Advertisements to be changed must be in by 10 o'clock, day of publication

The board of alderman will meet tonight.

The Rabbit's Foot Comedy Company, an aggregation of colored minstrels and performers, will give a performance under canvas here Friday night, September 4th.

Mr. J. M. Howland went to Dover today for a prisoner that was captured there and held for him. The prisoner is Claud Sutton, a negro boy, wanted by the police of this city. He returned on the 10:12 train.

Mr. Thomas Hill, of Neusetownship, and Miss Lula Mitchell, of the same township, were married at the home of the bride's father, Mr. W. J. Mitchell, Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. C. A. Dudley, justice of the peace officiating.

Moses Williams, the youth who had three fingers cut off by machinery at the Knitting Mills some time ago, got the wounded hand hurt again this morning playing with little Paul Hawkins and it bled right badly. He was taken to the doctor who dressed the hand.

Einstein Bros. are making a departure from the beaten paths of business that will very likely meet with the approval of the lady shoppers. They are establishing a department of 5 and 10 cent articles, and counters will be arranged for the exclusive sale of articles of this value.

Sheriff Dal F. Wooten's horse became frightened at the train at the A. & N. C. freight depot this afternoon and ran away down Blount street. Mr. W. W. Kilpatrick had driven the horse to the depot to get a bill of lading and jumped out of the buggy and went into the office. While he was in the office the train came up, frightening the horse which dashed off down Blount street and at the west end, in turning a corner, smashed the buggy to pieces. The animal after being released made its way to the sheriff's home in northwest Kinston and stopped.

FIRST BALE BRINGS 12 CENTS.

Mr. A. L. Sutton, of Bucklesberry, raised it and Mr. Ball bought it.

The "first bale" of new cotton made its appearance on our streets today and was bought by Mr. J. R. Ball, representing Rogers, McCabe & Co., cotton exporters of Norfolk, at 12 cents. The bale of cotton was a large one, weighing 600 pounds and graded middling. Mr. A. L. Sutton, a young farmer of the Bucklesberry section of this county raised the cotton and has between 30 and 40 acres, which he says will average nearly a bale to the acre. He was well pleased with the price obtained and said that he had another bale at home, which he was sorry that he did not bring today.

Kinston was not the first to receive new cotton this year but the price paid for the "first bale" here today is somewhat in excess of the price of the other nearby markets for their first bale.

WANTED A BILLY GOAT

And Couldn't Buy Him on a Credit so Amos Heath Took Him Anyhow.

Amos Heath, a white man living on the south side of the river, in this county, was committed to jail yesterday in default of bond, for taking a goat from Mr. W. H. Davenport.

The circumstances are a little unusual and appear to be as follows:

Heath went to Mr. Davenport to buy two goats from him on credit and was refused by Mr. Davenport, who told Heath that he could not get the goats until he had paid for them. Heath did get the goats and killed one of them and kept the other in a pen.

Davenport found out that Heath had taken the goats and on Heath's being told by a Mr. Davis that Mr. Davenport did know of it he went to him Sunday and paid 20 cents, which Mr. Davenport accepted.

The magistrate holding that the act constituting larceny had been completed when Heath carried the goats away and that what happened after did not change the status of the case, sent the case up.
