WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 25, 1916

"New York is now betting even money on election race." If the tide continues to run Wilsonward in the next week like it has in the past two or three, the gambling element will be playing the odds on the President.

Secretary Daniels lets his newspaper instinct crop out and suggests that the Republicans insert a "want ad" for an issue. It would be a severe blow to the prestige of the want ad columns for producing results, however, and it is hardly fair to subject them to such a hard test.

There are still some items incident to traveling and other expenses in connection with the re-election of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall, which must be looked after by the rank and file of the Democrats. Have you subscribed?

After a while the small nations which have yielded to the entreaties of the Allies to join them in their fight against the Teutons, will awaken to the fact that they are simply being made the "goats" and used as buffers to keep the German "vice" and "steam roller" from their main troops.

THE STATE'S "FINEST."

The State's and the Nation's "finest" were here in numbers Wednesday. It was "School Day" at the Kinston Fair and the boys and girls from far and near came to participate in the greatest exhibit of the State's boys and girls that has ever been given. Last year five thousand—or thereabouts—of the little tots and the big boys and girls, and the young men and women were in line, and brought to Kinston and the section the honor of having had the largest number of school children in line of march in the history of the State. Since that time other counties have had large gatherings, but none have equalled the fine showing of this the second attempt of the Kinston Fair, through the work of Miss Hattie Parrott, assistant county superintendent.

Hail, boys and girls, young men and young women! Our best wish is that you may be brought to realize more fully the opportunities that lie before you, and that those who see you today may appreciate the possibilities that lie within you, and resolve to give you an even better chance to develop and improve those possibilities.

Let us not be unmindful that God rules, and that His hand is manifest in the success of the splendid community enterprise, which we are now enjoying.

FEDERAL LAND BANK.

Tuesday the Federal Farm Loan Board sat in Raleigh and heard the claims of Raleigh, Greensboro, Charlotte and Durham set forth. All four North Carolina cities want the coveted prize. The territory circumscribed in the suggestions of three of the contenders includes North and South Carolina and Virginia, while Charlotte added Georgia and Florida.

The Free Press, like other loyal North Carolinians, is anxious that one of the farm loan banks be located in the State. We have already expressed a preference for Raleigh. We did so because we felt that Raleigh was and is the logical place. It is centrally located, easily accessible from every part of the State, and the proposed territory of the bank district.

The Free Press regrets that the advocates of the State are not united, and that there is division among us in the matter of securing the bank. Such division, if it is permitted to carry the representatives of the various applicants into a bitter fight will jeopardize the prospects of securing the bank for the State. Far better would it be for the matter to be decided among ourselves, and thus put up a solid front when the final show-down before the board is had.

Let there be no "dog in the manger" tactics and their resultant loss of the plum entirely.

"BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER"

And 'twas just as we predicted, a great big howling success of an opener. Never did the All-Wise Ruler of the Universe bless an occasion with more fitting weather. Ideal expresses it, and nothing short of that mark does. After more or less threatening Sunday and Monday, the clouds hid themselves to other parts Tuesday, and Old Sol had not a single interference to mar his welcome ray upon a happy throng of prosperous folk gathered for the Second Annual Exhibit of the Kinston Fair.

It was hardly thought possible that last year's initial day would be eclipsed, in spite of the fact that it is not Kinston's, and the section's way of doing things to let well enough alone, but beginning with the marshals' parade, which covered a stretch of two miles, with more than two hundred mounted men, drawn from all parts of the fair section, leading the way, the beautiful floats displaying the resources of the district, portraying the educational aims and accomplishments, the numerous artistically bedecked machines and vehicles and exhibits, there is spelt everywhere "Bigger and better than ever." Twice as many or more horses are here to try for honors and money, and the exhibits and attractions are those that are to be expected at the largest of fairs.

May the remaining days be equally as propitious, and may those who come to Kinston during this gladsome week find that welcome and pleasant atmosphere which will ever bring to them fond memories of the occasion and the realization that the latch string always hangs conveniently for them to come this way.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

AN OVERWHELMING VICTORY.

New York World: "It ought not to be merely a Wilson victory at the polls in November. It ought to be a Wilson landslide. That would be the greatest political blessing that the American people could confer upon themselves.

"A Wilson landslide would completely destroy the influence of the hyphen in American politics, and once for all, put American citizenship above all foreign intrigue and alien sympathy.

"To Europe it would be a final proof of American solidarity which would carry its effect into all the diplomatic relations of the United States with the warring nations.

"It would definitely establish progressivism as a forward policy of American government, beyond the power of Toryism and reaction to overcome. It would mark the beginning of a new economic order in which human rights were no longer held subordinate to property rights, and the labor of living men held of less consequence than the accumulated products of the labor of dead men.

"It was Jefferson who put the ship of State on the Democratic track in the nineteenth century, and made possible a government of the people, by the people and for the people. Wilson is rendering the same kind of service to American democracy in the twentieth century that Jefferson rendered in the nineteenth century. Regardless of any mistakes he makes, regardless of errors of judgment, he is restoring American democracy and giving government back into the hands of the people to promote the welfare of all the people, not the welfare of a few of the people.

"American democracy, if it is to go forward, cannot permit anybody to undo what has been done under President Wilson's leadership. It cannot afford to give any man the opportunity to do it. It can take no risks with Bourbonism. It can make no experiments with reaction.

"The highest duty the American people owe to themselves, to their principles of government and to their ideals of the Republic is to give to the President a popular majority that will be overwhelming.

"Make it a Wilson landslide!"
