KINSTON 11 YEARS AGO.

It was All Fool's day. Neuse river was rising fast. North Carolina had 850 state convicts.

The Western Union instituted messenger service.

Atwood Bizzell accepted a position with the Bank of Kinston.

Mollie Blackburn, colored, cursed on the streets. The mayor fined Mollie.

A "little monkey" was shipped to a man here. "They will very likely become the fad in this city now" was stated. Such monkey-business never came to be, however.

Elmer Hicks went away. When he returned Elmer had been off eight years.

The registration books for the municipal election were opened.

Rats in a cage were electrocuted by an ingenious telephone operator who attached a 75-volt magnet to a wire trap.

THE CLERGY HEARD FROM

Pastor of the First Baptist Church Would Prohibit Carnivals in Kinston.

Mr. Editor:

I want to ask space in your valued paper to give endorsement to your editorial on "The Carnival Habit." You say, "there is not a single elevating influence to be derived from a visit of carnivals and scores of undesirable features abound." Let me publicly add to this statement my amen. One of the strangest things thinkable is that sensible men in the administration of the affairs of the community would allow the presence of such public nuisances. Besides the drain on a community's finances to maintain it, it always leaves a trail of evil. No community can be helped by the presence of street carnivals, but all are lowered by them.

Now, it is claimed by some municipal authorities that legislation has shorn them of power to eliminate these evils. I have heard this, and yet, state assemblies have met without protest from the same authorities, who claimed to want such power.

It is passing strange that such enabling power should be needed and so much wanted, and practically no fight made for it when the time is propitious for such a fight.

I have often thought of another feature of this weak condition of municipal protection. If there was provision that no tax from these carnivals could be collected to swell the city treasury, would they be allowed? Is it not palpable that some strategem of power would be used to eliminate such shows from our streets? Who is prepared to believe that our public morals would be subjected to such insults if there was no pay in it to the municipal coffers? If this supposition is true, the shows exist because the tax derived from such sources is considered by the authorities, a better asset to the community than its morals.

Other states have legislated them from their midst. Some of the cities of our own state have done so. One mayor of a city in which the writer lived, declared the thing a "public nuisance" and forbid its presence, when the city attorney declared there was no way to prohibit it.

I think, Mr. Editor, the citizenship of Kinston, that have the public weal at heart, will most heartily endorse the fight you make against this unnecessary evil.

May this be the last carnival allowed to work its mischief in our noble city.

REV. C. W. BLANCHARD.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND

Vinol for Run-Down People.

If any one person should know the value of medicines it is the druggist who dispenses them and from our experience we want to say if people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to supply the demand.

This is because Vinol is a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of cods' livers without the oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, should try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. J. E. Hood & Co., Druggists, Kinston, N. C. (adv)
