A few days later he rose to speak in another town, and again the mysterions words written in black on the wall confronted him. Again he left the platform, and that night retired from the contest for the seat in Parliament. Not long afterward he disappeared from public life, and retired to an English colony where he hid him-self on a ranch. The words, it was found, referred to a theft committed in his youth, which he supposed had been forgotten.

Alexis Piron, the French poet and satirist, sought for many years to obtain a seat among the Forty Immortals in the French Academy. He was recognized among the poets of his day, and was confident of his ultimate admission, when a vile ode, written when he was a boy, was brought to light, and he knew that the door of Academy was closed in his face for-In both of the great political parties

Behind all the happiness of life, behind even Gal's love, there is such a thing as law, "Who breaks it always pays the penulty." God may forgive him, but the lines on his face, the taint in his soul, remain to tell of the view of his carly days. - Youth's Com-

Trained Babies.

I have recently had in my house a wonderful example of the "trained baby." It could "go to sleep al-loney hisself." But, by the way, he mother never talked baby to him, but plain English in few words, and he seemed to understand every word. Then, to see a busy, active baby ten months or a year old, sit at the table and never "muss the table cloth," or meddle with the dishes, or tip over the glass of water or sauce, all within reach, although so active he had all the time to jump or perform harmless athletics, probably in training for football or baseball. And as he had his proper lunch before the first course, he rarely asked for anything at the table, and if he did, he knew that "No, Lee" meant no.

Then, did you ever think a tenmonths old baby could be trained to help mother, rather than be "always a bother" and hindrance? Lee was encouraged to help mother, and though Mrs. Jones was perfectly able to keep a nurse girl to wait on ba ... she had trained him before he was a year old so that when she had sweet he wanted on his dusting cap, and, with his little dusting cloth, would creep round and dust the chairs, etc., as high as he could reach. Now this is no fancy sketch, but is just what my mother can bring about. - Chier-

TEXT "And God shall wipe away all cears from their eyes."—Revelation vit., 17, Riding across a Western prairie, wild flow-ers up to the but of the carriage wheel, and while a long distance from any shelter, there ame a sudden shower, and while the rain as falling interrents, the sun was shining a brightly as I ever saw it shine, and I naucht what a heautiful spected this left the tears of the Bible are not midnight htterse, but rein on pansied prairies in God's sweet and golden amlight. You remember that bettle which David labeled as containthat hottle which David labelled as containing fear, and Mary's tears, and Paul's tears, and Christ's tears, and the harvest of joy that is to soring from the sowing of tears. God mixes them. God rounds them. God convex them where to fall. God coxhales them. A convex is taken of them, and there is a rower to be the moment when they are been and as to the place of their grave. Tears of had men are not kept. To cure his wish to stay here God must somehow code a discust for our surroundings. How half He do it? He cannot afford to deface half-risen, or to tear off a flery panel from esanset, or to subtract an anther from t'e valor bly, or to banish the pungent aroma securitie eigenomette, or to drag the robes of he morning in mire. Not there are people here to whom this world is brighter than heaven. Well, dear souls, I do not blame you. It is natural, but after a while you will be ready to go. It was not until Job had been were out with is travenients that he wanted to see God. It was not outli the producal got thest of living among the hops that he wanted to go to his lather? house. It is the ministry of trouble to make this world worth less and heaven

Active, it is the use of trouble to make us itself our dependence upon God. Mea think that they can do anything until God shows them they can do nothing at all. We lay out to great plans and we like to execute them. It books big. God comes and takes us down, as Promotion, was according to As Promothous was assaulted by his ene: then the inner struck him it opened a great welling that had threatened his death, and get well. So it is the arrow of troubl that lets out great swellings of pride, ve. feet our dependence upon God until e get trouble. I was riding with my little child along the road, and she asked if she might drive. I said, "Certainly." I handed over the reins to her, and I had to admire the glee with which she drove. But after awaite we met a team and we had to turn out. The road was narrow, and it was sheer down on both sides. She banded the reins over to me and said, "I think you had better take charge of the borse. So we are all children, and on this read of life we like to drive. It gives one such an appearance of superiority and power. It looks big. But after awhile we neet some obstacle an I we have to turn out, and the road is narrow, and it is sheer down on both sides; and then we are willing that God should take the reins and drive. Ah, my friends, we get upon so often because we do not hand over the reins soon enough.

do not hand over the reins somenouse.

