LANDS FOR SALE
IN HORRY DISTRICT, SOUTH CAROLINA.
THE Subscriber offers for sale 5,000 acres of land, in all parts of the State. The lands are excellent for Agriculture—2,000 acres have been boxed and worked for two years.

There are some 200 acres of cleared land under fence. The land produces corn or cotton very well, and the swamp portions will bring rice finely. There are several good Mill sites on a constant stream—one Grist Mill in operation, and a Saw Mill ready to be raised, convenient to an abundance of water. There are two good dwellings on the place and all necessary out-buildings. The land lies immediately on the Waccamaw River, ten miles above Conwayboro', and is accessible at all times by water in flats and small vessels. For terms, apply to TOM F. ACCEPTANCE OF THE WHIG NOMINEES.

We give below the letter of Gen. Scott, and Mr. Graham, accepting the Whig nomination for President and Vice President of the United States:

WASHINGTON, June 24, 1852.
Sir: I have had the honor to receive from your hands the official notice of my "unanimous nomination as the Whig candidate for the office of President of the United States," together with a "copy of the resolutions passed by the convention, expressing their opinions upon some of the most prominent questions of national policy."

This great distinction, conferred by a numerous, intelligent, and patriotic body, representing millions of my countrymen, sinks deep in my heart; and, remembering the very eminent names which were before the convention in amicable competition with my own, I am made to feel, oppressively, the weight of responsibility belonging to my new position.

Not having written a word to procure this distinction, I lost not a moment after it had been conferred, in addressing a letter to one of your members to signify what would be, at the proper time, the substance of my reply to the convention; and I now have the honor to repeat, in a more formal manner, as the occasion justly demands, that I accept the nomination, with the resolution, annexed.

The political principles and measures laid down in those resolutions are so broad that but little is left for me to add. I therefore barely suggest, in this place, that should I, by the partiality of my countrymen, be elevated to the Office of Magistracy of the Union, I shall be ready, in my connexion with Congress, to recommend or to approve of measures in regard to the management of the public domain so as to secure an early settlement of the same favorable to actual settlers, but consistent nevertheless with a due regard to the equal rights of the whole American people in that vast national inheritance; and also to recommend or approve of a single alteration in our naturalization laws, suggested by my military experience, viz: giving to all foreigners the right of citizenship who shall faithfully serve, in time of war, one year on board of our public ships, or in our land forces, regular or volunteer, on their receiving an honorable discharge from the service.

In regard to the general policy of the administration, if elected, I should of course look among those who may approve that policy for the agents to carry it into execution; and I should seek to cultivate harmony and fraternal sentiments throughout the Whig party, without attempting to reduce its members by proscription to exact conformity to my own views. But I should, at the same time, be rigorous in regard to qualifications for office—retaining and appointing no one either deficient in capacity or integrity, or in devotion to Liberty, to the Constitution, and the Union.

Convinced that harmony or good will between the different quarters of our broad country is essential to the present and future interests of the Republic, and with a devotion to those interests that can know no South nor no North, I should neither countenance nor tolerate any secession, disorder, faction, or resistance to the law, or the Union, on any pretext in any part of the land; and I should carry into the civil administration this one principle of military conduct—obedience to the legislative and judicial departments of Government, each in its constitutional sphere—saving only, in respect to the Legislature, the possible resort to the veto power—always to be most cautiously exercised, and under the strictest restraints and necessities.

Finally, for my strict adherence to the principles of the Whig party, as expressed in the resolutions of the Convention, and herein suggested, with a sincere and earnest purpose to advance the greatness and happiness of the Republic, and thus to cherish and encourage the cause of constitutional liberty throughout the world, avoiding every act and thought that might involve our country in an unjust or unnecessary war, or impair the faith of treaties, and discountenancing all political agitation injurious to the interests of society and dangerous to the Union, I can offer no other pledge or guarantee than the known incidents of a long public life, now undergoing the severest examination.

Feeling myself highly fortunate in my associate on the ticket, and with a lively sense of my obligations to the convention, and to your personal courtesies,

I have the honor to remain, sir, with great esteem, your most obedient servant,
WINFIELD SCOTT.

To the Hon. J. G. Chapman, President of the Whig National Convention.

WASHINGTON, June 24, 1852.
Sir: I am gratified to acknowledge the receipt of the communication which you did me the honor to deliver in person on yesterday, announcing my unanimous nomination, as the Whig candidate for the office of Vice President of the United States by the National Convention which recently assembled in Baltimore, accompanied by a copy of the resolutions of the convention upon questions of national principle and policy.

I cordially approve the declarations made by these resolutions. On matters of the most recent practical interest they do but portray the conduct of an administration of the Government of which for near two years I have been a member. On all others they but reiterate the doctrines and recommendations held by its chiefs in important public communications.

