

For Winter Colds

You need a real tonic. Strength is required to overcome the trouble. Let that tonic be one that is especially valuable in catarrhal conditions, and you can conquer the cold. A cold is acute catarrh; it may become chronic. Chronic catarrh frequently becomes systemic, involving the stomach and the intestinal tract as well as the nose or throat. It means stagnation.

Walking With God.

Monroe Journal.

The Journal has more than once been tripped up on its Scripture quotations. However, it generally hits the sentiment if not the letter of the quotation. Somewhere in what Uncle Oliver Rogers always referred to reverently as "The Book" something is said about walking with God. It sounds all right to speak of the patriarchs as having walked with God, but can a modern man, right in this day and time, walk with God? We believe he can, and here is our idea of it:

Thirty odd years ago a man moved into a certain neighborhood in Union county, and twenty years ago he moved to the same farm on which he lives today. He is a "renter" and owns no land except his prospective six feet in God's acre. All these years he has lived on this same farm and paid his rent in good years and in bad. The only contract he has with the owner of the farm is: "If you ever want to leave it let me know, and if I ever want you to leave I'll let you know." Though the land is rough he does not move out because he loves his neighbors and they love him and he is satisfied on that score, for he believes in neighbors and the loving kindness of neighborliness. He is now sixty-four years old, and as he has always done, he goes to the aid of every neighbor who gets sick or otherwise needs him. When the time comes for him to go to church he goes, even if he has to leave company at home. When there is a working at a neighbor's house he is there for a full day and not just before dinner time. Years ago he was a school committeeman when the district needed a school house. A day was set in which to begin cutting lumber for the building. He was there with but one other man to help. The other man said they had as well go home. "No," said he, "this school house is going to be built if you and I have to do it all alone." They went to work, and before the week was out they had plenty of help and before the house was completed one godly man who has since gone to heaven, put his hand on this man's shoulder and said, "you've done enough; we'll finish it." After a while a church was needed and it was the same thing over, the same good man coming to his aid and again saying, "you've done enough, let us finish it." Both church and school stand today as blessings to the community. Many years ago a man said to him, "When I die I want you to put me away," and he promised. He waited fifteen years to fulfill that promise, but by and by the time came and it was fulfilled. Others have made the same request of him. He has never had a cross word with a neighbor and he is perfectly happy, for his philosophy is that a good man ought to be happy on earth in anticipation of a still happier hereafter. He believes that if he does his part God is going to take care of him right straight through and he has no worries. Walking with God?

Sure he is, and when the time comes he will simply take hold of God's hand and step over into the other world as naturally as if nothing had happened.

Is there any objection to our definition?
