THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 18, 1916

Kinston needs a co-operative market for every product which can profitably be produced in this section.

Kinston is situated in a most favored section, a region endowed with natural soil and climatic resources which should make diversified farming attractive, and with an outlet for diversified products, there is every reason to believe that diversified farming will become a reality in these parts.

Every American newspaper publisher can sympathize with the 3,000 German publications which have suspended because of advanced prices in white paper and other obstacles arising from the war. Not only are the German brethren inconvenienced, but publishers everywhere are being put to it to take care of the rise in white paper bills, and unless some relief is given soon the people may as well prepare themselves for a general increase in subscription prices to meet the increase in raw materials.

The Alabama officials are evidently in dead earnest about enforcing the recently enacted state-wide prohibition laws. It is reported that two companies of state militia have been called out and stationed in a border community to oust the "blind tigers." The law should be enforced and when the local authorities demonstrate their inability to handle the outlaws, we believe that state assistance should be forthcoming. The calling of troops to do police duty, as in the Alabama case, should not be found necessary except in very remote instances, nevertheless when outside assistance is needed to enforce the law it should be sought.

HOW MANY TICKETS, PLEASE?

The Chautauqua committees have been appointed. The full list is being printed in another column in today's Free Press. The advertising committee has already gotten down to work and the ticket-selling committee will begin active operations, no doubt, in the next few days making a canvass of the citizens of Kinston for the purpose of selling season tickets, the proceeds from which go to cover the guarantee fund made good by the endorsement of a number of Kinstonians who are lending their influence in bringing to Kinston those amusements which are wholesome and uplifting and who are not afraid to take a chance. The Chautauquas of 1914 and '15 were well patronized. The good people of Kinston supported the guarantors most loyally. The promise of the Chautauqua management this year is for a better entertainment than either of the preceding years. Mr. Citizen, the question the ticket sellers will ask you is "How many?" not whether you will take a ticket or not, so be ready!

LET THE HEROES HAVE THEIR WAY.

It was but to be expected that the old soldiers in session in Birmingham should declare their intention of continuing their annual gatherings so long as there are any of their number left to meet. That spirit of determination has ever characterized the Southern heroes.

The Free Press has taken the position in times past that it would perhaps be better for the meetings of the old soldiers to be confined to the state gatherings. This view has been held, however, out of consideration for the old soldiers, many of whom have hastened incapacity and death because of over-exertion in their courageous attempts to keep up the pace from year to year, and it has not been with any desire to detract one scintilla from the pleasure of their declining years. If they elect to continue their annual meetings and are willing to run the risk of exposure and exertion incident to the long trips and the attendance on the sessions, there should be no obstacles put in the way.

There is an added responsibility as the years go by on the hosts of the reunions to provide greater conveniences and especially conveyances for the easy and safe moving of the old soldiers from place to place, and in the parades.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

SOUR GRAPES, EH?

Greensboro Record: "The regret is that Charlotte couldn't some way or other, run that celebration over about six days. There is so much for one day only that we fear the people will think it like a three-ringed circus."

NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA GOLD.

Richmond News-Leader: "News that operations at the Gold Hill (N. C.) gold mines are to be resumed on a business basis" has put the Charlotte Observer in high spirits. Also, it has led to that contemporary's giving some interesting facts about the gold-mining industry in that state, which was very prosperous in the past. The Gold Hill mines, the Observer tells us, had a record on the books of the old assay office at Charlotte of a production of more than $5,000,000. This record matches exactly that made by the now abandoned Rudisell mine, in the southern limits of Charlotte. The Capps Hill mine, the St. Catherine and other famous gold producers of days back were abandoned, the Observer states, when water was struck, and it is tradition that the richest ores are below the water line. Our contemporary expresses conviction that 'some day a practical miner will come along with the proper system and the rush to the Carolina gold fields will beat the celebrated rush of the 49ers to the California coast.'

"That is going it rather long on gold-mining enthusiasm, or shall we say gold fever? Still what with our latter-day improved methods of gold mining and advanced scientific means of extracting the metal, there would appear no reason why some of the abandoned workings in North Carolina should not again prove very profitable. And the same may be said in regard to Virginia. For system and science there is reward in both states on a moderate scale, at the least."

RHEUMATIC PAINS STOPPED.
The drawing of muscles, the soreness, stiffness and agonizing pain of Rheumatism quickly yield to Sloan's Liniment. It stimulates circulation to the painful part. Just apply as directed to the sore spots. In a short time the pain gives way to a tingling sensation of comfort and warmth. Here's proof—"I have had wonderful relief since I used your Liniment on my knee. To think one application gave me relief. Sorry I haven't space to tell you the history. Thanking you for what your remedy has done for me."—James S. Ferguson, Philadelphia, Pa. Sloan's Liniment kills pain. 25c at Druggists. adv.
