Another reason why we should obey the Pauline injunction of the text and pray for sill that are in authority is that so very much of our own prosperity and happiness are involved in their doings. A sellish reason, you say. Yes, but a righteous sellishness, like that which leads you to take care of your own health and preserve your own life. Prosperous government means a domaicel people. We sill go up together, or we all go down together. When we pray for our rulers, we pray for our children, for the hurring of these hard times so far down the embankment they can never climb up again. Do not look at anything that pertains to public interest as having no relation to yourself. We are touched by all the events in our national listory, by the signing of the compact in the cabin of the Mayflower, by the small ship, the Hall Moon, sailing up the Hudson by the treaty of William Penn, by the hard that made the "Liberty hell" sound its first stroke, by Oil Ironsides plowing the high seas, and, if touched by all the events of our rulers, if the prayer be of the right stamp and worth anything, has a rebound of benediction for your wan body, mint and soil.

Another reason for obedience to my text is that the prosperity of this country is coming, and we want a hund in helping on its outing. At any rate I do. It is a matter of honest satisfaction to a soldler, after some great battle has been fought and some great harter has beginned to my fixed man with come with the nearmy to flight. RANDOM REMARKS ON THE DING. LEY TARIFF BILL.

MUDSILL HAMMOND" IS QUOTED

King"-William Sees a Prophecy Being Fulfilled.

In my last letter I said that I did not know who first said "cotton is king." This admission of my ignorance seems to have surprised and awakened some of my Carolina friends and now I know from many sources that ex-Governor Hammond said it in a speech in the United States senate in 1858, during the debate on the admission of Kansas. It was a great speech, for he was a great man. It was a states right speech such as Calhoun might have made, and in it he said: "No, sir, you dare not make war on cotton—cotton is king. Until lately the bank of England was king, but last fall she tried to put the screws upon our cotton crop and was utterly van-quished—cotton is king." That speech gave much oftense at the north and won for him the title of "Mudsill Hammond," for in it he said: "In all social systems there must be a class to do the drudgery of life—a class requiring but a low order of intellect and but little skill. This class must have vigor, docility and fidelity. Such a class you must have, or you would not have that other and higher class which leads progress, refinement and civilization. This inferior class con-stitutes the very mudsills of society and of government, and you might as well attempt to build a house in the air as to build except upon the mud-sills. Fortunately for the south, she has a race adapted to that purpose. We call them slaves - a word disearded by ears polite—but you have a similar class at the north. Yes, you have it-it is there, it is everywhere, it is eternal."

I remember how the northern press scarified him for his mudsill speech, but he spoke the truth and it is still the truth, and more so for the mudsills are more numerous now in proportion to population. Almost everybody in this region is a mudsill, and if that Dingley tariff bill becomes a law the masses will all be mudsills for the privileged and protected classes. The common people of a nation can never privileged and protected classes. The common people of a nation can never prosper under a protective tariff until a ma can lift himself up by the straps on his boots. Only the protected will prosper and they are but a small class compared with the unprotected. Even Mr. Atkinson, the Boston statesman, says the Dingley bill will prove a bur den on the people and bring in but little revenue.

But I did not intend to branch off on this tariff question, though it is an alarming and serious one to the southern people, for we manufacture nothing to speak of. Everything in this room where I am writing came from the north. I have been working in my garden all day with northern tools and even the wheelbarrow has the stamp of "Grand Rapids" upon it. I didn't used to be a mudsill, but I am now and my hands are se cramped by digging and forking the ground that I can hardly hold the pen in my fingers. But Senator Hammond did not use that word in any invidious sense. He did not mean to sling mud at anybody. He had built a mill on his farm and knew that it was necessary for the mudsill to be sunk deep down below the water and quicksand or else the floods would wash the mill away. Protection props will not protect the mill unless the foundation is laid deep and strong, and it is the toil and went of labor that makes our food and clothing. Labor is the mudsill—the cs unua-isofaliess foundation of society and government. Extinguish labor for a year or half a and Asters and Vanderbilts would perish. We are told that there is never a week's supply of food in New York and those millionaires couldn't ride and wouldn't walk to the we after it. I am mighty sorry for these rich and helpless people. Just let the trains stop running and the cooks quit cooking and all the butchers and ba-kers shops be closed for lack of sup-plies and all the horses get out of food what would become of the millionaires in New York city? They would be as helpless as a painted ship upon a painted ocean. They would be like Mr. Rouss, who says he will give any man a million dollars who will restore his sight. The mudsills must not be dishonored, for they are the only class who are fulfilling destiny, for the Lord said to the by the sweat of thy face shall thou eat brend." Yes, I am a mudsill right now, and if it is a curse it brings a blessing with it. I work hard at manual labor and get all over in a swent of perspiration, as Cobe says, and I feel proud of my day's work, and Mrs. Asp gets off her matronly dignity and walks out to see what I have done and condescends a few remarks of approbation. That satisfies me till next morning, when I work some more before breakfast—work makes me forget to brood over little troubles and it gives me a good appetite and my food digests and I sleep better and snore less and don't cry out with the nightmare. It is a blessed privilege to be a mudsill, a horny-handed son of toil, for it secures good health and brings a man nearer to his Creator, for he was made out of dirt and unto dirt he must return. Adam worked in a guiden and so do I. Eve stepped around and smiled on Adam while he toiled and so does Mrs.

Arp smile on me. So let the tariff roll on. It won't affect what I raise in my garden, I reckon. - Brill Aur in Guy-Could you spare me a cigarette? day of fast week by Station Director C.

F. Von Herrman, of Raleigh. In it
Mr. Von Herrman gives a review of the crop conditions durang the week ending April 5th. He says:

The crop reason of 1897 has not opened very favorably in North Carolina. Heavy rains during February and March debyed all firm work, while the excess of temperature advanced vegetation so that fruit trees were generally in bloom before the and of March and were considerably injured by frosts between the 2-th and 2-th.
The latter part of Jinreh was more favorable for work: but rain early in April placed the soil in excellent condition for preparation, and though firmers are still behind, a week or two of fair wether will enable them to catch up.

The weather conditions for the week ending Monday, April 5th, have not been favorable. The temperature fell to the freezing point on March 2 th and April 2d as far east as Unleign, with, it is thought, considerable many to he is thought, considerable injuly to peaches, joinns and pears, though ap-ples escaped. Hain occurred on four days, small in amount except that of sunday night (4%), which though not needed, will not materially delay farm work. The amount of sunshine was work. The amount of sunshine was about normal.

Fastern District.—The frosts this week damaged fruit trees, strawberries and truck crops to a considerable extent, except in the extreme south and cast portions of the district. 'ardens are generally backward. Considerable preparation of the soil has been done and corn planting is progressing rapidly now, while some early planted corn on dry uplands is coming up well. By and wheat are looking well and eats have been planted. To bacco plants are growing nucely and are aumerous. High water has delayed plowing in river fields and put that work has been done on the truck farms and big crops planted.
