BATS, BEES AND WOMEN PHY-LOSOPHICALLY DISCUSSED.

William Wishes He Were a Naturalist Gen. Young's Crazy Quilt.

Last night while we were all quietly reading my wife looked up and remarked: 'There is a last in the room.' A long time ago she used to jump up with alarmy and go into another room and wait till I got the little varmint out, but auto domini takes the scarc out of a wobut amb domini takes the scare out of a woman as well as a man, and so now she keeps her wife said, "you had better get the broom and knock it down, but don't you knock it this way." I noticed that she had put The Sunny, had overred up all but their eyes. Carefully

I mounted a chair and begran to sweep for the

The bat is the inissing link, said I as I gave another stroke. "Seems to be," said my sife. "You miss it every time." "It is not an amphabious animal, "said I, "but very ambiguous," said she. "It is chiropterous and vespertilio." said I as I made another lunge and the chair careened and let ms down easy. Pausing a while to get breath, I remarked that those big words of Linneus meant having handayd flows and company at its likely. and fingers and coming out at twilight. "Well, do please get the thing out of hero-and you can tell madout it afterwards," said my saife. The next effort was an accidental success. The hat was knocked down and swept cut. Then I got the cyclopacitia and discovered from it how the bat were bird that had no eyes but says bird that soons and archited no eggs, but gave birth to its young and suckled them—how it had bands and feet and fingers and toes and even finger rails and toe nails how it had teeth, canines and molars; how it was not blind but had little tiny eyes hid in the halv, eyes that cannot bear the light an are entirely closed when flyin, around a lighter room. I user experimented with them are put their eyes out and they could still fly around and never ten h a wall or a ceiling. He said was nating to their exquisite sense of touch and of smell and hearing. The ancients said the bat had a sixth sense by which they could avoid collision with walls and so forth, but Cu ir did not think so. They are a very ancient little animal and I recton had a place some aftere in Noah's ark, but we don't know whether e put them with the birds or the bugs. Moses to put them with the birds or the bugs. Moses declared them unclean and classed them with owls and vultures. It seems to us that it is a poor, miscrable life they live, but I rection they roley it, especially when they come in the louise and alarm the women and children. They have a unique and louely place in creation, there being but two or three kinds, and they never cross or mix and have no society. They have the miniature batels and feet of human beings, the ise th of a dog and wings to fly like a bird. Even Darwin could not tell whether hey evoluted backward or forward. heyevoluted buckward or forward.

I wish that I was a naturalist. It is an ever-ting invistery to study these little creatures ill around us. How a fly can so swiftly glide-quenths window pass, what larguage the ants use as they pass and repass one another as they go and come from their hidden nests. I watch herm on the poles in the trells and they mixed go and come from their indien nests. I wa'ch them on the poles in the trells and they never fail to pause for an instant and say something and quickly passe en. Maybe it is "Howdy, or 'Are all well? or 'I am glad to see you we my love to the children." That ther say emething there is no deads. Then there are the lightning buys that would be a great wonder if they were not so common. Did you ever observe that they never lighten except to rise ligher in the air? They make no descending light, and so it is evident that the light they make is not to see by, but to propel them upwards. It is an electric power—a force without heat—and our scient's simplification and maly ze the westerful little chemical machine that lies hidden in its tail. It is a power as well as a light. My friend Bussey, the beam of Marietta, says be tried diligently to cross lightning buys with his bees so that the cross could see how to work in the dark, but he failed. I have great respect for Linners and Curier and Andolon and Agassiz, who have left us such a tressury of knowedge that they cathered from a term. and Cuvier and Andolson and Agassiz, who have left as such a treasury of knowedge that they gathered from nature. It does seem that providence raises up such men with a kind nurpose and gives them a key to unlock His storelouse. Every once in a great while a great man comes up to minster to our pleasure, our learning or our comfort. Thus knowledge becomes diffused and the world becomes whereand better. If man is the best finder verman is the best finder verman is the best diffuser of knowledge. I contempated them yesterday as they worked in a crez quilt at my hence. Perhaps he may wear it on reception days like a Roman toga or a Spanish mastella. At any rate, these good women have been as erazy as the qu'll, and all for the sake of the brathen Coinese, who are killiep up our missionaries. I hope it will be invested in powder. I never saw the like. The harder the times the harder do the women beg for movey for some charitable or church work. OUR MINERAL PRODUCTS.

