SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 6, 1915

The British Admiralty evidently doesn't expect such easy sailing to Constantinople, after all. The populace has been asked to exercise patience, and not expect the Turkish stronghold to fall very quickly.

A big brewery out in the Northwest will be converted into a creamery when the State of Washington goes dry on January 1, 1916. Here's hoping that the converted plant will be a success in every way after December 31, 1915.

Kinston has just as much right to motor driven fire apparatus as has her sister cities of the East. New Bern, Wilson, Lumberton, Washington, etc., have installed these non-out-putting, highly efficient substitutes for the faithful sleek blacks and greys.

The bomb throwers, caught in the act of trying to blow up a New York church, have brought pretty serious charges against the detective making the arrests. They say that he was the moving spirit and even made the infernal machines. Pretty clever ruse, whether it has any foundation or not.

Remember, Tuesday morning the Fair Committee will start its stock-selling hike promptly at 10:30 o'clock. See to it that no other engagements separate you from your office or accustomed place of business until the gentlemen reach you. If they happen to be a few minutes late, don't give them out just feel sure they are coming!

Old Lady March is cutting her accustomed capers, just to let the folks know that she has arrived, we apprehend. If inclined to grumble about the cold weather, just remember that a long hot spell is scheduled to arrive very shortly now and it would be better to make the best of the cooling breezes while they last and not complain because July temperature is not to be had in March.

Today is the sixtieth day of the 1915 session of the General Assembly, and reports from Raleigh indicate that both calendars are crowded. There are, of course, a great many local bills and many that might as well not pass, but still there are important measures, which if passed will have to be done in the extra "no per diem" days. Do our contemporaries, who fought so vigorously for a forty-day session, still think that the curtailed session would have given sufficient time to enact the necessary legislation?

The enabling act, authorizing the County Commissioners to call an election to pass upon a good roads bond issue of $250,000, has passed both branches of the General Assembly, and when the time is ripe for holding the election the people of Lenoir will have an opportunity to place this county in the list of leaders. Good roads are one of the necessities of modern living. They are like the telephone, the electric light and other modern conveniences, no longer to be classed as luxuries, but necessities. When the European war ceases and the uncertainty of commercial life is removed the fight for improved highways will be taken up.

The organization of Kinston's District Fair, the plans for which are now being worked out, will mean one of the most progressive and beneficial public movements yet started by the "wide awakes" of Lenoir's capital. Farmers from nine counties are going to be invited to come here and exhibit their products and incidentally see just what a hustling little city we have and learn what a fine tobacco market and place of exchange for all their other "raisings" is Kinston. It just means that good substantial citizens, who have something to sell and who have to get supplies will be encouraged to come Kinstonward. Are you a booster? The charter membership of the "Modern Order of Kinston Fair Boosters" is still open. Get in on the ground floor!

The Greensboro News, as is its wont, takes a fling at the passing Congress, and asserts that in spite of the apparent good work of the body there is general relief felt because the session has been brought to an end, adding, too, that such an attitude on the part of the country at large is not complimentary to the solons. Wonder if the News doesn't know that it is characteristic for a sight of relief to be given when any legislative body, be it state or national, adjourns? Business never has the same confidence during the sessions of the law-making bodies as in the interim, and the perfectly customary attitude of the public at the present time with reference to the adjournment of Congress is not, in our opinion, any reflection whatsoever on the work of that body. As a matter of fact, The Free Press doubts very seriously that there is as much relief felt at the adjournment of the present Congress as there has been heretofore when the "stand-pat" have quit.

Sunday afternoon a hundred or more church people will visit the homes of Kinston for the purpose of compiling an accurate statement of the religious status of the city. It is the desire of the pastors of the various churches and their co-workers to gather such statistics as will enable them to intelligently determine to what extent the city is churched. What percentage of the people, young and old, are attending some of the city churches and Sunday schools and what proportion is from under the influence of the churches. The work of the census takers can be made very much easier by the co-operative efforts of the people generally. Let every consideration be shown the visitors. If the questions appear impertinent, remember that the information is being sought from everybody, and there is no intention to be personal.