Should the people of the United States give their sanction to the nominations of your convention, so far as I shall be invested with authority, a faithful adherence to these doctrines may be expected.

I therefore accept the distinction, so honorably tendered, with a grateful heart, but with unaffected diffidence. It is a satisfaction, however, to know that the place to which I have been nominated is but second ary, and that for the first office the convention has proposed a citizen of tried patriotism and virtue, long and familiarly acquainted with public affairs and public men. A safe and sagacious counsellor, who has well filled every trust heretofore committed to his hands, and who has illustrated our history by eminent public services.

With my thanks for the courtesy with which you have honored me, in the execution of your office, and with the highest personal respect, I am your obedient servant,
WILL A. GRAHAM.

FAYETTEVILLE AND W. PLANK ROAD.—We have received the second and third annual reports of the President and Directors of the Fayetteville and Western Plank Road Company, made to the Stockholders at the annual meetings, April 10, 1851, and April 8, 1852.

The following extract from the report of the President, Mr. Edward Lee Winslow, gives the state of the affairs of the Company in a few words:

We have paid the State of North Carolina two dividends on her stock up to the first day of April, amounting to $3,600, and she will be entitled to receive $4,200 out of the dividend declared payable the 12th inst., which will make the sum of $7,800 00

The State has paid, by the way of interest on the Bonds issued for the payment of her stock in this Company, 6,288 79

By the judicious management of the Public Treasurer, he has received in the Treasury, by the way of premiums on the sale of the Bonds, 1,136 12

Thus showing a profit to the State up to this time on her investment in this road, 2,647 37

The State has no reason, thus far, to regret her copartnership in the Fayetteville and Western Plank Road Company; and the hope may be indulged, that she will find it good policy to continue her aid to these roads, so well adapted to the wants and condition of her people while we think also that those interested in Plank Roads have reason to be cheered and stimulated in their efforts to extend the system.

In conclusion, the President and Directors think they have good grounds to congratulate the Stockholders of this road on the success, thus far, of their road, its present condition at a future prospects.—Observer.

Many of our Whig friends in this vicinity desire to know whether the Albemarle Bulletin is right in representing Mr. Kerr as opposed to Free Suffrage? See article in the last Register.—Standard.

If we know aught of the meaning of words, Mr. Kerr expressed himself opposed to Free Suffrage in his speech at Weldon.—His words were "I would suffer my head cut off before I would lend my influence in taking away the protection of property." He said persons should be protected and property, and went on to define in what manner.

He said the lower branch of the Legislature was the peculiar representative of persons and the Senate the peculiar representative of property. Having previously declared himself in favor of an open convention and asserted that he would vote for it at the polls, we feared that we might have misunderstood him with regard to his views of Free Suffrage, and consequently made it a point to enquire of several gentlemen present, both Whigs and Democrats as to their understanding of his position, and they agreed with us in the above understanding, that is that he was opposed to Free Suffrage.

There is one other fact which would convince us of Mr. Kerr's opposition to Free Suffrage, if we had nothing else to judge by, and that is, that some of the most bitter opponents of that measure, persons who have denounced it all the time and who still denounce it, have declared themselves satisfied with Mr. Kerr's views, and that too, after hearing his Weldon speech, and also retaining private conversations with him.—Warrenton News.

WORTH REFLECTING UPON.—Quakerism is favorable to longevity, it seems. According to late English census returns, the average age attained by members of the peaceful sect in Great Britain, is fifty-one years, two months and twenty-one days.—Half of the population of the country, as is seen by the same returns, die before reaching the age of twenty-one; and the average duration of human life, the world over, is but thirty-three years; Quakers, therefore, live a third longer than the rest of us. The reasons are obvious enough. Quakers are temperate and prudent, are seldom in a hurry and never in a passion. Quakers, in the very midst of the week's business, (on Wednesday morning) retire from the world, and spend an hour or two in silent meditation at the meeting-house. Quakers are diligent; they help one another, and the fear of want does not corrode their minds. The journey of life to them is a walk of peaceful meditation, not a race-course of excited contention. They neither suffer nor enjoy intensely, but preserve a composed demeanor always. Is it surprising that their days should be long in the land?

PRESENT TO AN EDITOR.—The editor of the New York Journal of Commerce has received from Florida four jars of mosquitoes in a glass receiver or quart, marked "Preserved mosquitoes from Florida." They are specimens of the mosquitoes which, according to a statement in the Journal of Commerce, thrust their bills through an old boiler, in which an unhappy Yankee had taken refuge, to avoid the enormous mosquitoes of the everglades.

The story goes, that the Yankee, on finding how matters stood in the morning, went to work and clinched all the bills inside the boiler, when the mosquitoes, taking the alarm, rose with the boiler, and flew off at a thundering rate in the direction of the Okefenokee swamp. Nothing is now wanted to substantiate the story but the boiler, and that last link in the chain of evidence will probably be forthcoming.