After a man has hall trouble, prayer is with him ataking hold of the arm of God and crying out for help. I have heard earnest prayers on two or three occasions that I remember. Once, on the Continual express train, coing at forty miles the hear, the train jumped the track, and we were sears chasm eighty feet deep, and the men who, a few minutes before, had been swearing and blasphening God, began to puit and jerk at the bell rope and got up on the backs of the reats, and cried out. "O God, save us."

There was another time, about 800 miles

There was another time, about 800 miles out at sea, on a foundering steamer, after the last lifebout had been split finer than kindling wood. They prayed then. Why is the last lifeboat had been split finer than kindling wood. They prayed then. Why is it you so often hear people, in resiting the last experience of some friend say. "He wade the most beautiful prayer I ever heard." What makes it beautiful? It is the marnestness of D. Oh! I tell you, a man is in earnest when his stripped and nakel soft wades out in the soundless, shoreless, bottomiess ocean of dernity.

I is trouble, my friends, that makes us beet our dependence upon God. We do not know our own weakness or God's strength until the last plank breaks. It is contemptible in its when there is nothing cles to take hold of that we catch hold of God only. Why, you do not know who the Lord is! He

Viv. you do not know who the Lord is! He not an autocrat seated far up in a palace, from which He emerges once a year, preceded

No. But a Father willing, at our call, to stand by us in every crisis and pre-licament of life. I tell you what some of you business men make me think of. A young man goes off from home to carn his fortune. He goes with his mother's consent and bene liction. She has large wealth, but he wants to make his own fortune. He goes far away, falls sick, gets out of money. He sends for the hotel keeper where he is staying, asking for lenience, and the answer he gets is, you don't pay up Saturday night, you'll be remove I to the hospital." The young man sends to a comrade in the the young man search to a writes to a banker who was a friend of his deceased father. No relief. He writes to an old schoolmate, but gets no help. Saturday night comes, and he is moved to the hospital.

Getting there, he is frenziel with grief. and he borrows a sheet of paper and a post ge stamp, and he sits down, and he writes home, saying "Dear mother, I am sick un-odeath. Come." It is ten minutes of 10 yellock when she gets the letter. At 10 yellock when she gets there in line to write the minutes to some the minutes eye five minutes to spare. She wonders ned You sent to everybody but me. You new I rould and would help you. Is this line reward I get for my kindness to you always." She bundles him up, takes him hone and gets him well very soon. Now, some of you treat God just as that young man treate i his mother. When you get into a fluancial perplexity, you call on the ban-ker, you call on the broker, you call on your ere more, you call on your nawyer for legal counsel, you call upon everybody, and when you cannot get any help, then you go to God. You say: "O, Lard, I come to Thee. Help me now out of my peoplexity." And the Lort comes, though it is the eleventh hour. He say: "Why did you not send for Me belore? A say whom his mather comforteth as will As one whom his mother comforteth, so will God that we have this ministry of tears.

Again, it is the use of trouble to capaci-

tate us for the office of sympathy. The prissus, under the old dispensation, were set apart by having water sprinkled upon their hands, test and head, and by the sprinkling of tears people are now set apart to the offlic of sympathy. When we are in prosperity we like to have a great many young people around us, and we laugh when they laugh, and we comp when they romp, and we sing when they sing; but when we have trouble we like plenty of old folks around. Why ey know how to talk.

