Smithfield, N. C., Nov. 25 .- Congressman Pou has received a communication from Hon. A. W. Machen, superintendent of free delivery, in which he states that, owing to the facts that the appropriation who had been visiting at her uncle's, Mr. for rural free delivery service is exhausted. D. S. Barrus, at this place, returned home no additional route will be ordered in operation before the first day of February. During the past summer about a dozen new routes were laid off in this district. Several of these routes are in Wake county, and the Congressman has been urging the Department to install these routes on the first day of December, but it seems that, owing to the lack of money, the route connot be put in operation before the first of February. Mr. Machen wrote that additional appropriating of $500,000 would be asked for when Congress convenes next week. Mr. Pos regre very much that there should be any delp in installing this additional service.

Question Go Back to Commission.

New York, Nov. 25 .- A serious hitch occurred today in the plans for settlement of the coal controversy by conference between the coal operators and the tain that the final adjustment of the the ec al strike commission.

At a meeting between the presidents of the coal roads and a large number of independent operators a strong protest was entered by the latter against treating directly with the miners. An invitation to meet Mr. Mitchell at Scranton on Fribut will enter the game with such a day was declined peremptorily and it was agreed unanimously that in the judgment of the operators it was best, for the present, to go on with the hearing before the commission.

The meeting of the independent opera-tors and railroad officials lasted about an hour, and at its close President Fowern, said that President Basr, of the Reading, was preparing a statement.
Later, the statement was issued and Mr.

Becton and Miss Katie E. Tull. The ceremony was unique in its arrangement and for its simplicity and beauty of accomplishment, was said by many to have been one of the prettiest affairs ever consummated in this commanity. Promptly at 9 o'clock the members of the bride's family filed into the parior, which was tastefully decorated with the season's prettiest flowers, and took their places to the right and left of Dr. Harper, forming an aisle, down which the bride and groom advanced and were met in the center of the parlor by Dr. Harper, who, in the simple, but solemn eremony of the Christian church, united two hearts for aye and always, in the presence of a large number of people from Kinston and other places who came as guests to the marriage.

Immediately after the ceremony show ers of congratulation were poured upon the bride and groom by those present, after which all left in carriages and bug-gies for Kinston, where the bridal couple took the cars for Norfolk, Va., to spend a few days and then on to northern cities for an extended bridal tour.

The number of presents made the couple was great and very handsome.

Among the number of visiting guests, were Mrs. Millard Becton, of New York were Mrs. Millard Becton, of New York City, who left with the bridal couple, Mrs. G. A. Grimsley and Miss Alice Tulli of Greensboro, and Messrs. John and Reid Tull, brothers of the bride.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

Another Lesson In Geography. "I have a friend out in Michigan," said Mr. James Blackie of London to the polite clerk behind the desk at a Washington hotel. "Will you tell me the distance from there?"

The clerk inquired to what part of Michigan the gentleman wished to go, at which his interrogator seemed somewhat puzzled. "I don't know exactly what part," he said, "but I suppose that after I get out there it will be easy to find out in what part of the city he lives."

"What city?" inquired the clerk,
"The city of Michigan," responded the tourist from Britain, and then there were explanations all around. Mr. Blackie thought that Michigan was a town, and when told of its size and its possession of many towns he was considerably surprised. Many of his countrymen, he said, were laboring under the impression that when such names as Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and the like were mentioned they were large cities in the dominions of the Yankee republic.-Washington Post.

A Few Facts About Kites. The Chinese, who have played with kites ever since the beginning of history, make huge kites in the shape of Massilion's Secret of Power.

It is said that after Massillon, the great court preacher of France, had finished one of his sermons Louis XIV. summoned him to his side and said: "Massillon, how is it you impress me as you do? I have heard many great orators preach. They nearly always please me. But when you preach instend of being pleased with you I am always d'scontented with myself, I always feel that I want to be a better man as well as a better king." "Well," answered the great preacher, "the only way I can account for it, your majesty, is because I am always preaching against myself. When I am about to make up a sermon, I say to myself, Massillon, what is the sin which you have hardest work to battle today? And when I preach against my own sins I generally find that there are similar sins in other hearts which I am also preaching against."

Fingpoles on Private Houses,

One unusual feature of some private houses in New York recently completed or still in the course of construction is a flagpole. On hotels and public build-ings this outward evidence of loyalty has long been an indispensable feature, but private families have for the me part been content to show their love of country by hanging a flag out of the window on days that called for a spe cial display of patriotism.

"Personally I can't say that I partie ularly like the idea of topping off a four story American basement with a flugstaff," said a busy contractor, "bu when my patrons insist upon having one it is my business to see that they get it.
