This fact stood out today in the maze of disruption. The cabinet crisis was precipitated by a public demand for a more vigorous conduct of the war. It was conceded that out of the crash would come the organization of war council, probably of five members. MONUMENT ILLUMINATE

To Shine Like Day at Caswell Shaft When Big Lights Are Turned On-Street Men Have Little Increase

How much does it take for a policeman to feed his face, keep a famly and get a shoe shine occasionally? City Council Monday night threw up the question-wished it off on Fire and Police Commissioner M. M. Happer. Now Mr. Happer is struggling with the problem. He is to inder a report at a called meeting of the Council. Just when the meeting will be called is not known; so Commissioner Happer is trying to prepare himself in order that he may not be caught naping. He has to do a lot of adding and subtracting and dividing on the basis of one policeman equals so many eggs at 40 cents er dozen and the like.

Mr. Happer, frankly, doesn't know what he is going to do. He said so Tuesday morning.

Members of Council grant that the cost of living has increased. Some of them at least are willing to give the men an additional 10 per cent. But, it is learned on good authority, the budget will be exceeded. Also the police have had a raise within a year. They get their uniforms gratis. Officers in other towns have had raises ccasioned by the increased cost of "everything." Lawyer J. F. Liles waxed eloquent in the policemen's cause Monday night. Look what other places have done, he argued, and none of them are in Kinston's class. month. This paragraph sums up the fituation.

Employes of the Street Department have had minor increases during the past 30 days. No other department has been affected, it is said. The street workers' raises ranged from one to two and one-half cents an

Following the example set by the evernment in illuminating the Stame of Liberty in New York harbor, the Kinston officials will in all probability light up the Caswell monument at Monument corner. A practicality appears in the local matter, nowever, that did not occur in the former. The monument cuts off light from portions of the surrounding street space. A quartet of big electic lamps may be placed on its sides. The request of Dr. Ira M. Hardy to nstal ornamental lights on the sidewalks at the Hunter office building was turned over to the Water and Light Commissioner.

Council agreed upon an ordinance to forbid the operation of electric or automatic pianos after the midnight hour in Kinston. This was aimed especially at resorts in the lower part of the city.