Big Figures Showing the Activity in American Mines in 1885-'94.

The Geological Survey has compiled a intercent of the mineral products of the United States, covering the calendar years of 1985 to 1994. The largest production of pig iron was in 1800, when it was 9,302,703 long tons, valued at $151,200,410. The prolong tone, valued at $151,200,410. The product in ISSI was 6,657,388 lone, valued at $155,007,247. The largest production of silver was in ISSI, when 64,500,000 troy ounces were reported, of a coming value of $82,009,150. In ISSI the figures were 42,501,122 comes, valued at $64,000,000. The largest production of gold was in ISSI, when 1,210,816 tray onness were reported, with a coming value of $29,500,000.

The next largest was in ISSI, when the product was 1,881,250 tray onness, valued at $25,000,000. In ISSI the number of tray ounces was below that in ISSI by 142,160 tray ounces, but the value was greater by $122,000. Aluminum shows that the largest increase of all the metals reported, having there from $25 ounces in ISSI, valued at $2,500 to 500,000 curses in ISSI, valued at $2,500 to 500 curses not appear until ISOI, when sin to 520,000 comes in 1894, valued at $316,289. The does not appear until 1891, when 125,259 pounds were reported, valued at $25,058. A shight increase in the product and value is shown in 1892, a decrease in 1893, and none is reported in 1894.

The biturdineous coal product was largest in 1893, being 128,385,231 long tons. The product in 1894 fell off nearly 10,000,000 lons. Authoritie coal also had the largest output in 1893, being 48,185,366 long tons, valued at $85,887,078. In 1894 the product was 46,358,144 long tons, valued at $78,488, 064. The production of berax was largest in 1894, being $14,689,130 pounds, valued at $974,445.

The largest value of metallic products of all kinds was reached in 1992, when it was $307,716,200. The same year showed the largest value of non-metallic minerals of all kinds, the amount being $339,980,715. The corresponding figures for 1804 were $218,-168,788 and $308,186,774.

Cotton Statistics for the Week.

The Laverpool weekly cotton statistics are is follows: Sales, total 69,000; sales Ameri. an 56,000; trade takings 46,000; actual exports 9,000; import total 12,000; import American 6,000; stock total 1,186,000; stock, American 1,056,000; affoat, total 23,000 affoat, American 14,000; sales for speculation 3,800; purchases for export 4,100.

Many of the London clubs are very tich and possessed of much property in the shape of real estate and scrips. The Carlton has just invested $40,000 in causols. The Carlton is the only club in London which includes among its its items of expenditure pew rents - 850 per annum.

"OPEN WINDOWS."

THE THEMF OF DR. TALMAGE On Sunday. Open Your Windows Toward God and Religion.

Text: "His windows being open in his chamber toward Jeruvalen." — Daniel vi., 12.

The scoundrelly princes of Petsia, urged on by political jealousy against Deniel, have succeeded in getting a law passed that whosever prayets Goodshall be put under the paws and teeth of the hous who are lashing themselves in rage and hunger up and down the stone cane or putting their lower jaws on the ground, bellowing till the earth trembles. But the Fontine threat did not hinder the devotions of Paulel, the Court de Léon of the ages. His enemies might as well have a law that the sunth wind should not sweep across a garden of magnolies, or that God should be abelished. They could not save him with the red hot furnoess, and they cannot now scare him with the lions. As soon as Daniel hears of this enectment he leaves his officer of secrewith the flores. A soon as Daniel hears of this enactment he leaves his office of secre-tary of state, with its upholstery of crimson and gold, and comes down the white marble steps and goes to bis own house. He opens his window and puts the sintters back and pulls the curtain aside so that he can look toward the sacred city of Jerusalem and then arrays.

I suppose the people in the street gathered under and before his window and said: "Just see that man defying the law. He cught to be arrested." And the constabulary of the city rush to the police headquarters and report that Daniel is on his knees at the wide open window. "You are my prisoner," says the officer of the law, dropping a heavy hand on the shoulder of the kneeling Daniel. As the constables open the door of the cavern to thrust in their prisoner they see the glaring eyes of the monsters. But Daniel becomes the first bon tamer, and they lick his hand and fawn at his feet, and that night he sleeps with the shaggy mane of a wild beast for his pillow, while the king that night, sleepless in the palace, has on him the paw and teeth of a lion he cannot tame—the lion of a remosseful conscience.

