 AT THE GRAND TONIGHT
 The picture bill at the Grand theatre this evening includes: "The Diamond From the Sky," serial, and other subjects. The Six Bullocks failed to show up.

DRUNK WENT INTO HOUSE
 OF GORDON STREET FAMILY
 While the family of Mr. J. W. Black general manager of the Caswell Cotton Mills, were in the sitting room of their East Gordon street home Saturday evening after supper. Louis Taylor, colored, intoxicated, entered the house for a reason he was too drunk to divulge. A small son of the family discovered him and Mr. Black kicked Taylor out of doors. He was arrested.

WILLIAM FAYSSOUX TO BE HERE THIS WEEK
 Fayssoux, the youthful prodigy whose achievements in mental telepathy and hypnotism have been the talk of the country for years, is coming to Kinston Thursday for a three-nights engagement at the Grand theatre. The demonstrations of Fayssoux in the occult sciences surpass the most fantastic marvels attributed to the parsons priests and metaphysicians of the Hindoo temples. He submits to tests that prove beyond doubt that his performances are absolutely genuine.

CHRYSANTHEMUM BASKET PARTY AT GAINING
 A most enjoyable basket party was held at Grainger's Friday evening, November 19th. The school rooms were beautifully decorated in white chrysanthemums and ferns, the color scheme of white and green being carried out very artistically. The color scheme was also carried out very artistically in the making of the baskets, white chrysanthemums and ferns being used. The party was held for the benefit of the school, and $54 was realized. Misses Lottie Stark and Mamie Kinsey are the teachers.

ALLEGED INSANE MAN RETURNED TO HIS HOME.
 Fred. Collins, a young white man, who had been in the county jail here about two weeks, pending his contemplated removal to the State Asylum for the Insane, was sent back to the home of his father at Jacksonville Saturday. Collins, if insane, made no trouble for the jailer here. He acted rational at all times, and declared that he would much prefer being tied up in a room at home, where he could be with his relatives, to being kept in a cell in the Lenoir jail. The order from the Onslow court clerk gave as the reason for his return the possibility that he might be better cared for by his relatives. It seems that a place for Collins could not be made in the crowded asylum.

PERCY CROSS HELD THREE FINE MEETINGS SUNDAY
 Mass Meeting for Men Largely Attended and Inspiring Message Delivered—Will Deliver Sermon on "Noah's Ark" Tonight By Special Request
 Percy Cross, evangelist from Texas, was heard three times Sunday in the Gordon Street Christian church by congregations, which filled the house. The largest crowd yet assembled in the present series was on hand Sunday night and heard a most interesting and instructive sermon on the "Seven sins against the Holy Spirit."
 Sunday morning Mr. Cross spoke on "The Great Discovery," taking his text from Matt. 13:40-44. The general theme of his sermon was that everybody would some day come to realize very forcefully some great fact of their lives, whether it be for good or evil. The greatest discovery the world had made. Mr. Cross emphasized, was that Jesus Christ was the Saviour of the World.
 Sunday afternoon between three and four hundred men gathered and heard a powerful sermon on "Selling the Birthright." Mr. Cross spoke against the sins common to

EDITOR BIGGS IS A MUCH TRAVELED 'PARAGRAPHER'
 Worked On Tramp Steamers for A
 While and Did Newspaper Work in
 Berlin—Not Yet at His Majority—
 In Kinston Sunday.
 An orphan and his nearest kin, a first cousin, Asa Biggs, 17, went to sea. Asa saw a lot of things. He ran apprentice seaman on an Italian bark from the United States coast to Buenos Ayres, shipped later as seaman A. B. from South America to Riga, Russia, visited St. Petersburg, now Petrograd, Kronstadt, ports in Norway, etc., and then signed up on a German tramp steamer. Biggs, Wendell, N. C., boy, left his last ship at Hamburg late in 1914. It took him three months to get out of Berlin after the outbreak of the war.
 Italian ships are the best in the world, Biggs says, and American the worst for sailors. An Italian skipper doesn't call the "watch off" except in extreme emergency, because it costs almost five francs per man for such business. The "dago" law protects the sailors. In a storm an Italian crew "takes everything off her," and prays to all the saints in the catalog; under the same circumstances a lot of Norwegians will get drunk and "crowd it on her," until her rail buries. They use a gale to make time, the Italians suspend business. Germans are not sailors, he alleges, and the bos'ns on their ships insist on being called "sir." Russians are the most disagreeable sailors, British the most agreeable. The LaFollette law, he thinks, will drive the few remaining American flags from the high seas. The Stars and Stripes are a sight seldom enough now.
 Biggs worked for several months on an English newspaper in Berlin. There were about 20,000 English and American residents. Most of the news that the little four-page daily printed was "society stuff." It was all "assignment work," and usually those upon whom he called had the "dope" already written up for the reporters. At the outbreak of hostilities he spent every spare moment writing to the authorities of Wake county, N. C., U. S. A., to forward him a certificate of citizenship, etc. The English newspaper went to smash. He earned there about two hundred marks a month, which was a good salary in Germany.
 Asa Biggs, now 20, is editor of the Greenville Reflector. He spent Sunday here with friends. He doesn't necessarily have to stay in Greenville all his life, but he is satisfied he is going to hang right around in North Carolina and grow up with the State.