Take an aged mother, seventy years of age. and she is almost omnipotent in comfor Why? She has been through it all. A 7 o'clock in the morning she goes over to comfort a young mother who has just loo her babe. Grandmother knows all abou her babe. (Fifty years ago she felt it. At that trouble. Fifty years ago are let it. At 12 o'clock of that duy she goes over to comfort a widowed soul. She knows all about that. She has been walking in that dark valley twenty years. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon some one knocks at the door, wanting bread. She knows all about that. Two or three times in her life she came to her last loa". At 19 o'clock that night she goes over to sit up with some one severely She knows all about it. She know all about fevers and pleurisies and broken bones. She has been doctoring all her life sprending plasters and pouring out bitter crops and shaking up but pillows and con-triving things to tempt a poor appetite. Drs. Abernetby and Rush and Hesack and Harvey were great doctors, but the greates doctor the world ever saw is an old Christian woman. Dear me! Do we not remember her about the room when we were sick in Was there any one ould ever so touch a sore without hurting

When I began to preach, my sermons on the object of trouble were all poetic and in a unidanc verse, but Godknoske I the blank verse out of my long account I have found on that I canno comfort people except as I myself have been troubled. Then I pour in the tears of Bethauy and Golgotha; then I stir them up. Then I kindle under the caldron a fire made out of the wood of the cross, and one drop of that portion will cure the worst sickness that ever afflicted a Mary and Martha shall receive their Lazarus from the tomb. Friends, if we could get any appreciation

Friends, if we could get any appreciation of what God has in reserve for ue, it would make us so homesick we would be unfit for our everyday work. Professor Leonard, formerly of Iowa University, put in my hand a meteoric stone through off from some other world to this. How suggestive it was to me! And I have to tell you the best representations we have of heaven are only acrolities flung off from that world which rolls on bearing the multitudes of the redeemed. We analyze these aerolites and find them crystallizations of tears. No wendeemed. We analyze these find them crystallizations of tears. No won-find them crystallizations of tears. No wonder, flung off from heaven! 'Ged shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.'

Have you any appreciation of the good and glorious times your friends are having in heaven! How different it is when they get news there of a Christian's death from what it is here! It is the difference between embe a first in a difference between em-barkation and coming into port. Everything depends upon which side of the river you stand when you hear of a Christian's death. If you stand on this side of the river, you mourn that they go. If you stand on the other side of the river, you rejoke that they come. On the difference between a funeral on earth and a jubiles in heaven—between requirem here and trainiph there—on here and reunion there! Together! you thought of it? They are together. one of your departed friends in one land and one of your departed friends in one land and another in another and, but together, in different rooms of the same house—the house of many mansions. Together!

I never more appreciated that thought that when we laid away in her last slambor my sister Sarah. Standing there in the village cemetery, I looked around and said, "There is father, there is grandmother, there is grandmother, there are whole circles of kindred," and I thought to myself. "Fogether in the grave—ogether in glery." I am so impressed with the thought that I do not think it is any fanaticien when some one is going feanthis en when some one is going from this orld to the next if you make them the before of dispatches to your friends who are gone, saying, "Give my love to my parents, give my love to my children, give my love to my old comrades who are in glory. and tell them I am trying to fight the good fight of faith and I will join them after again or fath and I was pointed and a white." I believe the message will be delivered, and I believe it will interest the glatiness of these who are before the throne. To rether are they, all their tears gone.

My friends, take this good chest home with you. These tears of bereave nent that course your cheek, and of persecution, and of trail, are not always to be there. The methoricy hand of God will wipe them all away. What is the use, on the way to such a coust unation—what is the use of fretting sout anything? Oh, what an exhibitation it ought to be in Caristian work! See you the pinnacles against the sky? It is the city pinnacles against the sky? It is the cit of our God, and we are approaching it. Oh, let us be busy in the days that remain for us I cut this balsam on the wounds of your bear. Rejoice at the thought of what your departed ferends have got rid of, and that you have a prespect of soon making your own escape. Bear cheerfully the ministry of

BILL ARP'S LETTER.

