MONDAY..... July 20, 1914.
It is quite possible to make New Bern flyless and mosquitoless, and we predict that this will be done within a surprisingly few years.

Col. Wade Harris, of the Charlotte Observer, who cites his great age as a reason why we kids should respect his opinion that "Newbern" is the correct spelling, after all might have come over with the original Palatines, and in that case he certainly ought to know.

New Bern believers in stringent Sunday observance laws may be thankful they do not live in an Ohio town now wrought up to red heat on whether movies shall be permitted on the Sabbath. The moving picture party in that town claims that Sunday is the only day workmen have to enjoy such pleasures at their leisure.

We have several times deplored the thousand-dollar entrance fee assessed for the second Congressional primary, at the same time pointing out that the district committee was simply making sure that all expenses would be covered and that the poll holders would receive some recompense for their day's work. The Wilmington Dispatch sees in the situation an argument for a legalized primary, and comments as follows: "We don't know but what the financial status of Messrs. Hood and Thomas, over in the Third district, can each stand a thousand dollars in order to enter the primary for the Democratic nomination for Congress. But suppose neither can afford it and can't raise the amount? Verily, what then? Would, as a Democrat, either or both be barred from running, or would they be forced to run in the election? These are some pretty interesting questions, it appears to us. We trust, however, they will not present themselves this time, and time after next there is going to be a legalized primary, when all the people and not the candidates will bear the expense."

Though Editor G. A. Jones of the Snow Hill Square Deal, as somebody said about Hobson, may go steaming down the wrong track occasionally, his boosting, when he indulges in that exercise, is as unrestrained as his knocking. A recent issue of his paper shows that he has just returned from Morehead City and loudly does he sing the praises of the sea food, the ocean breezes, the surf bathing, the fishing, and all the rest of the delights. We judge from the many references in the article that Editor Jones stayed at the Atlantic hotel and thinks that it is all to the good—in fact, he says so in no uncertain terms. We are glad to see that he makes the health conditions the subject of a paragraph as follows: "The health and sanitary surroundings of the hotel have never been better. In fact a special committee from the North Carolina Board of Health has reported this hotel to be free from any contagion and to have the most modern and sanitary equipments." All of which we heartily second. Morehead City, one of the traditional Southern resorts, had such an injustice inflicted on it not long ago by newspaper publicity—an injustice in which The Sun did not share and which we immediately took pains to offset by giving publicity to the true facts—that we are inclined to think the report, especially its leading hotel, is deserving of a little free advertising from the press.

CONGRATULATIONS AGAIN.
Some weeks ago we recognized the Hon. George E. Hood as Democratic nominee for Congress from this district, praised him for his very attractive personality and exceptional ability, and predicted for him a brilliant record in Washington.

The Sun is first of all a Democratic newspaper and like a loyal Democrat we submitted to the mandate of the State executive committee and ceased referring to Mr. Hood as the party nominee until his right to the title should be confirmed. As he is not to have opposition in the second primary, we presume that he is now George E. Hood beyond dispute, and we repeat our former congratulations.

MME. CAILLAUX IS PLACED ON TRIAL TODAY IN PARIS

correspondents and others must necessarily be taken care of. Attorney Fernand Labori, representing Mme. Caillaux, and assisted very quietly by the accused woman's husband, is said to be planning a surprise for the prosecution. It is said he may try to prove that Calmette died, not directly as the result of his bullet wounds but because of useless delay on the part of attending surgeons to operate. Had they done so, according to experts said to have been summoned, Calmette would be alive today and would have been up and about ten days after the shooting. It is known that the "brain storm" plea will be entered by the noted attorney in defense of his client. A bitter fight will be made to save the beautiful woman from imprisonment for the crime which she says she was driven to commit by the bitter attacks that had been made upon her husband. Mme. Caillaux had said that she did not go to Calmette's office with the intention of killing him, but desired merely to frighten him and "teach him a lesson."

