Early Child Labor Lessens Chances Adult Efficiency

(Special to The Free Press.) Washington, Aug. 31.—Both child and community are losers by a policy which allows children under the age of 16 years to be gainfully employed, according to a report on "The Working Children of 'Ioston'" just issued by the U. S. Department of Labor through the Children's Bureau. They have not received an education of the sort to make them adaptable to changing industrial conditions or to give them an understanding of the duties of citizenship. They are "subjected also to positive damage," the conclusions state, "from irregular habits of work, from labor unadapted to their needs and capacities, and from unsuitable associations and environments."

Advancement in school work seems to have exercised a favorable influence over even the children's first earnings in regular positions, and the advantage of those who had completed normal or higher than normal grades for their age was still more definite in regard to wage increases, steadiness of employment, and earnings over an extended period of time. The study dealt with conditions which attended the entrance into working life of all children in Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, and Chelsea, Mass., who passed their fourteenth birthday in a given year and who entered employment within two years thereafter—a total of 5,692, or approximately one-third of the children of their ages in these cities. Information concerning subsequent working histories was secured for a number of these children about three years later, and the advantage of those who had completed higher grades in school appeared at this time to have grown more pronounced, and suggests, the report says, "that even the small amount of education which the eighth grade graduate could boast over the sixth-grade graduate was a real industrial asset."

Visiting Celebrities Prove Southern States World's Champion Publicity Getters

Mary Margaret McBride, Noted Interviewer, Says All Famous Visitors Ask for Dixie

New York City—It makes no difference whether it's an immigrant unable to speak a word of English or a dignitary with half a dozen languages at his tongue's tip, after the visitor to this country has seen the Statue of Liberty and the Woolworth Tower, he always wants to know the whereabouts of "way down south in Dixie."

This is the discovery of Mary Margaret McBride, feature writer for the New York Evening Mail and other eastern publications whose daily business is the interviewing of celebrities.

"Invariably foreigners seem to have heard more about the south than any other section of the United States except New York," she declares.

South Arouses Curiosity

"I remember having tea at the Ritz with Mrs. W. L. George, just after the famous English writer brought his pretty bride here last winter. Mrs. George was trying, as she frankly admitted, to find out everything about America and she asked hundreds of questions.

"Oh, I know I'll adore you south," she said finally. "It's so romantic!"

Mayor of Ireland, Madame Marie Curie, of France, discoverer of radium and the other day, Frau Georg Michaelis, wife of the former chancellor to the German Kaiser.

"Even Margot Asquith, for all her show of superiority, looked almost interested when Kentucky and Virginia were mentioned.

Lady Astor Solves Problem

"Since I'm from Paris, Missouri, myself, I always take the tributes to the south as a sort of personal compliment but I was never able to figure out how people found out so much about that section until lovely Lady Astor, a Virginia transplant to England came over not long ago.

"She said Dixie owed its fame to the song writers and ballad singers who press agent it continually. And when you think it over you see she's undoubtedly right.

Georgia Played 'Round the World

"Nearly every phonograph in the world plays the modern fox trot 'Georgia,' with its famous lines: 'You put the sweet In Home Sweet Home, My own sweet Georgia.'

and every college quartette anywhere undoubtedly sings 'My Old Kentucky Home' and 'Dixie.' As for 'Swanee River,' missionaries find that savages use its tune for a war dance."

"They may call the south slow but they can't say she doesn't lead the country in getting free and efficient publicity for herself!"
