Many relatives of Mr. A. G. Tyndall celebrated that well-known man's 75th birthday with him at the country home of Mr. P. S. Tyndall, a son, near Pink Hill, on a recent day. Mr. Tyndall has been married fifty years, and Mrs. Tyndall, aged 69, was seated with him when their kinsmen called to pay the highly respected old people homage. There are eight children living, these being: Mr. S. S. Tyndall, Kinston; Mrs. Robert Turner, Mrs. S. J. Kornegay, Messrs. A. E.
Tyndall, L. P. Tyndall and P. S. Tyndall, Pink Hill, and vicinity; Mr. Elbert Tyndall, Deep Run, and Mr. J.
I. Tyndall, Goldsboro. Most of forty-four grandchildren and four great grandchildren were in the assemblage.
A typical country dinner was served.
Mr. T. W. Miller of Edenton was in the city yesterday. * * *

TROOPS FIGHTING UNDER BRITISH COLORS MIXED

Interesting Little Ditty of Sir John French's Army Furnished by Mr.
Howlington of Baltimore, Formerly of Yorkshire.

J. Howlington, who is a Yorkshire-man, though he served in a Scottish regiment in the British army, was here today, and a most interesting visitor he was. Mr. Howlington has been in India and other parts of the empire with H. M. forces, serving as private, lance corporal and sergeant in a company of Kilties.

The English troops in France and

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Belgium comprise the most heterogeneous army in the world's history, he says, and carries a newspaper clipping which struck him as a particularly expressive description of Sir John French's command. "My name is Tommy Atkins, and I'm a husky chap; my comrade is a Cossack and my partner is a Jap. We're going with some Gurkas and likewise with some Sikhs, some black Algerian Tur-cos, and other colored freaks. And with all the blooming virtues for which you know we shine, we are carrying civilization to the people on the Rhine." He came to America eight years ago, when he became a time-expired man, and is now living in Baltimore and traveling for a concern in that city. * * *
