A Heart to Heart Talk

Now friends if we wanted to keep from you the fact that there have been declines in the market we could not for you read and think for yourselves. There have been declines to the extent of raw material declines. The next decline we feel will not come until the labor that produces the merchandise declines and you nor we expect that soon neither do we want to see it decline as it once was so our honest opinion is that prices will hold for some time yet, anyway we think it strong enough until we are going on the markets and buying our needs.

We are going to pass these declines on to you.
