MARION, N. C., APRIL 28, 1910. SNOW CRYSTALS.

They Invariably Conform to the Rule of Six.

What magic is there in the rule of six that compels the snowflake to conform so rigidly to its laws? Here is a gem bestrewn realm of nature possessing the charm of mystery, of the unknown, sure to reward the investigator.

Much wonder has been excited because the snow crystals exhibit such a bewildering diversity and beauty. They form within a very thin aqueous solvent, the air, and this allows the molecules of water an unexampled freedom of motion and adjustment while arranging themselves in crystal form.

The fact doubtless largely explains why the crystals of snow far exceed other crystals in complexity and symmetry. Snow crystals, like all crystals of water, develop under the hexagonal system, and invariably divide into six. Nothing absolutely certain is known as to why they grow thus except as it is assumed the number and arrangement of the attractive and repellent poles possessed by the molecules of water impose this habit of growth on them.

This dividing into six is necessarily discussed and best explained in somewhat technical sounding terms. We may assume each water particle or molecule possesses two opposite primary poles, positive and negative, corresponding in direction with the main tabular axis of the crystals, and in addition three or six equidistant secondary poles arranged around what may be called the equatorial diameters of the molecules. Water, being a diamagnetic substance and susceptible to polar repulsion, presumably has a tendency to arrange itself thus in a position between and at right angles to the primary electromagnetic poles.

This alignment of the lines of growth opposite to the lines of greater magnetic force would compel the crystals of snow to grow mainly outward in the directions of their equatorial diameters and secondary poles. This theory would perhaps best explain why the crystals grow upon thin tabular or in the hollow columnar form and increase so little in the directions of their main axes—that is, in the direction in which it is assumed, their main position and negative poles lie.—Technical World Magazine.

A PATHETIC DUEL.

Bad Sequel to a Meeting in the Days When Middle Fought.

One of the most pathetic duels in the early history of the American navy was that between two young midshipmen whose names are not given in the record, according to a recent writer. Their ship was in the Malayan waters. One hot night they quarreled over the question of leaving open the scuttle. The dispute was finally settled amicably by the exchange of cuts. A superior officer who had overheard their heated words made it plain to one of the midshipmen that he would have to "call out" his friend if he wished to retain the respect of his friends.

To avoid ostracism and to conform to the standard of honor imposed by his superiors the unwilling midshipman challenged.

The meeting occurred on the seashore. He wrote of it afterward as follows: "Upon the signal we both fired. I found myself wounded and was about to lean upon my second's arm when I perceived my opponent fall upon the sand. My own wound was in the fleshy part of the thigh. It did not prevent my running to the prostrate figure of my old friend, whose face exhibited intense pain, and, kneeling down by his side, I implored his forgiveness, which he instantly granted."

"My despair at his fate knew no bounds, and, accusing myself of his murder, I upbraided with the bitterest reproaches those who had urged me to send the challenge. For weeks after his cut was attended by his late opponent, whose greatest joy was to anticipate his wants."

The wounded youth recovered, but had a withered arm, and, leaving the service, died of a broken heart.

America. It was an Englishman who after traveling from New York to St. Louis was asked in the latter city if he was going west. "Heavens, what a country! Here I am, a thousand miles from the sea, and I'm asked if I'm going west!"

It was an American who, alighting in San Francisco from a trip across the continent which had been impeded by heavy traffic, grasped his friend's hand at the station and exclaimed with pride, "What an empire, where a man, though moving all the time, can in twenty-four hours late on a railroad train!" It is an empire and powerful west.—Washington Star.

Charles Reade's Mistake. "It was Charles Reade, wasn't it, who wrote, 'Nothing is so terrible as a wife?'"

Yes, but he was wrong. I live next door to a newly married couple. If Charles could see them he would at once admit that two fools are even more terrible.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not Peculiar. "I see a notice in the paper of a wedding of Mrs. Nubrid. 'Jesse'—I know her very well. 'Tess'—what was her maiden name? I suppose her maiden aim was to get married.—Philadelphia Press.

It is very much easier for a bad man to become notorious than for a good one to become famous.—Atlanta Journal.

Tell Your Neighbors. "In need of a cough medicine to Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. It is the Lock for the bell on the bottle."

Master of House Not In.

"Is the master of the house in?" inquired the smooth-tongued book agent of a little boy who had answered his ring.

"Nope," said the boy. "Little boys should not tell falsehoods," said the book-agent. "Isn't that your father reading the newspaper there by the window?"

"Yep," was the answer, "that's pa all right, but ma is out."

Every Bottle Is Guaranteed

Every bottle of Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey is guaranteed to give satisfaction in all throat and bronchial troubles.

Nearly all the watch signs, probably 90 out of 100, have the hands set at 8:18, but comparatively few people know why this is. It is no accident. W. K. Washburn, of New York, was painting a sign for a jeweler of that city when the news of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, April 14, 1865, was received in New York and the latter ordered the painter to put upon the dial the hands at the exact time when the fatal shot was fired, namely 8:18, and so they have continued ever since. Whenever you see a sign after this, recall the fact that it points to the fatal moment.

Worse Than Bullets. Bullets have often caused less suffering to soldiers than the eczema. L. W. Harriman, Burlington, Me., got in the army, and suffered with forty years. "But Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me when all else failed," he writes. Great healer of Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Burns, Cuts, Wounds, Bruises and Piles. 25c at J. W. Streetman.

After all it is the producing power of the farm that determines the boy in his going or staying. Show him that there's money in it, and he will stick to the old farm like a sand-bur to a sheep's tail.

The Call of the Blood for purification, finds voice in pimples, boils, sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, mottled patches and blotches on the skin—all signs of liver trouble. Dr. J. Y. Joyner says he was impressed while attending the southern educational conference at Little Rock, Ark., and that while North Carolina has been setting the pace for her sister states in many educational matters for a number of years, there is imperative necessity for a material quickening of activities along many lines if this lead is to be maintained. The reports from southern states made at this conference made wonderful showings of progress and thrust home the fact that North Carolina is not the only pebble on the beach. He says the conference was wonderfully successful in every way.

WHAT THE KIDNEY DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy. All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

A. A. Craig, merchant, Cottage Ave., Lenoir, N. C., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am well pleased with the results. I suffered for some time from a dull pain across my kidneys and a feeling of languor and depression. I finally learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and was so much impressed that I procured a box and began their use. I felt a great deal better in a short time. I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a reliable remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Taking One's Own Pulse

Being able to "take" one's own pulse is a doubtful accomplishment, because the heart has some peculiarities the importance of which are sure to be overestimated except by physicians and such individuals occasioned in consequence. Irregularity of the pulse is natural to the small number of people without other signs of disease. It may also be simply a transient symptom, due to errors of habit or other causes which disappearing, leave no trace behind them.