Darius in the early dwale of a wild a light of the cannot have the lion of a remosseful conscience.

barius in the early dusk of morning not waiting for footmen or chariot, histening to the den, all hushed and nervous and in dis-habille, and looking through the crevices of habille, and looking through the creviees of the cage to see what had become of his prime minister. "What, no sound!" he says. "Daniel is surely devoured, and the lions are sleeping after their horrid meal, the bones of the poor man scattered across the floor of the cavern." With trembling volce Darius calls out: "Daniel?" No answer, for the prophet is yet in profound slumber. But a lion more easily awakened, advances, and with hot breath blown through the crevice seems angrily to demand the cause of this interruption, and then enother wild beast lifts his mane from under Daniel's head, and the prophet, waking up, comes forth to re-port himself all unburt and well.

But our text stands us at Daniel's window, port himself all unburt and well.

But our text stands us at Daniel's window, opened toward Jornsalem. Why in that direction open? Jerusalem was his native land, and all the pomp of his Babylchish successes could not make him forget it. He came there from Jerusalem at eighteen years of age, and he never visited it, though he lived to be eightly-five years. Yet when he wanted to arouse the deepest emotions and grandest aspirations of his heart he had his window open toward his native Jerusalem. window open toward his native Jerusalon window open toward his native Jerusalem. There are many of you to day who understand that without any expasition. This is getting to be a Nation of foreigners. They have come into all occupations and professions. They sit in all churches. It may be twenty years ago since you got your naturalization papers, and you may be thoroughly Americanized, but you can't forget the land of your birth, and your warmest sympathies go out toward it. Your windows are open toward Jerusalem. Your father and mother are buried there. It may have been a very humble home in which you were born, but your memory often plays around it, and you hope some day ten plays around it, and you hope some day to go and see it—the hill, the tree, the brook, the house, the place so sacred, the door from which you started off with parental blessing to make your own way in the world—and God only knows how sometimes you have longed to see the familiar places of your childhood, and how in a wful crises of life you would like to have eaught a glimpse of the old wrinkled face that bent over yest as you lay on the gentle lap twenty or forty or fifty on the gentle lap twenty or forty or fifty years ago. You may have on this side of the sea risea in fortune, and like Daniel have become great and may have come into prosperities which you never could have reached if you had staid there, and you may have many windows to your house—bay windows and skylight windows and windows of conservatory and windows on all sides—but you have at least one window countries. have at least one window open toward Jeru

When the foreign steamer comes to the wharf, you see the long line of saflers, with what, you see the long line of sallors, with shoulderel mailbags, coming down the planks, carrying as many letters as you might suppose to be enough for a year's correspondence, and this repeated again and again during the week. Multitudes of them are letters from home, and at all the post-offices of the land people will go to the win-dow and anylongly salt for them had a clow and anxiously ask for them, hundreds of thousands of persons fluding that window of foreign mults the open window toward Jerusalem. Messages that say:
"When are you coming home to see us? Brother has gone into the army. Sister is dead. Father and mother are getting very feelds. We are hyving a received. feeble. We are having a great struggle to get on here. Would you advise us to some to you, or will you come to us? All join in to you, or will you come to us? All join in love and hope to me t you, if not in this world, then he a better. Goodby."

Yes, yes. In all these cities pad avaid the flowering Western prairies and on the slopes of the Pacific and amid the Sierras and on the banks of the lagoon and on the ranches of Texas there is an uncolated multiinde who this hour stand and sit and kneel with their windows open loward. Jerusalem. Some of these people played on the heather of the Seatish hills; some of them were driven out by Irish famine; some of them in early life drilled in the German army; some of them were accustomed at Lyons or Marseilles or Paris to see on the street Victor Hugo and Gambetta; some chased the chamois among the Alpine some chased the chamots among the Alpine precipices; some placked the ripe clusters from Italian vineyard; some lifted their faces under the midnight sun of Norway. It is no dishonor to our land that they remember the place of their nativity. Misrreants would they be if, while they have some of their windows open to take in the free air and the sunlight of an atmosphere which no kingly despot has ever breathed, they forgot sometimes to open the window toward Jerusalem.

