"RICHMOND, Va., July 18 - From an old lady living in Southampton county, Va., the scene of the awful Nat Turner negro insurrection of August, 1831, a copy of the confession made by Turner has been | obtained. The insurrection was direction, the most horrible of its kind in the country. Fifty-five whites, half him to return home late in the of them children, and many babes, were hacked to pieces with axes, while they slept, by the murderous negroes, who went from farm house to farm house on their mission of Prompted by the above, Uncle for morality. Bartlett tells us the following interesting bit of early Burke county history He says: "In the year 4831, when I was a boy, a negro man named "Fed" came from Virginia to the Brindletown gold mines. Here he began fomenting discontent among the slaves working the mines, and began organizing an outbreak. He succeeded so and each negro instructed about what to do and the very day was set. The plan was, to send a negro up on Pilot Mountain, near where Capt. Mills now lives, about 3 o'clock in the morning where he would blow a bugle loudly. This could be heard for miles around and as the negroes would be on the alert, the signal would start them on their work of death, massacreing white men, women and children in their very beds, with axes, knives, sticks, rocks etc.' Two days before this night of staughter, a negro man belonging to Col. Carson of McDowell, gave the plot away and the leaders, except the prime mover, "Fed" escaped. The bugle was never blown to start a hundred crazed negroes on an errand of death, and so the outbreak was quelied and things ran on peacefully at the mines. John E. Butler would not allow the mine bugle to be blown for a month for fear some of the ignorant negroes would hear it and think the uprising was really to take place. The negro who told of the plot was given his freedom weak stomachs. and $100 in gold. This is a peenliarly interesting part of Burke county history and a part with which very few are familiar. My flesh was wasted away so, that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in ponlitices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three menths, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year. I was cured. My weight has increased year, I was cured.
