in the state.

The act provides for a payment of 60 per cent of wages up to $18 per week to workmen disabled in line of duty, regardless of whose negligence is responsible. Total payment for permanent disability or for death is $5,500.

The Highway Patrol

The highway patrol of 37 men created by the general assembly after various efforts for a patrol of from 125 to 250 men had failed of passage, will be sworn in at Raleigh today. Then a lieutenant in a Ford coupe and three patrolmen on motorcycles will go to each of the nine highway districts of the state. The duties of the patrol are limited to the enforcement of the state's roads and automobiles laws. Included under this category of laws are speeding, careless, reckless and incompetent driving; automobiles not displaying the legal requirements in headlights and tail lights, automobiles with inadequate brakes, driving without proper licenses and various other rules and regulations.

An important duty of the patrol will be to check against overloading of trucks operated on the state's roadways. To enforce this law each lieutenant will carry in his car a set of scales for weighing the trucks and any found overloaded will be unloaded there to the legal limit and the freight left by the roadside until it can be legally removed.

Marriage Bans.

The marriage bans law, while not as strict as the original introduced in the last legislature, is directed at curtailing the number of runaway, "wild party" and inadvised marriages among minors. It will not apply to persons whose ages are 21 or over. If a minor is a party to the proposed marriage five days notice including the names of the contracting parties and their parents must be filed with the register of deeds. Where notice of the marriage has been published in a newspaper at least five days before, the act does not apply. The clerk of Superior court is given the power to allow issuance of licenses without five days notice "upon satisfactory evidence being presented to him, or parents or guardian, if any, of the contracting parties."

The new appropriation law also became effective today being featured on the whole by careful economy. One of its minor features is the provision that all state employes who use an automobile in the service of the state will be allowed eight cents a mile, which is less than many formerly received.

The new barber license bill, also scheduled to be effective at midnight last night by the general assembly, will not be effective until midnight July 10, the state board of barbers examiners has announced.

Town of Biltmore Loses Its Identity

Absorbed in Extension of City of Asheville—Kenilworth. Also Gone.

Asheville, July 2.—Biltmore—founded more than a score of years ago by the late George W. Vanderbilt—has lost its identity as a postoffice and incorporated town. As a result of its annexation by the city of Asheville, the town of Biltmore has surrendered its charter to Asheville and the postoffice has been designated as a station of the Asheville postoffice.

Biltmore Village—as it was known for many years—was established by Mr. Vanderbilt at the time the New Yorker was building the famous Vanderbilt mansion.

For many years Biltmore was one of the show places of western North Carolina, but progress, in recent years, has done much to destroy its original beauty. The pebble-dash English type of homes and buildings have given way to dwellings of brick, stucco and stone. Even the famous plaza has witnessed numerous changes, including the erection of modern type brick office and business buildings.

With the town of Kenilworth officially wiped off the map except as a sectional designation or portion of a Greater Asheville under the extension of the city limits which became effective yesterday an interesting coincidence has come to light.

The town came into existence and passed out of existence as a town under the leadership of members of the same family. The late J. M. Chiles was first mayor of the town of Kenilworth after it officially became chartered and began to function as a town; and his widow, Mrs. Leah M. Chiles, was mayor of the town of Kenilworth when its existence ended.

Surry-Yadkin Picnic Will Be Great Event

Much Time Being Devoted to Program for Occasion at Elkin in August

Elkin, July 1.—With the date for the annual Surry-Yadkin Masonic picnic only four weeks away, Manager J. F. Hendren and his co-workers are devoting much time and energy toward the work of mapping out a program which may draw a greater attendance than has ever been seen here on such an occasion.

Picnic day in Elkin is always regarded as the gala event of the mid-summer, a home coming day, when hundreds of people from a large area assemble for a day of enjoyment in a grove known as Picnic park. The definite assurance that the Fort Bragg band will furnish the musical part of the program at the August picnic is regarded as a big drawing card. A carnival of riding devices will be here an entire week, as upon former picnic weeks.

A class of orphans from the Masonic home at Oxford will entertain with a musical program, both afternoon and evening. Athletic contests and an abundant picnic dinner served by the ladies of Elkin and of the two counties will be features of the big event.

Business of every kind is brought to a stand still in mid-day hours upon this annual festival.

Peak Higher Than Mitchell in State

Mount Guyot is Checked Officially at 7,025 Feet Above Sea Level.

Asheville, July 1.—The likelihood that a second mountain in the great Smoky Mountain park area towers above Mt. Mitchell, hitherto considered the highest peak in eastern America, appeared today as a United States geological survey party prepared to send a new report to Washington, D. C., on Mt. Guyot.

This mountain, the report said, is shown by carefully checked aneroid barometer readings to rear its head 7,025 feet above sea level which is higher than Mt. Mitchell.

Clingman's Dome, another mountain in the Smokies, was reported to be 6,945 feet high according to unofficial measurements. The survey party returned Monday to Bryson City from the mountain. First reports of the findings were made Saturday night by an expedition party sent out by the Asheville Times and New York Times to invade the great Smokies. The figures are subject to checking by running level lines.

Worried Night after Night as health declined

"I suffered frequently from nervous headaches, and I could not sleep well," says Mrs. Corn Doven, R. F. D. 2, Hickory Grove, S. C. "I was thin and pale. I was so weak I could scarcely walk. I tried several remedies which were suggested, but nothing seemed to help me. Night after night I worried because I could see I was going down-hill. I had my children to look after, and I was afraid of what would become of them if anything happened to me."

"I began to take Cardui on the recommendation of a friend. It wasn't long until I was beginning to pick up. My strength gradually began to return. I rested better at night and was less nervous. I took several bottles of Cardui, and when I had finished taking it I was in fine health."
