DAY OF ELEPHANTS, SUGAR-COATED POP-CORN AND LIKE NEAR

Only a few days await the appearance of the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus in Kinston. The date is Thursday, October 14, and the small boys as usual, are at fever heat in anticipation of what they will see and hear on circus day, acknowledged to be better than Christmas and the Fourth of July combined.

Nothing seems to dim the popularity of the circus, especially those of the larger type. A new crop of children appear each year. They must see the dear good old clown and smell the sawdust. But the blare of the band, the rumble of heavy red wagons and the roar of the lions seem to make the grown-ups, kids again on circus day. Of course, they generally say they are going to "carry the children to see the animals." But deep down in their hearts they know they would not miss the big show if there was not a small boy in a thousand miles on circus day.

Three trains are necessary to transport the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus. The first is known as the "flying squadron" and leaves the exhibition city daily at 10 p. m., in order to arrive during the early morning hours. Aboard is carried the commissary department and canvas hotel for breakfast must be ready at 7 a. m. The second circus special carries the famous Carl Hagenbeck manager and trained wild animals, together with tents, seats, paraphernalia and equipment not carried on the first train. The third and final section is made up almost entirely of Pullman sleepers bearing the performers, officials and employees not carried on the two preceding trains.

An idea of the magnitude of the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus may be obtained from the immense street pageant to be seen on the down town streets at 10 o'clock preceding the first performance. There will be upwards of three miles of scintillating finery. More than 1,000 men, women and horses will be seen in the great display. Eighteen different nationalities will be represented and the characteristic music of the world will be played upon brass instruments, tom toms, drums, fifes and cymbals. Eight bands will yield circus melody, augmented by two of the largest calliopes ever constructed. Many of the dens containing the Carl Hagenbeck wild animals will be open for public display. There will be more than half a hundred elaborately carved and decorated tableau wagons and allegorical floats. Three herds of ponderous elephants will make up the rear of the pageant. The performances will begin at 2 and 8 p. m. Doors to the Carl Hagenbeck zoo will be opened an hour earlier.

"HEART OF BLUE RIDGE" TO BE SEEN IN MOVIES

Waldron Baily, Author of the Splendid Story of North Carolina Mountaineers, Was Kinston Visitor Today—Native of New Bern

Mr. Waldron Baily of New York, author of the splendid story of the North Carolina mountaineers, entitled "Heart of the Blue Ridge," was in Kinston today, shaking hands with a number of local friends. Mr. Baily is a native of New Bern, and has just been down on a visit to his old home. He lived for fifteen years in the mountains of Western Carolina and during that residence gathered the material for his most interesting portrayal of the wonderfully picturesque and big-hearted mountain folk. "My book is making a decided hit," said Mr. Baily. He has disposed of the rights to his publishers and the fourth edition is now on the press. The World Film Corporation is planning to put the "book in the movies" and while in the State, Mr. Baily accompanied their organization in making pictures in the western part of the State, which will be used in illustrating the film. The production will cost about $100,000.

Mr. Baily is now preparing another book, which will have its setting in North Carolina and promises to be equally as true to life as was the "Heart of the Blue Ridge."

CYCLISTS WILL HAVE TO MANIFEST CONSIDERATION

For Pedestrians When Using Sidewalks—Council Decrees That Riders Must Dismount When Passing People Afoot Hereafter—Auditor for City.

Hereafter bicycle riders will have to treat pedestrians as human beings in the districts where they are allowed to use the sidewalks. People afoot are not to be subjected to practices of skill by negro delivery boys. City Council decided Saturday night. A number of people had complained of narrow escapes. It seems that careless cyclists were inclined to monopolize sidewalks, drive pedestrians into ditches and ride as close as possible to them without actually touching them to intimidate the unfortunate victims.

An ordinance passed by Council requires cyclists to dismount when passing people on foot. The measure is regarded as a temporary one, since when all the streets to be paved have been improved the bicycle districts will look on the map of Kinston something like Turkey does on the map of Europe since the last Balkan war.

Council also decided at Saturday's meeting to require plumbers to give $100 bonds against damage to streets from their activities. The aldermen voted to have the police enforce the anti-skating ordinance. Streets are being used by children with danger to themselves, it was pointed out. It was decided to employ a city auditor. Applicants for the office are invited to apply to the Mayor or City Clerk. The office will be established at the beginning of the next fiscal month, November 9.
