YOUR HAIR NEEDS PARISIAN SAGE

It Quickly Removes Dandruff, Stops Falling Hair and Scalp Itch. If your hair is full of dandruff, thin, streaky, dull and never will do up to look pretty, you can almost immediately remove the cause making it beautiful, thick and fluffy by the use of Parisian Sage, one of the most helpful and invigorating hair and scalp tonics known. Parisian Sage not only saves your hair but stimulates the hair roots and furnishes the nourishment needed to make it grow long, abundant and radiant with life. Just one application removes every trace of dandruff and stops scalp itch—your hair becomes soft and fluffy with an incomparable gloss, beauty and charm. You cannot be disappointed with this harmless and delicately perfumed tonic for there is nothing so good for your hair. It is easily applied at home and costs but a trifle from J. E. Hood & Co., or any drug counter. adv.

TIPPERARY CLOTH MAKES A HIT IN THE FEMINE WORLD

"Dreadnaught Grey" to Be Fashionable Shade This Spring—Everything Fashionable Gets Its Name from the War

By Margaret Mason (Written for the United Press)

There's a new cloth called Tipperary it will be quite the go in a sport coat for little Mary, Or the swellest girl you know Goodbye to tweed and homespun Goodbye for fair There's a new cloth called Tipperary And it's smart to wear. New York, Feb. 5.—Everybody is singing the praises of a new fabric for sport coats and suits called Tipperary cloth. Everybody also who is anybody when it comes to the clothes line of distinction is preparing to make herself shapely for Spring in a coat of "dreadnaught grey."

The answer is that it is quite the thing to name new colors, new fabrics, and new models this year by some closely allied to the Allies or at least some phase of the war. "Triple Entente" is the striking title for one new model and "Alberte" is a fetching tribute to the Belgian king, in old blue velvet chiffon over an old gold slip. Cossack and Russian flaring skirts and coats still prevail and also the trim little khaki Tommy Atkins suit but its sand colored "chicness" is becoming almost as legion as the sands of the desert. It seems that the heads of the fair ones more than their hearts are pro-German for the helmet effects in chapeaus are still to the fore and many are the straw ones leading the fashionable sortie of onrushing Spring bonnets.

Russian peasant dresses have proved the inspiration for an elaborate evening gown shown by Louise. It is developed in sage green corded silk and has the tight fitting peasant bodice cut out with a square decollete and laced up the sides under the arms with gold cord. The skirt is full and has the semblance of an aprone worked out in heavy gold embroidery.

Military effects have also invaded the ranks of the evening gowns and a saucy little model of midnight blue chiffon has its full skirt braided in gold around the deep hem and up the front and the tight bodice has gold cord draped across the front and the tight bodice has gold cord draped across the front and up over the shoulders in lieu of more substantial sleeves.

Indeed all the gold braid and brass buttons and gold fringe that has been cast aside in modern warfare in favor of the inconspicuous khaki attire, seems to have been snatched up by the dressmakers and designers and turned to shining account on the frock and furbelows of the ladies. Fringe in particular, gold or silver, is very smart edging ruffles and even the extreme edges of the full skirts themselves. Military sashes fringed with gold are a dashing touch to many an afternoon frock. One cadet blue garradine model with gold braid frogs up the front actually had sprouted gold fringed epaulets. It looks as if you needn't be surprised soon to discover sabres and rifles as part of milady's vanity kit.

Since Paris has put a ban on all hectic hues, violet and grey are the two favored shades. The grey of the morning dove and the sadness of velvet so akin to the sombre black now perforce worn by almost all the charming women of the French capital.

All tones of the violet are good, running the gaunt from the deepest royal purple to palest lavender and mauve and dove grey deeps into slate and gun metal with varied degrees of smartness, save that the newest grey dubbed dreadnaught is perhaps just the least more popular for the mom-

It is all that its name implies, being the exact color of a battle ship. Alas, however, the war is not content to flaunt its strong influence on our fashions alone, it has reached right up into our faces and most disastrous are bound to be the results. The whole complexion of things threatens to be changed and many are the feminine countenances that will show the battle scarred ravages of war. What haven't you heard?—there is a war tax now on powder (face of course) cold cream, lotions of all beautifying sorts, rouge be it liquid grease or dry, and beauty spots! Oh woe are we! Isn't it just like the stupid men who make the laws to call it an internal revenue tax when anyone can see on the very face of things it most vitally affects externals.

TEACHING ENGLISH WHAT TO DO IN CASE THE ENEMY COMES

By P. M. D'SARLE, (United Press Staff Correspondent) London, Jan. 21.—(By Mail to New York).—As a result of the demand recently made in the House of Lords by Lord Curzon, the Duke of Rutland, the Earl of Durham and others, that the government inform the civil population as to what steps they should take in the event of a German invasion, circulars are now being distributed in many of the seacoast and nearby inland towns by the local emergency committee, on the authority of the War Office. The instructions vary slightly, according to the locality, but the general tenor follows those issued for the municipality of Lewes, in Sussex. It reads: "Should such a most likely event occur as the landing of an enemy on the coast of Sussex it might be necessary for the civil population of this town to be removed to some place further inland, so as to save them from falling into the hands of the enemy, and therefore, in order to avoid panic and confusion at such a time the following instructions have been drawn up,
