THURSDAY EVENING, JANUARY 21, 1915

Of course, it is nobody's else business what Mr. and Mrs. Sayre have decided to name their son, but nevertheless the cognomen "Woodrow Wilson" would have been a much more distinguished one than "Francis." The little fellow's daddy evidently couldn't down his paternal pride.

The "yellow jacket" cases over in Duplin have been decided. The defendant lost in one to the extent of $48 and won in the other. The estimated damage from the fire started by the water boy to drive out the "stingers," made by the plaintiffs was $1,500, but after hearing the evidence the jury said $48. Quite a difference of opinion.

The friends of Judge Oliver H. Allen congratulate him on his escape from injury in the serious wreck of the Seaboard Air Line's fast train, on which the Judge was a passenger. Train wreckers are thought to have been responsible for the derailment, and if such be the case no effort should be spared to bring the guilty culprits to the bar of justice. It is not often that such dastardly crimes are perpetrated in this part of the country, but there should be no quibbling in the quick handling of offenders when apprehended.

The German air raid on England was of little consequence so far as the casualties of war are counted, but the moral effect upon the populace of King George's domain will in all probability be demoralizing. England has been quite apprehensive of the proposed raid, which has been threatened for sometime and particularly so since the naval bombardment of coast towns a few weeks ago. The military authorities have shown some resentment at the activity of home guards and have refused to allow uniforms worn by this impromptu brance of the defense. The populace has had occasion to lose some of its confidence in the ability of the authorities to ward off nice advertising. Let's get in the game. attacks, and for that reason more or less precautionary measures have been taken by the civilians. This has naturally created some feeling. A little more aggressiveness on the part of England's navy will restore the people's confidence.

LIMITING THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY TO FORTY DAYS.

The action of the Senate in defeating the resolution to reduce the session to forty days is, The Free Press believes, wise. The work of the lawmakers has not advanced sufficiently at the present time to put them in completed in a shorter time than that allotted. There is plenty of time to consider the curtailment of the session not required to do the work. A motion to adjourn is always in order, and when the calendars are cleared, then the legislators can show their patriotism by adjourning and saving the State their per diem, but let them proceed now with the regular order of things. The revision of the taxation system, the public health, provision for a state-wide primary, the needs of various State institutions, etc., are of more importance just now than the day of adjournment. The people of the State want action, but they are not so anxious for so much grandstand play. Let the members of the General Assembly see to it that every day counts for something in the way of constructive legislation. Let there not be that usual procrastination in getting down to "brass tacks," and let the session be closed on the very earliest day possible.

"PRAYER-MEETING NIGHT"

SUGGESTION A GOOD ONE.

The suggestion made in a letter from a church member. printed in the "Vox Populi" column of The Free Press congregation in America. How to get and hold the inter- sheep pasture to the goat cliffs."

THE DAILY FREE PRESS est of the larger part of the congregation is a question, which few if any have solved to their entire satisfaction. The faithful few can be depended upon to support the mid-week prayer meeting, as they do all the other services of the church, but the great majority of those who attend, do so spasmodically and cannot be depended upon for any degree of regularity. Even the church officers are careless about supporting this very important service and it is not an infrequent occurrence to go to a midweek service and find not a single officer, aside from the minister of the church present. Uninteresting meetings may be responsible in some few cases, but that cannot be assigned as a general reason for sparsely attended prayer meetings. Those, who are regular attendants, will testify that the mid-week service is the sweetest of the whole church program. The spiritual atmosphere of these services and the usual general participation in the discussion and exercises are very potent factors in the church life. Some church leaders aver that the prayer meeting is the thermometer of the church. Certainly those who are most regular in their attendance and support of the mid-week service can be depended upon to do their share of the work, whatever it may be, in the general activities of the church.

> THE ADVISORY COMMITTEE PLAN IS THE BEST SOLUTION.

The Free Press believes that its suggestion, made yesterday, that a committee of representative citizens be asked by the Mayor to act as an advisory committee to the one already appointed by the City Council to consider the matter of a change in the system of city government. is a logical one, and one that would meet the exigencies of the situation. The matter of city government is one that vitally concerns every man, woman and child here The interests of all are one, or, they ought to be. There is, always has been, and always will be, an honest differ ence of opinion among people as to the best methods and it is not to be supposed that any system could be devised whereby all would be satisfied. The best interests of the community in general should control and the calm deliberation and counsel of the city's leading and successful ousiness and professional men would result in good. As far as possible there should be a complete elimination of politics or any partisan lines. The matter is not so much a personal one, but a case of the best system. Not so much whether the present incumbents are thoroughly fitted for their several duties, as whether the plan of operation now in effect is capable of giving the best returns. The Free Press believes that the suggestion is wise, and it hopes the Mayor and Council will see their way clear to seek the advice and assistance of a committee in the adjustment of this very vital matter.

Kinston ought to be represented in the meeting of the would-be moguls" at Wilmington next Tuesday. If it is found possible to organize a baseball league for this section, Kinston, by all means, should have a team. The flag ought to float over Kinston's ball yard next year. A few likely players, who will attract the attention of the big league scouts to this section, will give Kinston some

WHAT OTHERS SAY

WORTHY OF SUPPORT

Raleigh Times: "Every good citizen should desire to aid the Juvenile Protective Association formed in this city for the purpose of going to the aid of wayward children in an effort to prevent them from becoming crim inals. It is the duty of society to protect juveniles, and any effort in this direction is worthy of hearty support The efforts of society should be directed towards helping position to determine whether or no the work can be that percentage of the populace which needs it, and if one out of ten children is reclaimed, the association will have done something worth while. The proportion will be later when it has been shown that the full sixty days are greater than that. The Times welcomes the new association, and trusts that it will never relax in its endeavors to help those who need helping."

NOT FAIR TO WOOTEN

Charlotte Observer: "The Maxton Scottish Chief, which can neither forget nor forgive the lickin' of 1912, is disposed to pillory Speaker Wooten for having voted against inviting the Colonel to make an address to the Legislature. Under the supposition that Wooten was 'a strong supporter of Senator Simmons in his campaign,' The Chief is of opinion that Wooten 'showed the kind of a Democrat he is by having his vote recorded against inviting Secretary Bryan.' In the contest for the speakership, the minority Democrats represented Mr. Wooten as typical of the 'progressive,' and hailed his election with delight. The Observer, in a quiet way, expressed its satisfaction with the result. Its information about Mr. Wooten politically-it knew him to be a finely equipped pariamentarian-was to the effect that while he was Kitchin man, he was neutral in the 1912 campaign, and it Wednesday, relating to the importance of the mid-week was told, though its informant spoke only from belief, prayer service of the churches is, The Free Press believes that he voted for Clark. If these facts are correct, it is very timely. The prayer meeting attendance and interest manifest that The Scottish Chief has lost its bearings, problem is not peculiarly a local one. It confronts every and is a little too previous in banishing Wooten from the