Mme. Caillaux shot Calmette in the latter's office at the "Figaro," March 16, after the editor had printed, as a culmination of a bitter campaign against Joseph Caillaux, a letter of a personal nature said by some to have been written by Caillaux to his present wife while she was the wife of another. This, however, has been denied. In any event the letter was from Caillaux to a lady and there were rumors that two or three other letters from Caillaux to the woman now bearing his name, were to be printed by "Le Figaro."

Mme. Caillaux wished to get possession of these letters. She decided to visit the "Figaro" offices. An automatic revolver was concealed in her muff. Soon after she was admitted to Calmette's office six shots rang out. The editor was found gasping in his chair, four bullet wounds in his body. Mme. Caillaux still held the revolver in her hand. She was calm and cool, quietly submitted to arrest and was imprisoned.

AUTOMOBILE IS STRUCK BY TRAIN

Salisbury Party Had Narrow Escape Near Charlotte—Machine Is Wrecked.

Charlotte, July 20.—An auto belonging to S. B. J. Ludwig, of Salisbury, in which were riding several young men and girls from that town was struck by a Southern railway train at Newell, eight miles from here yesterday afternoon. All members of the party escaped serious injury. The automobile was on a crossing when the train was seen approaching a short distance down the track. The motor car was backed out did not entirely clear the track the pilot of the engine striking it and tearing off the front wheel, fender and lamp. The party, it is said, was returning to Salisbury when the accident occurred. Some of those in the car were bruised but not otherwise hurt.

The condition of Patrol Driver A. B. Moore, who together with Assistant Chief of Police Neill Elliott, were shot Saturday morning by a gang of gunmen here, was not so favorable yesterday afternoon, symptoms of internal hemorrhage appearing while pneumonia is feared. The condition of Mr. Elliott is not alarming. The men confessed to being members of a party that shot at the officers but did not confess to the shooting.

CHARRED BODIES IN RUINS OF LOG CABIN

Gruesome Find Bears Out Story Told by The Arkansas Mine Guards.

Fort Smith, Ark., July 20.—Charred fragments of the bodies of two men, found in the ruins of a log cabin, and reports of the destruction of the surface workings of another mine owned by the Bache-Denman Coal Company, were yesterday's developments in the conflict between strikers and non-union coal miners and other company employees in the Hartman valley coal fields.

The discovery of parts of two skulls and human bones, raked from among the embers of the log cabin, explains, it is believed, the failure of J. W. Sylesberry and John Baskin, mine guards, to report after Friday's battle at Prairie Creek, and tends to confirm the statement sworn to by Sam C. Thomas, a company employe, who declares he witnessed the execution of Sylesberry and Baskin. According to Thomas, he and six other men were taken prisoners after the six-hour battle at Prairie Creek, and escorted to a hut at the head of a gulch on Sugar Loaf mountain.

About ten feet from the hut, Thomas declares, a man opened fire with a rifle, killed Sylesberry and Baskin, and attempted to kill Thomas, but other members of the party interceded.

The five other captives then were set at liberty, according to Thomas' narrative, and it is alleged the bodies were then placed in the cabin and the torch applied. En route to Huntington, he declared, the party was fired upon, but none wounded.

Conflicting reports last night of the finding of the bodies is explained by the fact that in their first survey of the cabin, the posse, headed by Paul Little, sheriff of Sebastian county, made no discoveries. Later, however, when a more careful examination of the ruins was made, fragments of the bodies were found. The evidence was taken to Greenwood, the county seat, where the grand jury tomorrow will begin an investigation.

At the request of Mr. Little, warrants were issued last night for the arrest of a number of men alleged to have taken part in an attack on the Prairie Creek mines, when the tipples and other parts of the plant were dynamited and burned. The warrants charge murder. The mine attacked last night was known as the Dallas mine, several miles from the Prairie Creek. It was not in operation, and was not under guard.

Two arrests were made yesterday on bench warrants issued by Judge Frank A. Youmans, of the United States District Court.
