Among the interesting proceedings of the annual meeting of the Society of Friends recently held in High Point, N. This is the "tobacco platform" says the Charleston News and the Ounkers has orier w been endeavoring to adopt and which they now stand upon.

When we give to our manufacturers free raw materials we unshackle American enterprise and ingenuity, and these will open the loors of foreign markets to the receipt of our wares and give opportunity for the continuous and remunerative em ployment of American labor. together, though divisible into fine fibrils, possessed of considerable strength. Its tenacity tested with sunn is as 115 to 130. In the Kew Bulletin for August, 1891, the announcement is made the discovery, on the shores of the Caspian, of a new commercial fiber plant, known as Kanaff, the fiber of which, "from its abundance and consequent cheapness, and its extraordin-ary durability, will successfully compete with any other textile for sacking, ropes, and pack thread," with "a The greater resistance than hemp." plant is thought to be Hibiscus can abinus, the Decan hemp plant of India.

Hibiscus splendens (Hollyhock tree).-Fiber from this species, a native of Queensland and New South Wales, is exhibited in the museum of the Department, prapared by Dr. W. R. Guilfoyle, director of the Melbourne Botanic Gardens, who states that the species is a splendid tree, growing to the height of 20 feet or more. "It is very pubescent, bearing large pink flowers resembling hollyhocks in size and appearance." The fiber is suitable for cordage, fish lines, paper, etc.

Fiber of Hidiscus sorbifolia and mutabills was also received from Dr. Guil-foyle, through the exhibition of 1876. Both of these species are indigenous in Queensland. H. mutabilis is a native of China, but grows in India and other eastern localities. Fiber of H. tetracus was also received with the above, but does not differ materially.

The Mahoe or Mahaut, H. arborevs of the West Indies, grows to a height of 16 to 29 feet, and its bark furnishes superior fiber, which, according to Squier, "is not at all inferior to hemp for most purposes." The fiber is naturally soft and white, and is admirable for the manufacture of paper. II. clatus, of the Indies, is employed in making eigarette wrappers. It is a tree that grows to the height of 60 to 80 feet. Hibiscus tiliaccus is worthy of passing mention. It is called majague in Central America and the West Indies, where it is much used for cordage. It is little affected by moisture, and is therefore selected by surveyors for measuring-lines. It is the Bola of Benjal, and is found throughout tropical and subtropical regions of both continents. The native