No wonder that the son of the Swiss, when far away from home, hearing the National air of his country sung, the mainly of homeair of his country sung, the mala ly of home-sickness comes on hir so powerfully as to cause his death. You have the example of heroic Daniel of my text for keeping early memories fresh. Forget not the old folks at home. Write often, and if you have a sur-plus of means and they are poor make prac-tical contribution, and rejeice that America is bound to all the world by ties of sanguinity as in no other Nation. Who can doubt but it is appointed for the evangelization of other lands? What a stirring, melting, gosother lands: What a stirring, melting, gos-pelizing theory that all the doors of other Nations are open toward us, while our win-dows are open toward them!

But Daniel in the text kept this port hole

But Daniel in the text kept this port hole of his domestic fortress unclosed because Jorusalem was the capital of sacred influences. There had smoked the sacrifice. There was the holy of helies. There was the hoty of helies. There was the tark of the covenant. There stood the temple. We are all tempted to keep our windows open on the opposite side toward the world, that we may see and hear and appropriate its advantages. What does the world think? What does the world think? What does the world do? Worshipers of the world instead of worshipers of God, Windows open toward Babylou. Windows open toward Corinth. Windows open toward Corinth. open toward Corintb. Windows open toward Athens. Windows open toward Sodom. Windows open toward the flats instead of windows open toward the hills. Sad mistake this world as a god is like somethine I saw in the museum of Strasburg, Germany the figure of a wegin in wood and iron. The ngure of a virgin in wood and from The virtim in older time was brought there, and this figure would open its arms to receive him, and once enfolded the figure closed with a hundred knives and hun exupen him, and then let him drop 180 feet sheer down. So the world first embraces the idoluters, then closes upon them with many bettere. tion closes upon them with many terfaces, and then lets them drop forever down. The highest honor the world early confer units make a man licinan experient, but out of sally-three empreurs it rib-wed only six to die nearefully in their bods.

The most of our windows open toward the exchange, toward the salon of fashion, toward the god of this world. In olden times the length of the English yard was fixed by the length of the arm of King Henry I., and we are apt to measure things by a variable standard and by the human arm that in the great crises of life can give us no help. We need, like Danielt to open our windows toward God and religion. us no help. We need, like Daniels to our windows toward God and religion.

But, mark you, that good lien tamer is not standing at the window, but kneeling while he looks out. Most photographs are taken of those in standing or sitting posture. I now remember but one picture of a man kneeling, and that was David Livingstone, who in the cause of God and civilization sacrificed blusself, and in the heart of Africa his servant, Majwara, found him in the tent by the light of a caudie stack on the top of by the light of a caudie stack on the top of a box, his head in his hands upon the pil-low and dead so his knees. But here is a great. Hen tamer living under the dash of the light, and his bair dish yelled by the bre-ze, praying. The fact is that a man can see farther on his knees than standing on tiptoe. Jeussalem was about 550 statute helles from Dabyton, and the vast Arabian desert shifted its san's between them. Yet through that open window Dan-iel saw Jefusalem, saw all between it, saw beyond, saw time, saw eternity, saw earth are our windows opened?

We would do well to think more of heaven. It is not a mere annex of earth. It is not a desolate outpost. As Jerusalem was the capital of Judea, and Babylon the capital of the Babylonian monarchy, and London is the capital of Great Britain, and Washington is the capital of our own Republic, the New Jerusalem is the capital of the universe. The King lives there, and the royal family of the redeemed have their palaces there, and there is a congress of many Nations and parliament of all the world. Yen, as Daniel had kindred in Jerusalem of whom he often thought, though he left home when a very young man, perhaps father and mother and brothers and sisters still living, and was homesick to see them, and they belonged to the high circles of royalty, Daniel himself having royal blood in his veins, so we have in the New Jerusa-lem a great many kindred, and we are someiem a great many kindred, and we are some-times homesick to see them, and they are all princes and princesses, in them the blood imperial, and we do well to keep our windows open toward their eternal residence.

It is a joy for us to believe that while we are interested in them they are interested in us. Much thought of heaven makes one heavenly. The airs that blow through that open window are charged with life, and sweep up to us aromas from gardens that never wither, under skies that never cloud, in a spring-tide that never terminates. Com-pared with it all other heavens are dead faildres.

