Marion, N. C., May 4, 1894.

The Populists of Hort Bower's district (the Eighth) will hold a convention at Lenoir on May 23rd to nominate a candidate for Congress, says the Landmark.

While Senator Jarvis has been appointed to fill the unexpired term of Senator Vance, still he is after Ransom's scalp, and will fight for the long term when the time comes.

C. W. A. SAXON, a colored laborer, and new appointee of Representative Crawford in the Post-office Department at Washington has been dismissed on charges filed by Mr. Crawford.

A RACE mare named Winnie Davis, in honor of the Daughter of the Confederacy, has just achieved a wonderful record. She went 50 miles in seven hours, carrying a rider who weighed 175 pounds.

The General Conference of the M. E. Church South will meet at Memphis, Tenn., on the first Thursday in May. There will be ten bishops in attendance, and nearly four hundred delegates.

Election time is approaching. On next Monday the people of Marion will elect a mayor and five aldermen, and the Republicans will meet in the courthouse to elect delegates to the Congressional Convention at Asheville.

The recent war in Brazil, which has attracted world-wide attention is at an end, and peace reigns supreme. Up to the time when the more progressive people of Brazil wanted to make various improvements, to wit, advanced methods of handling the products of the country, the importation of agricultural machinery, the establishment of water-works in the cities etc., the country moved along quietly. Dom Pedro II was Emperor, and he opposed these various improvements. He opposed anything that would save labor, or take a day's work from the people of the country. The wealthy and progressive leaders had the emperor deposed, and this is what caused the war.

Farmers and the Roads.
 All internal improvements that have been fostered and encouraged by our Legislature have been more in the interest of the towns and cities than of the country at large. Indeed, many towns owe their existence entirely to some railroad, and many a town has been expanded into a city by the centralization of railroads. The citizens of towns and cities therefore receive the greatest benefits from railroad, telegraph and electric lines—they are easily transported to any part of the country in a very short time. In all the larger towns the mail matter is delivered at the home of every citizen.

How is the condition of the country people compared with that of the town people in these particulars? They have to plod over the same rough and in many instances almost impassable roads to church and to mill; and in hauling their produce to market two horses are required to do the work that one should do and more than twice the amount of time required were the roads such as they should be.

With good roads, such as would be in good condition at any season of the year, the conditions of country life would be vastly improved, and in many respects would be far preferable to that of the towns.

What is desired in the writing of this article is not to cause any antagonism between the country and town people, but to induce, if possible, our farmers to consider well their condition, and how easily they might be so greatly bettered if they only had good roads. Where the material is convenient all improved roads should be macadamized.

They would thus be employed in bettering the country at large, and the permanent improvement of the lands will fully compensate for the increased taxes from the outlay made in road-building.

I am aware that the counties have the choice of utilizing their convicts upon their public roads, as the statutes now stand, but I think our Legislature should go further and work the whole force upon the roads, except those whose crimes require that they should be confined within the walls of the Penitentiary.

With the entire convict force employed in building public roads the State would soon have such a condition of roads as to make rural life desirable. And with good roads we might then expect to have free delivery of the mails.

Our desire is to see the condition of our farmers vastly improved; indeed, we desire for them to be far in advance of those of any other State, and they never can be what they should without good improved roads.—Bulletin of Department of Agriculture.

Corbett and Jackson Will Probably Meet With the Duval Club.
 JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 26.—J. E. T. Bowden, the manager of the Duval Athletic Club, which pulled off the Corbett-Mitchell fight at this place in January, states that the club had been reorganized and that it would bid for the Corbett-Jackson fight. Bowden says the new club is backed by some of the wealthiest sporting men in the country, whose names will be a guarantee to the fighters and the public that everything will be on the level. He claims that the courts have decided that there is no law against prize fighting in Florida, and that there will not be the slightest attempt at interference.

Bowden further says that he has assurances from Corbett that he would be glad to meet Jackson here if the latter can be induced to sign amended articles, as the present agreement stipulates that the fight shall take place north of Mason and Dixon's line, this stipulation being put in because of Jackson's color. Bowden claims that if the negro will consent, Corbett will be accorded fair treatment. Bowden says that he is now in correspondence with "Parson" Davies, Jackson's manager, in regard to the matter.

He also wishes it stated that the new club succeeds in getting the match newspaper men will not be held up for admittance money as they were at the Corbett-Mitchell fight. Bowden claims that he knows more news than he told in January. It should be stated in regard to President's association with Jackson and Corbett could fight here without interference, that Governor Mitchell is on record as saying that if any more attempts are made to pull off prize fights in this state he will call a special session of the legislature and procure the passage of an anti-fighting law.

CARRIED IN A GOLDEN HEARSE.
 The body of a Japanese Buddhist followed by 120,000 mourners.
 Orano Kashi, head of the Otani sect of Japanese Buddhists, died recently, and his funeral was the occasion for a wonderful outpouring of mourners. The late leader was in his seventy-sixth year, and had since the age of eleven been a prominent member in his sect. In the course of his life he had rendered valuable services to the imperial court, and these were recognized in 1872 by the emperor, who conferred upon the prelate a patent of nobility and a pension. The funeral of Orano Kashi was one of the memorable events of Kyoto. Elaborate preparations had been made for the ceremony, no expense being spared, and ten thousand people composed the funeral cortege, which was reviewed by one hundred and fifty thousand more. The members of the imperial family were present, with a vast number of high officials. The funeral services began at 8:30 in the great temple of Kyoto, and the procession to the crematory was formed an hour and a half later, the entire route being lined by swarms of people desirous of paying the last tribute of respect to one who was universally loved. The hearse was made of wicker work covered with gold and the journey of two miles occupied over two hours. The high priest came immediately behind the hearse, shaded from the sun's rays by an enormous crimson umbrella borne by attendants. He was followed by two thousand one hundred priests and three hundred novices, the lay mourners of the cortege coming next to the number of over nine thousand. Several stands erected along the route gave way and hundreds of people were injured. The remains of the dead prelate were placed in the furnace about six o'clock in the evening and next afternoon the ashes were taken from the receiver and placed in an urn.

A KANSAS PONY.
 Members of the Family Can Ride Him But He Fears Strangers.
 There is a man who lives near Anthony, Kan., who makes considerable money out of a well-trained pony. No one knows the history of the animal, which is a half Indian and half Texas, and which can run a mile against an average thoroughbred.

Its master and any member of the family can ride it anywhere with ease and it appears to be the best behaved pony the world has ever seen. But it objects strongly to being ridden by strangers, and when times are hard its owner will get into a crowd and offer bets indiscriminately that no one can ride the pony a dozen blocks. Those who know the pony are much too discreet to take any chances, but if there are strangers present there are always takers, and when the stake is put up it is to all intents and purposes the property of the pony owner. The very best riders fall ignominiously when they try to exhibit their skill on this peculiar little creature.

It does not waste any time on ordinary bucking, but proceeds directly for a few paces at a rocking chair pace. Then it swings suddenly around, either to the right or left, with every limb stiffened out, with the rider generally going off at a tangent to his utter astonishment. When this trick fails the pony has another one which is still more bewildering in character, and if these fail it has a way of slipping down on its haunches at an inopportune moment, which disconcerts even an expert cowboy.

AT COST!

we mean what we say

The above man held up a train loaded with goods, but the engineer told him he could buy them cheaper from us than he could carry them home.

The little chap is strictly in it, so are we for Low Prices.

Of course all our ladies dress goods go with everything we have at cost.

The old lady can convince him of her price, as she has just bought her spring and summer goods from us at cost, and twenty men could not keep her from our store during our closing out sale.
