A HISTORICAL SKETCH

Of the 22nd N. C. Regiment During the Civil War by an Old Veteran.

After the battle of Shepherdstown Lee's army went up the valley to rest and recuperate from its long campaign. During this period of two months we had no change of clothing and a great many were barefooted. A great many desertions took place from the Confederate ranks.

After being in camp for some time and having recruited up our ranks very much from returned soldiers, we began our march up the valley of Virginia, not knowing our destination. At Mount Jackson we crossed the Blue Ridge mountains at Miriams Gap and proceeded down by Madison Court House some time in December. Many of the soldiers were barefooted and fresh beef hides were given them to make moccasin out of. Snow was on the ground and it was very cold. The soldiers could not march much with such a covering for footwear, and the moccasins soon become in such condition that they could not be worn at all.

In this condition we were called upon to go into the battle of Fredericksburg December 13th. The Federal army had thrown pontoons across the Rappahannock river and had crossed over in large numbers. Our portion of the line was in the rear of the Taylor House. The battalions here were about two miles wide. The railroad ran between us and the Federal line. The second day after being in line here the battle opened for us. Our advance line was in the railroad cut several hundred yards in advance of our line, which was at the foot of the hill. We were exposed to shell fire of the Federals on both sides of the river.

Major Cole was in command of the skirmish line in front of Penders brigade. In the afternoon as the fight was progressing Company A and Company M was ordered to reinforce the advance line, which we did at once. We had barely gotten into position when our line was charged by the Federals and broken. The Federal line occupied the railroad cut and some of our men fell back to the woods where the main line was stationed. Some fell back to a small branch a short distance away while others simply lay down in the railroad cut while the Federals fired at our men as they retreated to the woods. In a short while a new Confederate line was advanced and charged the Federal line. When they reached the branch all Confederates were ordered into line and the Federal line was broken and retreated, the Confederates pursuing some distance. Then we met a new Federal line advancing. We fired into them awhile and fell back into the railroad cut, and this closed the day for us. Our loss was considerable. That night the Federals fell back across the river, and thus closed the battle of Fredericksburg for us.

We went into camp about twelve miles below Fredericksburg on the Rappahannock river at Camp Grepp, named in honor of General Grepp of South Carolina, who commanded one of the brigades of our division. Our camp was near Moss Neck, or Port Royal. Here we were in camp all winter, doing camp duty and recruiting our much depleted ranks. We had some snowball battles with our South Carolina boys which were quite exciting. Here we lost our gallant Colonel Robert H. Gray. He was much loved by his soldiers both for his gallantry and unusual kindness. James Conner was still our colonel but was incapacitated from duty by wounds. Major Cole was advanced to lieutenant-colonel and Captain Laburn Odell to major.

The first gold mine ever discovered in America was in Cabarrus county, this State. This was about 1820. In 1820 a man found a 28-pound gold nugget on his farm in Cabarrus county. Until gold was found in California, this was the largest nugget in the world. Because of its peculiar color, he for years kept it for a door block. One day a man asked him what he would take for it, and he said $3.50. Whereupon the man bought it.—Lincoln Times.

Slim Chance For Her.

A missionary who was making his way through a backwoods region came upon an old woman sitting outside a cabin. He entered upon a religious talk and finally asked her if she didn't know there was a day of judgment coming.

"Why, no," said the old lady. "I hadn't heered o' that. Won't there be more'n one day?"

"No, my friend; only one day," was the reply.

"Well, then," she mused, "I don't reckon I can get to go, we're only got one mule and John always has to go everywhere first."—from Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

Accused of Stealing

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accused Buckle's Arnica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—he distracts from boils or piles. It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror. He says "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25c at J. W. Streetman's.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Completely Cured Our Little Boy of Fits."

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health.

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy who was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 10 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and one specialist but all of them said he could not be cured, but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now hale, hearty and gay. It has been three years since he had the last spell. I shall give Dr. Miles' medicines praise wherever I go. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit and anyone writing to me I will gladly answer if they enclose stamp for reply."