Homer's heaven was an elysium which he describes as a plain at the end of the earth or beneath, with no snow nor rainfall, and he sun never goes down, and Rhadoman thus, the justest of men, rules. Hestod's heaven is what he calls the islands of the blessed, in the midst of the ocean, three times a year blooming with most exquisite flowers, and the air is tinted with purple, while games and music and horse races ocwhile games and music and horse races oc-cupy the time. The Scandinavjan's heaven was the hall of Walhalla, where the god Odin gave unending wine suppers to earthly heres and heroines. The Mohammedan's heaven passes its disciples in over the bridge Al-Strat, which is finer than a hair and sharper than a sword, and then they are let loose into a riot of everlasting sensuality.

The American aborigines look forward to a heaven of illimitable hunting ground, partridge and deer and wild duck more than plentiful, and the hounds never off the scent, and the guns never missing fire. But the geographer has followed the earth round and found no Homer's elysium. Voya-gers have traversed the deep in all direc-tions and found no Heslod's islands of the blessed. The Mohammedan's celestial debauchery and the Indian's eternal hunting ground for vast multitudes have no charm. But here rolls in the Bible heaven. No more sea—that is, no wide separation. No more night—that is, no insomnia. No more tears—that is, no more heartbreak. No more pain-that is, dismissal of break. No more pain—that is, dismissal of lancet and bitter draft and miasma and bandshment of neuralgias and catalepsies and consumotions. All colors in the wall except gloomy black. All the music in the major key because colebrative and jubilant.

River crystalline, gate crystalline and skies crystalline because everything is clear and without doubt. White robes, and that means subsaness. Valis full of odors, and that means pure regalement of the senses. Rainbow, and that means the storm is over. Marriage supper, and that means gladdest festivity. Twelve manner of fruits, and that means luscious and unending variety. Harp, ftrumpet, grand march, authem, amen and halieluiah in the same crchestra. Chorai meeting solo, and overture meeting antiphon, and strophe joining dithyramb, as they roll into the ocean of doxologies. And you and I have all that, and have it forever through Christ if we will let Him with the blood of one wounded hand rub out our sin, and with the other wounded hand swing open the shining portals.

Day and night keep your window open foward that Jerusalem. Sing about it. Pray about it. Think about it. Talk about it. Dream about it. Bo not be inconsolable about your friends who have gone into it. Do not worry if something in your heart indicates that you are not far off from its estassies. Do not think that when a Christian dies he stops, for he goes on.

An ingenious man has taken the heavenly furlongs as mentioned in Revelation and ha calculated that there will be in heaven 10, 100ms sixteen feet square for each ascending soul, though this world should lose 100,000, 000 yearly. But all the rooms of heaven will be ours, for they are family rooms, and as no room in your house is too good for your children, so all the rooms of all the palaces of the heavenly Jerusalem will be free to God's children, and even the throngroom will not be denied, and you may run up the steps of the turner, and put your hand on the side of the throne, and sid down beside the King accordant to the prone. "To him the other processing the control of the prones."

Many years ago the Turks and Christians were in battle, and the Christians were defeated, and with their commander Stephen fled toward a fortress where the mother of fiel toward a fortress where the mother of this commander was staying. When she saw her son and his army in disgraceful retreat, she had the gates of the fortress rolled shut, and then from the top of the battlement cried out to her son, "You cannot enter here except as conqueror." Then Stephen rallied his forces and resumed the battle and gained the day, 20 000 driving back 20 1,000. For those who are defeated in battle with sin and death and hell nothing but shame and contempt, but for those who gain the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ the gates of the New Jerusalem will hoist, and there shall be an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord, toward which you do well to keep your windows open.

Chicago's Collapsed Fad.

Material of which John Brown's fort and Abraham Lincoln's log cabin were made is now stacked up in a couple of barns in Chicago. It is a very good thing indeed that the amusement schemes which were responsible for the moving to this city of the two structures mentioned failed. Neither building should have been moved from the original site, which along gave it interest. After the failure of the several foolish plans of this sort originated before the World's Fair there is reason to hope that speculators have quite lost their zeal for making sideshows of the historic buildings. - Chicago Evening Post.

A Pretty Experiment.

A cork that is longer than it is broad floats upon its stomach, so to speak; how can we make it float upon its head?

Place one on end upon a table an I around it place six others. Soize them all together and plauge them under water, so as to moisten them completely. Then remove your hand and let them take their own position in the water, when you will find that they will stand upright, as if supporting one another. This is because the water that penetrates the corks by capillarity will make them cling to gether. - Philadelphia Times.