A DISSERTATION UPON HAPPI-NESS AND CONTENTMENT.

The Rich Declare That Wealth Does Not Bring It, While William Says It Helps Considerably.

The blues are a masculine ma ade and afflict men more than women. Women have more grief and sorrow, but when there is no great trouble in the house they are naturally more cheerful than the men. I notice it very frequently that while I am worried and perplexed about temporal things and can't see my way out and find myself in a fit of the blue-, my wile and daughters keep their spiri's op, and other wimen cone and go and talk and length and say bright things. That is all right. It would be awful for the whole family to have the blues at the same time. In fact, nebudy ought to have them and nebudy is obliged to to have them. They creep scalifly upon a man cometimes, and if he does not fight them off he is very poor company. My wafe says I look like I dident have a friend in wife says I look like I dident have a friend in the world. The best remely is to quit thi k-ing and go to work. Do some him: work in the garden, chop some wood, fix the window curtains, the up the flawers, awing the gran-children—do something to divert your moul from yourself. It is better to read a story than to think and trood over trouble that may nev t come. The body is so mysteriously connecte with the mind that the blues impair digestion and that causes loss of appetite, and the fr thing a man knows he is sick sure enough. has been supposed that the heart was the seat of the affections and emotions, but that is a mistage. It is the stemach, and if that is out of order the whole body is sick. The Bib's tells about bowels of mercy and bowels of c Another good way to drive off the blues is Another good way to drive off the blues is to write letters to kindred and friends and ventil, at your troub is and abuse somebody. Give your feelings an explosion and you will find rehet. I had such a letter from a friend the other day and he wound up by saying: "And now I think I feel better, plague take "en." Sometimes a vi w from the other side product a reaction. Consider the folks around you who are worse off and yet keep cheerful and thankful. "Youder comes the old man with his wood," said my wife. Yes, he is about as old as wood," said my wife. Yes he is about as old as I am and is wearing my old hat and coat that she gave him, and like the "son of Alkanomo", he never complains." He lives six miles away. He cuts a load of wood one day and hauls it to town the next day with a yoke of steers, are when he can't sell it for 75 cents he knows be c n haul it to my house and Mrs. Arp will take it. He always wears a smile and says: "A are geiting along fairly well at my house of your pe ple all well?" He throws two or threchinks of lightwood on top so as to keep the cook in good humor. Oxen are an awful sho motor in the e lightning times, but they are heap and don't die and nobody will steal the and they suit an infirm old man better that nucles. They never run away or kick or get on of temper. A man can drive oxen until he ge-slow and amiable and serenc. He become thankful for what little he has not and he go to meeting on Sundays and chews his to and copys his religion. Poor folks eacht to enjoy is ligion, for they don't have much else to enjoy. Just think how many things the up per crust have to distract their minds from the comforts of religion. There are the shows an theaters and sewing societies and the parties and baggy it les and bieveles and shopping and fashion mag zines and roing to the sprines and visiting and receiving visits nesides the domestic affairs of putting up jelly and jam and pickles and preserves. The old weed and pickles and preserves. The old weed harder has none of these things, but he does have a few texts of Scripture that are worth them all and more, too. The meck shall inherit the earth and the poor in spirit the singdom of heaven, and if there is anything else to inherit

I don't know it.

