Pittsburgh and Ga. Tech. May Play for Championship, Said.

By H. C. Hamilton (United Press Staff Correspondent) New York, Dec. 1.—In these parts they're pulling now for a final wind-up to the war's football season with a game between those two splendid elevens—Georgia Tech and Pittsburgh. Some one has to be football champion of the year, they argue, and usually there are a lot of bruised feelings when the news is being bandied around about this or that team being a title-holder.

Aside from the noble end such a football game would gain, it would furnish to the country the most exciting and interesting football ever seen. It would be an intersectional battle in which a real title would be at stake. There would be no idle chatter during the Winter regarding this or that team's claim to a title.

The game could be staged in the Yale bowl—something Yale could do yet in a football way—or there are other fields—notably the Princeton and Harvard Stadiums, the Polo Grounds, New York or Braves' Field, Boston.
