Something to Think Abont.

Raleigh Post. Here is something for our North Carolina farmers, those who grow or expect to grow bright tobacco—and three-fourths of the crop grown in this State is of this class—to think upon. A dispatch published in the Post a day or two ago stated that the legisla-ture of Wisconsin had passed "with-out a word of debate" a bill to prohibit the manufacture or sale of cigarettes or cigarette paper in that State. Some people think or affect to think, such legislation would hurt or kill the cigarette trust. On the contrary it is Simply playing into its hands. But should such legislation prevail in many states it would destroy the value of three-fourths of the tobacco grown by our farmers, or certainly reduce its value below the profit-making point, because the use to which manu-facturers, whether the trust or the anti-trusts trusts, now puts this class of the weed would be greatly curtailed. The weed would be greatly curtailed. The trusts of both sorts—the original and the "antis," could then get their grades for smoking purposes at their own price, and supply their cigarette fac-tories at work and employing labor elsewhere, in other countries perhaps, and thus enjoy an increasing monop-oly on smoking, eigars and chewing, made from the very low priced to-bacco, made low by assinine legisla-tion. There are thousands and thousands of farmers in North Carolina interested The Kinston Rifles will give a big directly in this very cigarette business. demand created for the particular, and most profitable, class of tobacco cultivated and grown by our farmers by this particular character of manuacture
