Dog Farms in China. In Manchuria and all that part of China adjoining Mongolia there are theursands of farms devoted exclusivey to dog taising. At each of these establishments several hundred dogs are kept, which are killed by strangulation when they are 8 months old, usually toward the middle of winter. At that time their skin is covered with very fine hair, and from these skins are made winter clothes for the innabitants of the celestial empire. The dogs furnishing these skins are estirely different from the breed of dogs known here or in Europe, and their fur is said to be so long-haired and close on account of the extreme cold in

These fur dogs constitute the only wealth of this desolate country, and the only dowry given to the daughters of these farmers consists of a number of dogs. The value of the dogs a about balf a dollar, and as it take eight fur dogs to make a coat, such as article is rather expensive.

Traffic in dog skins is centered in large cities like Moukden and Foo Chow, where they are canned. At the first-named place the amount of dog half a million dollars.
