NOTICE.

We ask the indulgence of our readers in the matter of late delivery for the past few days. Circumstances, which we haven't been able to regulate, have caused the delay. We hope to have things running on schedule time in a few days and our patrons will then be served in the afternoon as heretofore.

Wanted ten thousand men, women and children to say a good word about Kinston.

Is a fellow excusable for not being amiable when every thing is running backwards?

Promiscuous spitting on the walks, in the court house and other public buildings is a filthy habit and is a menace to health. If there are not, there should be laws prohibiting such practices, and they should be rigidly enforced.

The dead outlaw's widow, who refuses to divulge the hiding place of his ill gotten bounty, seems to think her "martyred" husband a hero and says the money is rightfully hers because he earned it by his skill as a safe crack. If we could see ourselves as others see us.

Mr. Warren H. Booker, assistant secretary of the State Board of Health says flies are the filthiest and most dangerous enemy to mankind. Everybody knows it, but still the pest is allowed to go from year to year practically unmolested, dealing out its death blows to babies and grown ups as well.

President Wilson has applied the "plucking" law to Judge Clark and declared him too old to be appointed to the Supreme Court vacancy. We hope the President will not consider his attorney general old enough or disqualify him on some other ground. We would suggest that, if for no other reason, he is not temperamentally fitted for the place.

The trial of Captain Johnson of the ill-fated ship Monroe, which sank off the Virginia shores in January, will probably result in the revocation of his license, if the first evidence submitted is sustained. It appears that he left the ship before he had done all possible for the safety of the passengers and if such is proven his career as a sea captain is at an end.

The practice of a large number of people in Kinston to congregate in the middle of the streets to watch the fire department go by, when it is summoned to a blaze is both dangerous and in violation of the law. Automobiles, vehicles of all descriptions and pedestrians seem to assume the right of way and require the fire apparatus to go round or run the risk of an accident. It should be remembered that the firemen have the undisputed right of way and that all others, whether walking or riding should make way for them. Let the pedestrians stay on the side walks and the vehicles close to them and at a stand still until the fire wagons have passed.

SNOW HILL'S PROPOSITION.

While The Free Press does not want to appear antagonistic to the proposition, which comes from the neighboring town of Snow Hill, in which electric current is sought from the Kinston plant, it feels that it is its duty to call attention to the necessity for providing an adequate supply for home needs, before contracts for supplying other towns or communities are made. Kinston has just approved a bond issue, the proceeds of which are to be spent for necessary municipal improvements, including the enlargement of the electric light plant. By a resolution of the city council, prior to the election, it was decided to give the sewerage extension in East Kinston first call, the electric light plant second and lastly the paving of streets. The bond issue is not sufficient to go round and take care of all the work that should be done. At best there will not be enough to do all the paving that is necessary, and The Free Press does not think it wise to apply more money on the electric light plant than is necessary to give to Kinston adequate lighting and power facilities. In other words the paving appropriation should not suffer in order to enlarge the electric plant to take care of the needs of outsiders. It is, of course, possible that Snow Hill can be accommodated without depriving Kinston or making it necessary to spend more money on the plant than would otherwise be spent. If this be so and an equitable arrangement can be made, it would seem wise to furnish the current but the contract should be made so that Kinston could cease to supply the current, after giving a reasonable notice in the event her own needs should come to suffer by virtue of the supply elsewhere.

A Cause for Hilarity.

We rejoice with exceeding great joy to report the arrival in our midst of peach Ice Cream.

He Deserves a Big Slice.
(Durham Sun.)
It would appear that in the distribution of pie under the new Mexican regime, Villa was left out in the cold, hungry. It is possible, that he has already got his.

How Things Do Change.
(Raleigh Times.)
With the exception of a few days, Raleigh has furnished summer resort weather, and those people who have gone to the mountains and seashore have got little better for much money than they would have got here for less.

Speaking of Mud.
(Winston-Salem Journal.)
The Greensboro Daily News boasts that there is not a single fly in Greensboro, save a few kept here and there in cages as curiosities. We quite agree with the Charlotte News that there is one place where even a fly would not care to reside it must be Greensboro.

A Real Leader.
(News Leader.)
The New York Times hits the nail on the head when, in commenting on the talk of President Wilson's "domination of congress," it says: "He prevails only through the excellence of his recommendations." And that is no less a compliment to congress than to the president.

We Heartily Agree.
(Wilmington Dispatch.)
The New Bern Sun thinks that there has been too much abuse heaped upon Congressional Executive Committee members of the Third District, coming from a certain quarter (the Thomas side in the Third, we take it) and is of the opinion that things are not anywhere near as bad, so far as Democratic discord and friction go, as the outsider might think, or words to that effect. As to the former we know nothing, but as to the latter appearances must be decidedly deceiving if the Third has not been torn by the recent mix-ups and squabbles. In fact, we find the Kinston Free Press right at the threshold, while paying high tribute to Mr. Hood setting forth that he will not add lustre to his career by accepting the nomination as now tendered. But however all this may be, hardly any one will deny but that the legalized primary would have saved the present situation in the Third and that what has transpired provides evidence in favor of the legalized primary—and that is the vital point of the discussion, after all.

THE sunshine of the Renaissance apperted; the sombre times of the monk and the soldier disappeared. Furniture-making began to be an art. Pupils were apprenticed to a master and studied with him until they had perfected their craft, when they opened workshops of their own. The pieces produced in these great studio-shops united beauty with utility. Homes possessed a harmony hitherto unknown. Some of the greatest masters the world has ever known were produced during the sunshine of the Renaissance. The creations of these masters form a monument which grows more imposing as the years pass. Many of the great designers signed their work precisely as did the great painters. Following this custom, the Berkey and Gay furniture—sold exclusively by Quinn & Miller in Kinston—bears a shop-mark—found on every piece and the same mark used in all high class magazine advertisements of Berkey and Gay furniture. This line is beyond question, one of the finest lines of furniture—we have others—notably the Lambert—the Holland-Dutch—Art Crafts.