Posts, philosophers and rich men have all testified to the vanity of riches and yet ev ry raced of them wants more than they have got. And so do I. Sem: of us are fools enough to Is here that we want money to do good with and help other people. There are a few rich men of that kind, but they are rare. There are still left here and there at lonely distances a Peter Cooper or Peabo by or George W. See the their money. Carnegie and Rockfeller giv a slice occasionally, but they hold fast to a size of asionary, out they not last to the lig end of the rope and he p on piling up. The New York World sent out inquiries not long ago to all of the millionaries to know whether or not great riches brought happiness. Carnegie said: "Wealth brings happiness only when the possessor teeds the hungry, clother the nuked, endows institutions of learning founds hospitals and does other countless good Reckfellersaid: "Wealth does not bring hop piteer, for on man thinks himself wealthy. No than he is, and that fact makes him feel por Practically, there is no such thing as a r man. Money is like a rawberries and creanoted ever gets enough. Den't you thin you have had enough, Ethelf said her au t. I may think so audie, but I don't fell so, suil E bel. No, the feel is that great wealth rogs unhappines."

Russ II Sa e said: "Riches are all vanity and v x tion of spirit. Few people have any id a of the trouble and inc aveni nees that wealth brings. The rich never ask such a fooli h question as 'does wealth bring happines-?' A rich man is constantly in the public 'y'. Prevey is impossible for him. The public is extra rious even to know how be opens his letters and puts on his shoes and what he has for break-fas. An incounite is impossible. No, riches do not bring happiness ner contentment."

Russell A. Alger says: "Men are no happier when rich than when p or. A millionaire is no happier when driving a $50,000 horse than a clerk who gets only $15 a week and is out driving a livery stable horse on Sunday evenings with his best girl by his side."

John W. Mackay said: "I am surprised that any one would for a moment think that riches brought happiness. I was happier during my carly struggles with poverty than I have ever ten since. I enjoyed the toil, privation and hardship I endured to win wealth. When swin.ing pick and shovel as a miner I was as happy as I ever can be."

Levi P. Morton said: "When I was a poor Levi P. Morton asid "When I was a poor young man of twenty years, clerking in a connerty store I used to think that if I ever got to be wor'h $100,000 I should be the happiest man al ve. Now I am worth that and more, but feel that I am no happier than in my poorer days."

George W. Pullman said: "I am certainly no happier than when I had not a dollar that I ou'd call my own save that for which I worked toon morn till night. I can wear but one suit of clothes. I are three square meals a day then and can eat no more now. Then I had no re-sponsibilities and could go to sleep when my head touched the pillow. Now that I have vast int rests and business cares restin; upon me, I cannot sleep like I did then. I was happier then that I am now."

And many others answered on the same line.

Now the question comes up why don't they lighten the load? If the surplus brings care and trouble, why don't they stop trying to make it bigge? Why not divide out the responsibility? I know lots of men who would help to carry the load. In fact, I would volun-teer my own services. I don't understand why these men all write one way and do another way. But maybe it is the force of habit—like the poor fellow who had staid in fad so long he wouldent come out when his time had expired. We all like to see a man succeed in his busines, but we like him still more if he becomes his own executor and does not hold on to his riches own executor and does not hold on to his riches until grim death has to prize his hand open to make h m let go. It seems to me there would be great reward in helping the unfortuna's. Some men say that powerty and misfortune come from bad conduct and had management. Well, it does as a general rain, but the called a many exp pions that it can hardly be called a rule. Good luck has made many a man rich to the thinks it was his smartness. And had luck has made many a one poor. The Germans have a word for an unlucky man that we have no equivalent for. They cold him a schlemiel—that is a person who never prospers, with whom everything goes wrong, misfortone has marked him—bad inck follows him. Yet, as though providence had pity on him, the schlemiel is all ays good manufel and light-hearted. A smile dimments his fees, introduced hearted. A smile illuminates his face, just such a smile as our wood hater wears. I recken he is a schlemiel. But the good Lord shapes the back to the burden. The German schlemiel is con-

to the burden. The German schlemiel is conscious of his misfortune and will say with a mere to be ended.

There we shall march up the heavenly street And ground our arms at Jesus's feet.

holes crawl the turtles. Dick Carr, of Ashland, is the champion turtle catcher. With two assistants, in a very light skiff, Carr hunts for them. He wades about, and with a long, sharp oak stick prods the mud and searches the banks for muskrat holes. When a turtle is found in the mad it is pried out and placed on its back on the creek bank. Whenever a rat-hole is discovered Carr thrusts his arm into it as far as he can and rarely fails to find a turtle.

