The Who What When Minstrels at the opera house tonight.

Mr. W. H. Waters, of Caswell, presented THE FREE PRESS with a couple of very large pears today, the two weighing three pounds.

The storm prevailing in this section is reported to be doing considerable damage to open cotton, beating it out of the boll and damaging it.

Hon. W. C. Douglas addresses the people of Kinston at the opera house tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Special music provided for the occasion.

James Dove, an old colored citizen of this city, died this morning at his home in south Kinston and will be buried tomorrow at Woodington, from which place he moved to this town years ago. He was 59 years of age.

Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Miller returned this morning from a three-months' tour in which they visited the north, northwest and west, returning through the southern states. The doctor looks well from his trip and says he enjoyed it very much.

It is reported that another of the circus men died on the train last night on the way to Goldsboro as a result of a cutting here yesterday. The affair is unknown to the police and is doubted here. No confirmation of the report could be had.

Caswell chapter, No. 38, Royal Arch Masons will meet in the Masonic hall at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, Oct. 12th, at which time petitions for membership will be balloted upon. All the member of the chapter are urged to attend promptly.

The ladies of Kinston are invited to assemble at the Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the cause of temperance. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas will meet them and tell them of the part played by the ladies in Raleigh's temperance campaign.

A unique advertisement for the celebrated Dutchess pants by Oettinger Bros. is an immense pair of these pants suspended from a line across the street in front of their store. The extremely long trousers attracted a good deal of attention from the crowd yesterday.

The corner stone of the Free Will Baptist Institute, a colored school, will be laid this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Lincoln city in the suburbs of Kinston. The Grand United Order of Odd Fellows lodge, No. 3,501 will conduct the ceremonies. F. R. King is the orator of the day. William Tell will be master of ceremonies, and all acting officers will participate. J. H. Dove is treasurer.
