Secretary Sutton of the Chamber of Commerce didn't fail to tell the Duplin folks how tobacco was selling on the floors of the Kinston warehouse. He told them that better prices were being paid than anywhere else and invited them to come up and bring their crops. Advertising pays.

President Young of the Norfock Southern said last night that Kinston wouldn't be benefited by a union depot, and that it would not bring one dollar additional revenue into the community. If we didn't believe in advertising we would agree with him, but then we believe in ADVERTIS-

This is the morning after a most pleasant trip with the Kinston boost ers through Duplin and Jones counties Wednesday. The stiff joints from some of the jolts occasioned by the bad roads of Levoir are still felt, but with all that, the trip was not marred by a single mishap and new and pleasant acquaintances were made.

Gradually the meshes of the law are being formed around Mrs. Carman and it begins to look like the State would make a strong case against the accused woman. The case hinges on the testimony of a negrees and her own statement convicts her of perjury, which will probably have its weight with the jury.

There were many pleasantries wedged in the experience meetings. which helped to create a good feeling and the splendid barbecue was the medium of getting better acquainted.

IMPRESSED WITH

POSSIBILITIES. There is no doubt that the Norfolk outhern officials, who accompanied the Kinston citizens through southern Lenoir, a section of Jones and into the heart of Duplin Wednesday. were greatly impressed with the rich possibilities of the magnificent unthe Kinston people, who made the there is no doubt that the people of the section visited, as evidenced by their representatives, who came principally from Maple Hill in Pender county, Chinquapin and Beulaville, in Duplin, and from Pink Hill, in Lenoir, realize the great latent facilities stored up in their sections, and that they are eager and axixious to do what they can to co-operate in the plan for transportation means, which will make it possible for them to bring their crops to markets and to increase their production. The spirit of co-operation permeated the atmosphere of the conference. President Young of the Norfolk Southern, the genial, level-headed, practical man that he is, spoke in a heart-tobeart fashion and impressed his hearers that his read would go as far as it was possible for it to go in bringing about a development of Eastern Carolina, which would make it second to none in productiveness in all the world. Emphasis was laid by all the speakers upon the great natural resources, climatic and soil advantageand upon the proper utilization of them by an intelligent diversification fells of crops. The possibilities were pointed out by men of large experience. the conditions throughout the entire-Notice to Shippers and Receivers of country and who have had a part in the development of sections far less
