THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 15, 1916

Editor King of the Durham Herald is of the opinion that "Carranza has given us, although unwillingly, enough time in which to catch Villa." That may be so, but the De Facto Chief has put so many other obstacles in the way of the capture, that time has become of little value.

The News and Observer thinks that the Hartford (Conn.) physician who proposes to establish an institution to study the psychological and physiological causes of the drink habit would better give his attention to encouraging the people of his state to prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor. We see no reason why the good doctor couldn't follow the suggestion of our contemporary and his own impulse as well. To prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor is the only effectual method of destroying the taste and reducing the evil influence, but there is no particular objection to studying the physiology and psychology of the question so far as we can see.

Lenoir county is honored by being represented on the Sub-Textbook Commission in the person of Miss Hattie Parrott, Assistant Superintendent of Lenoir Schools. She is one of the six members of the Commission appointed by Governor Craig and Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner. The Sub-Commission met Wednesday in Raleigh with the State Board of Education, which constitutes the Text-Book Commission. Wednesday's News and Observer gives quite an interesting sketch of Miss Parrott, accrediting her as one of the best equipped primary teachers of the State, both as regards her professional training and successful experience. Former Superintendent of the Kinston Schools, S. B. Underwood, is another member of the Commission, and he likewise is spoken of most highly in the Raleigh paper.

ENTERTAINING AND INSTRUCTIVE.

And once again the guarantors for Chautauqua are wearing smiles. There is a two-fold reason!

First, because these public-spirited citizens feel that they have by lending their influence and credit, been instrumental in bringing to Kinston for another year an educational institution, inspirational, instructing and uplifting, and then the guarantors are glad because the people of Kinston have again responded to the call and given them the support necessary to cover the guarantee. Not so much that the guarantors feared losing a dollar or two but that they didn't want their faith shaken in their fellow-citizens of Kinston by being left the "bag to hold."

There is some prejudice still in evidence against Chautauqua. Some of the people are inclined to put it in the class of the ordinary amusement enterprise roaming about the country. In this connection it should be borne in mind that chautauqua associations are not organized for financial profit. Their chief purpose is the wholesome entertainment and enlightenment of the great mass of people, who attend and listen to their programs: Kinston unquestionably has been benefited by the coming of Chautauqua. Some magnificent addresses were on the programs in the 1914 and 1915 and some splendid attractions are listed for this year.

The people of Kinston should avail themselves of the opportunity to take in every session of the Chautauqua, where it is at all possible. The time will be well and profitably spent.

THE SPIRIT THAT MOVES.

The correspondents handling the Democratic convention in St. Louis are inclined to minimize the necessity for a prolonged session and to poke fun at the delegates for manifesting a desire to hear "glorification" speeches.

Fortunate, indeed, is the host of Democracy in being united this year. The fact that the convention at St. Louis faces no hair-splitting and ill-will engendering contests to leave scars, which are slow in the healing and which can't but effect somewhat the spirit of enthusiasm in the campaign is a source of gratification and congratulation.

It is well enough that the delegates take time at St. Louis to put their heads together and analyze the situation carefully for there is no discounting the fact that the Republican party has put out a strong ticket. It is true that they have no issue except the one which characterizes the fellow on the outside looking in—just to hold the reins once again.

The delegates gathered at St. Louis can well afford to spend two or three days in conferring together and listening to inspirational addresses of the leading speakers of the party. The spirit that moves the great rank and file of the party will have weight in bringing victory or defeat in November, and the inspiration and encouragement gained by the delegates at St. Louis, to be reflected in their campaign efforts during the summer, will have large bearing upon the spirit that moves the electorate.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

HE IS NOW JUSTICE BRANDEIS.

Charity and Children: "It is now Justice Brandeis. The Senate confirmed his nomination by a good majority. The corporations did not want him. They feared he would deal out even-handed justice and that is what they do not want. The confirmation of this man was a great victory for the people and a strong rebuke to the interests. In all such victories we take pleasure."

OMISSIONS AND OMISSIONS.

Birmingham News: "One of the Taft-Penrose-Gallinger-Aldrich organs discovers some interesting things about the Republican platform that it hastens to cheer the country with. It is joyful over the things that the G. O. P. fails to discuss."

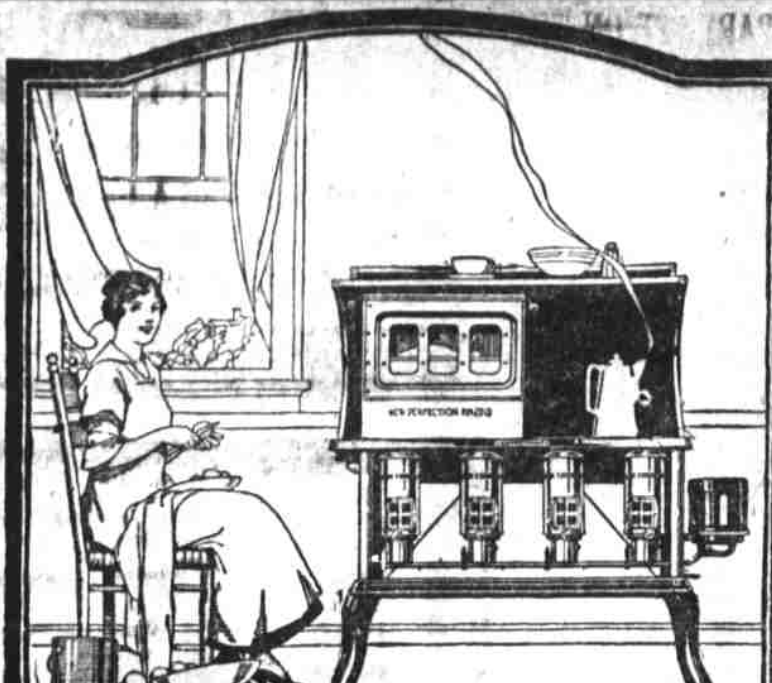

"It omits mention of the size of army or navy needed. "It omits any pledge of intervention or non-intervention in Mexico."

"It omits discussion of the money or banking system. "It omits all reference to the questions of conscription, compulsory enlistment and military training in schools. "Omits the mention of Belgium."

"It omits any mention of Germany and the Lusitania. "Et cetera, et cetera, et cetera. "Nothing much is promised. It would seem to be a do-nothing party. It seems to say amen to much that the Democratic party is responsible for, and leaves unsaid much that it could antagonize sundry interests with. It was drafted by a sagacious penman eager to conceal the real purposes of Big Business that does not want to come out into the open."

"It will bring the voter who attempts to discover what the Republican party stands for to a condition of some exhaustion. The letter of acceptance from Justice Hughes touches lightly on these things. It was written either very hastily, while the Coliseum convention awaited the Justice's decision, or drawn very cautiously and carefully weeks ago when Hitchcock set the Hughes movement going. Perhaps a condition of preparedness for convention honors was made weeks ago by one who, though supposedly engrossed in legal tomes, yet found time in his silence to write a mythical platform of faith calculated to appeal to those who want to beat Wilson."

"And the most interesting thing about the platform is that it omits to put itself on record about issues that have been faced boldly and squarely by the Administration of Woodrow Wilson. "The former Justice will have some important questions to answer in the coming weeks."
