IS YOUR HEALTH GRADUALLY SLIPPING?

Interesting Experience of a Texas Lady Who Declares That if More Women Knew About Cardui They Would Be Spared Much Sickness and Worry.

Navasota, Texas.—Mrs. W. M. Peden, of this place, relates the following interesting account of how she recovered her strength, having realized that she was actually losing her health:

"Health is the greatest thing in the world, and when you feel that gradually slipping away from you, you certainly sit up and take notice. That is what I did some time ago when I found myself in a very nervous, run-down condition of health. I was so tired and felt so lifeless I could hardly go at all.

"I was just no account for work. I would get a bucket of water and would feel so weak I would have to set it down before I felt like I could lift it to the shelf. In this condition, of course, to do even my housework was a task almost impossible to accomplish.

"I was . . . nervous and easily upset.

I couldn't rest well at night and was . . . just lifeless.

"I heard of Cardui and after reading I decided I had some female trouble that was pulling me down. I sent for Cardui and began it . . .

"In a very short while after I began the Cardui Home Treatment I saw an improvement and it wasn't long until I was all right—good appetite, splendid rest, and much stronger so that I easily did my house work.

"Later I took a bottle of Cardui as a tonic. I can recommend Cardui and gladly do so, for if more women knew, it would save a great deal of worry and sickness."

The enthusiastic praise of thousands of other women who have found Cardui helpful should convince you that it is worth trying. All druggists sell it.

MR. COX SCORES

Greensboro News.

Governor Cox has delivered the goods in the matter of the Republican campaign fund, and the Republicans themselves have harbored his point by ill-advised denials. It is beside the point to argue that the men who declared that there were no such quotas as the Democrat announced were acting in good faith—that they did not know that the list of quotas existed. They should have known before they issued their flat denials.

An admission on the part of managers that they had set quotas much higher than they realized, or hoped to realize, would have injured them much less than to be convicted, as they have been convicted, of an attempt to deceive the country as to what they were doing. In his Pittsburgh speech Mr. Cox merely alleged that the Republicans had officially declared their intention of raising $8,000,000 from 51 cities. He has proved that his allegation was substantially correct; but, what is much more important, in the course of the demonstration, he has shown Republicans high in the party councils apparently lending themselves to an effort to mislead the public.

This is a serious matter. If the Republican campaign is a campaign of deception in one particular, how is it to be trusted in any particular? If Chairman Hays didn't know what he was talking about when he denied the existence of the list of quotas, how shall we know when he does know what he is talking about?

Mr. Cox, of course, holds that the matter of the campaign fund is only symptomatic of a campaign utterly untrustworthy. Day before yesterday he made the telling point that every prominent Republican, Lodge reservationist, mild reservationist, pro-league or bitter-ender, who has talked with the Republican candidate, has come away perfectly satisfied with his stand on the league of nations. Now this is a marvel, says Mr. Cox, provided the candidate has told them all the same thing. But he will not be slow to point out that the Republicans were prompt enough to deny his charges in the newspapers, but were forced to admit their truth when put under oath on the witness-stand. If the management saves one thing under one set of conditions, ad the very opposite under another, is it any undue strain on the imagination to suppose that the candidate said one thing to Hiram Johnson about the league of nations, and another to Charles E. Hughes?

The existence of the list of quotas, in itself, was not necessarily any great reproach to the Republican campaign. But the way in which the existence of that list was proved has shaken faith in the integrity of the whole organization; and in that Mr. Cox has scored a point the value of which it is impossible to estimate, but which must be considerable.

THE ONLY HOPE

Current Opinion.

The one hope for civilization, says Gilbert Murray, of Oxford University, is a change of heart, and lacking this, the world order is doomed. "Unless it abstains utterly from war and the causes of war, the next war will destroy it. Unless it can seek earnestly the spirit of brotherhood and sobriety at home, Bolshevism will destroy it."

"Almost every element necessary to success has been put into the hands of those now governing the world except, as an old Stoic would say, the things that we must provide ourselves. We have been given everything except a certain necessary greatness of character. Just at present that seems lacking, at any rate among the rulers of Europe. It may be recovered. We have had it in the past in abundance, and we probably have the material for it even now. If for any reason the great democracies permanently prefer to follow low motives and to be governed by inferior men, it looks as if not the British Empire only but the whole world established by the end of the war and summarized roughly by the League of Nations may pass from history under the same fatal sentence as the great empires of the past, that the world which it ruled hated it and risked all to destroy it."

KEEP IT UP.

One step won't take you very far,
You've got to keep on walking;
One word won't tell folks what you are,
You've got to keep on talking;
One inch won't make you very tall,
You've got to keep on growing;
One little "ad" won't do it all,
You've got to keep 'em going.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
