Mrs. A. H. Giles Dies Suddenly.

Mrs. Clara Louisa Giles, wife of Mr. A. H. Giles, of Marion, died suddenly of heart failure at her home on Main street Wednesday morning of last week.

The funeral services were conducted at the home on Thursday afternoon by her pastor, Rev. W. L. Hutchins, assisted by Rev. J. C. Story, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Parker Holmes, presiding elder of the Marion district. A large number of friends attended the funeral and accompanied the remains to the grave side in Oak Grove cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, coming from different sections of the State.

Mrs. Giles is survived by her husband and five children: Isaac V., assistant professor in chemistry at the University of North Carolina; Miss Ruby, teacher in the Kingston graded schools; Chas. H., Viola and Brownie, of Marion. Mrs. Giles was an ideal wife, a devoted mother, and a neighbor to all. A poem by L. Virginia French typifies her life:

"Buried today, the true and loving mother,
The heart that beat responsive to our own;
We start, we pause, we gaze at one another,
Then wondering, ask: 'Can she indeed be gone?'
Vanished the gentle smile by which she won us,
Ever to duty's path; and must we say,
Of all the love and truth she lavished on us,
We buried it today?"

Buried today, the kind and generous neighbor,
Never forgetful of those counsels sweet
That comfort stricken ones, and with her labor
Smoothed the path for other tired feet;
Aiding through every dark and painful hour,
Soothing with soft and unobtrusive sway;
And must we say of all this gentle power,
We buried it today?"

Buried today the noble hearted woman
Living by that high faith to angels given;
Blending in all her life the truly human
With something less of earth and more of heaven,
Faithful and steadfast in her consecrations
To duty, striving meekly to obey,
And can we say of this grand commendation:
We buried it today?"

Not so, not so! Though sorrowing and lonely,
We comprehend her pure and perfect peace;
We understand the life that served God only,
Looking to Him above for its release;
And when Death's gentle summons to surrender
Was so sweetly answered, let none say,
Of such example—lofty, simple, tender—
We buried it today?"

Not so, not so! When such a lovely story
As that of her sweet life on earth appears
It crowns all womanhood with gentle glory,
And when it fades there is no room for tears.
The good her life has wrought will perish never,
And though the worker may be laid away
To her last rest, the work remains forever.
Nor crumbles with the clay.
