Boxers Make Corking Good Bayonet Users, Says Athletics Expert.

(Special to The Free Press) Quantico, Va., May 6.—Any good boxer is almost a ready-made bayonet fighter, according to Capt. A. J. Drexel-Biddle, athletic director at the U. S. Marine Officers' Training School. "The Americans and English are uniquely adapted to this most violent offensive," says the former Philadelphia society athlete, "as boxing is a requisite in the proper swinging of a bayonet and boxing comes natural to them. Their athletic systems develop an infinitely more combative spirit than the Germans' because the training in the various sports is along more combative lines."

Work of Army Rag Pickers Dangerous; Labor Under Fire By Henry Wood (United Press Staff Correspondent) With the French Armies, March 21 (By Mail).—Cleaning up battlefields has now become one of the highly organized and perfected auxiliary services of the French army. The amount of material saved in this way for the future use of the army amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars a month. It is one of the most effective "efficiencies" that the present war has produced. The work, too is often as dangerous as that of the troops who dash to the assault, as not only have the workers to handle abandoned explosives of the most perilous kind to touch, but often enough their work has to be carried on under a terrific bombardment.

Economy in Use of Meat is Necessary; Big Supplies to Army (Special to The Free Press) Raleigh, May 6.—The Food Administration is extremely desirous of securing economy in the consumption of all kinds of meats without the re-installation of meatless days for the present. The seasonal decline in the volume of animals coming to market is now in progress and it will undoubtedly further decrease during the next few months as usual, but the probable amount of such a decrease is yet obscure. The necessities for shipment abroad to our army and Allies are very large and amount roughly to 75,000,000 pounds of meat and meat products of all kinds per week against a pre-war normal of less than 15,000,000 pounds.

Honor Roll for Non-Users of Wheat This State; Self-Denial (Special to The Free Press) Raleigh, May 6.—State Food Administrator Henry A.
