Redistribute Forces in Northern Mexico.

Washington, April 24.-Redistribution of the American forces in Mexico as at present contemplated consists largely of concentrating troops in districts better suited for such purposes and from which dashes into arid, wild sections can be made without danger of stretching the communications line too far. Involved is the retirement slightly northward from the farthest southern sections penetrated. General Funston has been given authority to make the redistribution according to his own judgment. Such a plan would give the policing of northern Mexico over to the Americans, leaving the Carranzistas free to go southward against the Zapatistas, Diazistas, etc.

(By CARL W. ACKERMAN, United Press Staff Correspondent) Washington, April 24 .-- Official information reaching Washington, according to high officials, indicates that Germany will go a long way to prevent a break with America, German officials, however, are said to be in a quandary how to put up any agreement that will be satisfactory to the United States in writing so that it will not anger the German populace. Officials here are hopeful that the German diplomats will "find a way between the devil and the deep sea."

Cabinet Won't Meet Before Friday.

(By ROBT. J. BENDER, United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 24 .- Big developments in the German-American situation are hardly expected before Friday. The President will not have an opportunity to discuss matters with the Cabinet until then. The President expects to vote in the New Jersey primaries tomorrow, which will cancel the regular Tuesday Cabinet session.

Indications in official quarters are that the contents of the German note will be made known in a long cable message from Gerard.

Ten Days Will Win Special Prize-

Saturday was a most wonderful day at the office of the Contest Manager of the Daily Free Press All day long the office of the Contest Manager was besieged with the can-anxious to take advantage of the vote offer that closes Saturday night. The closing of the first period was very important and proved to be the greatest day of the contest thus far. Saturday brought to light where the strength of the next three weeks'may be expected to develop. Many of the contestants have been making claims to their friends and acquaintances, but on Saturday they failed, which shows that the real strength was not properly placed in their own minds. Many new contestants developed, which leaves the contest more in loubt than ever. Strength was produced where it was least expected, and several who have been holding the leading positions have dropped back to the lower positions from which they will have to extricate themselves by sheer force of energy. After all it was a great day, far greater than had been anticipated. A Close Race.

When all of the reports for the week were in the results showed that the struggle for the golden prizes is more in doubt than ever. The re-Miss Addie Ford, Kinston... 5,400 turns showed that the winner will have to be developed between now Miss and the end, for there is not enough of a lead held by any candidate in either district to make certain the winning of any prize on the list or any possibility of winning one of the cars. Several new candidates came to the front. Instead of the few leaders going ahead, it seems that the public has given its support to those candidates who have hereto-

John A. Guion, Esq., of counsel for the Norfolk Southern Railroad, is here today to serve formal notice on a number of persons holding property claimed by the railroad, lying along its right-of-way between Caswell and Gordon streets, that they must turn it over. The Norfolk Southern asserts that it owns a hundred feet on either side and is prepared to enter suit if necessary to secure the ground. The Corporation Commission's final" decision that the 59.700 8,200 union depot must be put at Gordon and Independent streets is stated to 51,300 be the reason for the railroad "dis-51,760 turbing" the property-holders.

Affected by the demand are said to be the following: C. E. Spear and J Stricklin, holding property on the east side of East street; also Mr. Stricklin's property on the West side of East; J. T. Skinner and Robt. Curtis, both of them holding property on the west side of East street; Mrs. Thos. S. Grady, Mrs. Kate Cobb, C. W. Hartsfield and Mrs. Stroud, holding property on the west side of the railroad fronting on Caswell street. Every persons named owns a house on the property, it is understood; Mr. Skinner owns two, occupied by himself and Atwood Bizzell.

The railroad will proceed to "re-6,000 cover" the ground as it did in the case of property on the south side of Caswell street, turned over to it by half a dozen or so individuals a few weeks ago. The railroad in the latter instance paid for the ground, and did not depend upon suit.

Much Larger Lot Than That Selected at Independent and Gordon Streets, and More Conveniences Possible, R. R.'s Assert

Friends of "the Junction" site have ot given up hope altogether that the roposed Kinston union passenger station may be put there, instead of at Gordon and Independent streets, which property is understood to have been determined upon finally by the Corporation Commission.

According to tentative plans, the station on the lot at "the Junction" would face Caswell street. It would set well back from the street, and in front there would be space for parked grounds and a space for parking vehicles. It is doubted by the numerous friends of "the Junction" site if there would be enough ground left for either of these purposes at the Gordon-Independent site. There would be built from the sides of the station to the Norfolk Southern track on the west and the A. C. L. on the east, wide, substantially put-up and architecturally attractive sheds. And here would not be the slightest danger of congestion on the Norfolk Southern's tracks, as some persons contend there would be if the Presbyterian ground were selected. Considerable shifting and expensive overtime for train crews would be avoided, and the danger of accidents would be no greater than now. The station would be as near to most of the hotels as it would at the place farther north.

It is believed that the railroads are anxious to have the site at "the junction" chosen. The saving for ground and in other expenses would justify them in putting up a handsomer building than they would be Craven county fiddlers will hold a willing to erect at the smaller but