Last week he caught 118 turtles in four days, eight being found in one rat hole. The turtles are brought to Ashland, and sold as ordered to local saloons, hotels and restaurants, and many are shipped to Cincinnati, Pittsburg and all the small cities along the Ohio. Several others beside Carr catch turtles for a living, but he is the boss of the business. In almost every yard up East Fork the natives have from one to a dozen turtles penned up Catching turtles is tiresome work. Carr always works with bare hands, but most of the hunters use a heavy glove to protect them from the sharp edges of the turtle's shell and the visious teeth of the easily angered muskrats. The average weight of these trock water terrapins is about five yourds, but quite a number weighing twenty pounds are bagged, and once in a while a twentyfive-pounder delights the fisher. An Interesting Family. When Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Coleman called the roll at their breakfast table the other morning, they saw twenty smiling faces, the family having been doubled by the marriage of the pair the day before. Mr. Coleman, who is Chairman of the town of Eaton, Brown County, Wisconsin, is a widower with ten children. He married Mrs. Dennis Fitzgerald, a widow with ten children. The ceremony was observed at the Roman Catholic Church, in the village of Humboldt, and the children of the happy pair, all of whom were present, occupied the entire front row of seats. - Chicago Times-Herald.

Never before were turiles so numerons, fat and large in the tributaries on the south side of the Big Sandy, in Kentucky, as this year. It is an uuexplained fact that while turtles abound in the streams on the lower side of Big Sandy, very few are ever found on the upper side. The theory a lyanced is that the multiplicity of muskrats in the lower streams accounts for the turtles. East Fork is the best fishing ground in the State for turtles, and the stream is alive with muskrats. These creatures dig a hole in the creek bank below the water's surface, but turn the entrance up so that the rooms in which they live are dry. Into these

The Latest in Soap Bubbles,

Make a fluid in this way: Get a cake of palm oil soap, shave its par-ings as thin as possible and drop in a big bottle filled with distilled water. Shake the mixture very vigorously, then filter through gray filtering paper and mix the remaining fluid with one-third of its bulk of pure glycerine. Before using shake well. Get a small glass funnel about two inches in diameter, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, connect it with a tube of India rubber, and you can blow bubbles with this apparatus that will surpass the rainbow itself in brilliancy and beauty. Yes, there is a lot of trouble in getting your scientific ripe and liquid ready, but think of the sport in the end. Just imagine a bubble twelve inches across! You can blow them in this way by putting them upon a big iron ring-very carefully, of course-while the metal is wet with the prepared solution. Get a ring that is quite rusty—that assures a good result. A string of bubbles two or three inches in diameter can be kept intact for ten or twelve hours. M. Izern has communicated to the Academy of Sciences a new method for obtaining soap bubbles lasting a much longer time than those obtained from the soap water generally used. He has recourse to a resinous soap made by the following formula: Pulverize together ten grammes of pure resin and ten parts of carbonate of potash; add 100 parts of water and boil until complete solution; we obtain in this way a thick solution, which may be kept in stock to be diluted for use with from four to five times its volume of water. It can be kept indefinitely, even when exposed to the air. The bubbles produced are very persistent, and, consequently, can be made useful in the study of the phenomena relating to thin laminae and in making photographs in which soap bubbles play a part.

Write Cheeral Letters,

The popular woman does not write doleful le ters; she waits till she is in a better 'rame of mind before beginning them, for she realizes that there are burdens enough in life without adding to them by inflicting pessimistie epistles on her friends.

If she writes a letter of condolence it seems to come from the heart, for if it does not sound that way she will not let its coldness further grieve a bereaved one; and if she sends congratulations to a bride or a mother she makes a point of recollecting or looking up some rousing good wishes that have the ring of genuine inter-