COMPROMISE BETTER THAN REFERENDUM

The compromise agreed upon by the House and Senate with reference to the anti-liquor bill is, The Free Press believes, greatly to be preferred to the referendum which the Senate insisted upon tacking on to the Grier anti-liquor law. In fact, that plan has already been suggested by this paper. The substitute, as it passed the Senate Friday, limits the shipments of spirituous liquors to one quart and of malt liquors to five gallons within fifteen days. That is a great deal better than the present allowance of a gallon a week. In fact, the Grier bill was drastic and while the Free Press would like most sincerely to see the absolute stopping of liquor shipments into this State, it may be possible for the laws to work a hardship upon some who have become addicted to the habit. There are elderly men who have been accustomed to taking their "toddlies," who perhaps would suffer by being deprived absolutely. The chief aim of prohibition is to stop the development of the liquor habit in the growing generations, and it has never been thought by the saner and more conservative temperance people to be possible to destroy the habit in those who have grown old in the custom. The gradual advance toward the goal of total abstinence is the safer plan. Public sentiment will lend its support to the step-by-step plan more readily than it will to the drastic method of knocking King Alcohol out at one fell swoop. The compromise measure, if properly enforced, will be a great deal better than going too far and running the risk of a reversal of sentiment. And it is not beyond the range of possibility to create such a condition. The Free Press will be satisfied now if the substitute becomes law.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

DIVORCE LIBERALITY

Washington Progress: "At each session of the Legislature there is an effort made to make our divorce law more liberal, to say nothing of the moral side of the question. It is a direct thrust at the home. Destroy the home and the very foundation of all that is worth anything to civilization is gone. In the future each county in convention should pass resolutions instructing their representatives against such legislation and thereby place the stamp of disapproval upon such low standards."

ABOUT MOTOR-DRIVEN APPARATUS

New Bern Journal: "New Bern's protection from fire is pretty good at the present time, and with the addition of another combination motor driven truck it will be even better, and property owners who are now carrying large policies can with safety cut these down and thus save considerable expense. There's no need of paying the Southeastern Tariff Association enormous sums each year to carry the fire risk when the city of New Bern is spending thousands of dollars to carry this same risk."

THE FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

Greensboro News: "A number of our people are apprehensive lest the foot and mouth disease get a start among the cattle in this State. Cattle owners dread the prospect because no sure and effective specific has as yet been found, the result being that the appearance of the disease means almost sure death, since it has been the rule to kill all infected cattle in the hope of preventing the spread of the trouble. Especial uneasiness is felt in the western part of the State, where it has been planned to organize a number of beef cattle clubs, under the direction of the Department of Agriculture. Prizes are to be given as in the case of corn clubs. The disease has made its appearance in Virginia, and cattle owners have been warned to be on their guard."

GERMAN-AMERICANS ARE LOYAL

Richmond Times-Dispatch: "Why this nonsensical talk which fills the newspapers about the loyalty of American citizens of German birth to America? No more gratuitously silly question was ever raised. If the people who talk so much would study history a little, they would find that German-born Americans have always been noted for their intense devotion to their adopted land."

"The truth of the matter is that men find it impossible not to sympathize with one or the other of the contestants in the mighty war; it is so colossal, so world-embracing that human nature would be other than it is if Americans were not deeply interested. Practically all of the people of this country take sides, one way or the other, and if the majority prefer the allies, the minority are but exercising their rights in wishing well to the Teutonic arms. It's a free country."

"Occasional violations of neutrality of Germans in this country do not affect the mass of German-American citizens. Many Americans abroad have entered the French and English armies, and nobody thinks much the less of them; many Americans in Europe are giving active aid and assistance to the Allies, in one way or another, without exciting much criticism. This does not in any way excuse Germans who may be guilty of breaches of neutrality in this country—they should be punished to the full extent of the law—but it does show that active partisanship is not all on one side."

OIL TREATMENT FOR STOMACH TROUBLES.

A simple prescription made up of a combination of pure vegetable oils is producing wonderful results for sufferers from stomach, liver and intestinal troubles. The remedy, which is said to have originated in France, where it has been used for years by the peasantry, was introduced into this country by Dr. Geo. H. Mayr, a leading Chicago druggist, who cured himself of severe stomach, liver and intestinal troubles by its use. Those who have used it say the first dose is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable merit, and that within twenty-four hours the sufferer feels like a new person. This medicine, which has become known as Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if one bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.
