Warning to Railroad Men.

E. S. Bacon, 11 East St., Bath Me., sends out this warning to railroaders "A conductor on the railroad, my work caused a chronic inflammation of the kidneys and I was miserable and all played out. A friend advised Foley Kidney Pills and from the day I commenced taking them, I began to regain my strength. The inflammation cleared and I am far better than I have been for twenty years. The weakness and dizzy spells are a thing of the past and I highly recommend Foley Kidney Pills."

Monday, June 19th, the party will go to West Point, N. Y. the seat of the United States Military Academy. It is needless to elaborate upon the magnificent scenic beauty along the Hudson River, it is incomparable.

Five days in New York will be hardly long enough to see the wonders of the great American metropolis—but much can be seen in that time.

The party will leave New York returning by the Old Dominion line at 3:00 p. m. June 23rd, arriving "home" on the afternoon of June 24th.

AN EXPERT BOOKMAKER.

One in Havana That Puzzled a Chicago Betting Man.
"If you want to see expert bookmakers you should go to Havana," remarked a Chicago man. "They certainly have their business down here. I went to a cockfight in one of the suburbs of Havana on a Sunday. Nearly everybody in that part of the town had turned out.

"With two friends I got into the pit. I had never seen a cockfight, and I was interested. At the edge of the pit several natives were standing, facing the audience and yelling and waving their hands. I asked one of my friends, who had been in Havana a short time, what they were doing. He said they were taking bets. Sure enough, the spectators were shouting back at them, announcing their favorites and placing their bets. But the bookmakers were not using even a pencil. One of them, I am sure, must have taken fifty bets.

"I wanted to get in on the game, so I decided to bet $2 on a black gamecock that looked good to me. I handed over my money, but I didn't get a ticket. I felt sure I should never see my money even if I had picked the winner. Well, the game was fought, and my bird won. I watched the bookmaker as he went among the crowd, handing money here and there. When he came to me he handed over $10. I was surprised, but he didn't notice it as he was too busy cleaning up his slate. Finally I discovered through a spectator near by who could speak Spanish a little that my bird had been a four to one shot.

"How that bookie ever kept all those bets in his mind is more than I can understand."—Washington Post.

The Road to Success

Just tack this up somewhere where you can see it:

Success consists in getting out of yourself everything that's in you. It does not consist in doing almost quite as much or a little more than the other fellow. What the other fellow does doesn't amount to a dent in a door-knob so far as you are concerned. The fact that he succeeds by laying an Atlantic cable, building an Eiffel tower, inventing wireless telegraphy or cornering the world's supply of oil doesn't make you a failure because you haven't got enough ready money to buy an automobile. You're successful when you put to some useful purpose every ounce of energy, every grain of gray matter, every mite of muscle that you've got. You're successful when you've developed all there is to you and have given that to the world.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

A Hard Hearted People.

Filial piety finds no place in Tibetan character. It is no uncommon thing for a son to turn his father, when too old for work, out of doors and to leave him to perish in the cold. The superstition that the souls of the dead can, if they will, haunt the living drives their hardened natures to gain by the exercise of cruelty the promise of the dying that they will not return to earth. As death approaches the dying person is asked, "Will you come back or will you not?" If he replies that he will they pull a leather bag over his head and smother him. If he says he will not he is allowed to die in peace.

A Lightning Change Artist.

The rapidity with which chameleons change their color is marvelous. You gather one from an outdoor shrub and it immediately becomes dark, almost black, hissing and with its mouth wide open, threatening to bite. Meanwhile it is never still, but continues to crawl upward whenever possible—up you, up your sleeve, always upward. By degrees the angry black changes into whatever color is nearest. If one's dress is of a brownish color so is the chameleon.

A PUZZLING PINE.

Peculiar Tree That is Something of a Mystery to Botanists.
Upper California is the home of a tree that has puzzled botanists. It is a pine which will grow only near the seacoast. Its growth is slow, and it does not attain to great size.

The strange thing about it is that there are, at all appearances, insurmountable difficulties in the way of the perpetuation of the species. Some specimens of it exist in Kew gardens, in London. They have been carefully examined by competent authorities, and all admit that the tree presents a problem unlike anything elsewhere met with.

This pine produces at regular intervals the usual cones containing seeds; but, strange to say, the cones are so thoroughly protected that the seeds cannot be released. The cones are hard and tightly closed and have strong overlapping scales.

More extraordinary still is the fact that the pine, after producing its almost invulnerable cones, keeps them hanging on its branches year after year. Unless through some peculiar accident the seeds would apparently remain attached to the parent tree forever. Many of the cones on the trees in Kew gardens have been there for years, as is shown by the size of the branches and the formation of the bark.

It has been found that the seed vessels which this tree so powerfully retains are so well protected that it requires a strong knife with the assistance of a heavy hammer to cut the cone into sections. No ordinary conditions of temperature can make a cone open.

The following is the only explanation yet offered that seems to have any degree of plausibility: The species may be perpetuated by fire. One who has studied the tree asserts that nothing but the intense heat of a forest fire could compel the cones to release their seeds. It has been found that under the influence of intense heat they crack open and the seeds fall out unharmed.—Harper's Weekly.

When Not to Smoke.

By exhausting the salivary secretion smoking before meals prevents the physiological action of the saliva on starchy foods. Smoking just before going to bed is often followed by insomnia, because the stomach contains a quantity of undigested juice, which irritates the mucosa and gives rise to a sensation of hunger. This distressing consequence may be averted by taking either some light food or a little bicarbonate of soda before retiring in order to neutralize the secretion.—London Lancet.

Justification.

"You admit, then, do you, O'Shaughnessy, that you assaulted your friend?" asked the judge.
"Sure an' Oi do that, yure honor," replied O'Shaughnessy. "Oi got him a couple o' good wans. He called me a damned fool, yure honor."
"And did you consider that an insult?" demanded the judge.
"Naw, sorr," said O'Shaughnessy. "Oi thought it was a gross betrayal or confidence, sorr."—Harper's Weekly.

Duty.

Duty is a power which rises with us in the morning and goes to rest with us at night. It is coextensive with the action of our intelligence. It is the shadow which cleaves to us, so where we will, and which only leaves us when we leave the light of life.—Gladstone.

Predestination.
