PASS CLOSET MADE THROUGH REMODELING

Simple Type of Pass Closet.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In remodeling a house in Washington, D. C., it was necessary to make two adjacent bedrooms into the dining room and kitchen. Each of these rooms had a clothes closet about thirty inches deep. Instead of doing away with these closets, one was cut through for a passageway between the remodeled rooms, and the door was placed on the dining room side to balance the position of the closet door already there. The closet on this side was successfully converted into a pass closet at relatively small cost. The wall was removed from the upper part on the kitchen side, and shelves were built at convenient intervals to hold dishes. A half door was placed on the kitchen side, and the former door of the closet, on the dining room side, was cut in half for convenience. The space between the doors and the wall was utilized for a built-in buffet or sideboard. The lower part of the pass closet on the dining room side was used to store the electric toaster, percolator, waffle iron and other articles needed in the dining room but not in the kitchen.

Soiled dishes are passed through the lowest shelf of the upper closet to the kitchen side, where a continuation of the sink drainboard makes a counter for stacking them. The sink is located directly back of the sideboard, so that when the dishes have been washed they are put away without taking any unnecessary steps.

The arrangement described was suggested by a specialist of the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

DO NOT STOOP TO LOOK INTO OVEN

Specialists Stressing Good Posture in Housework.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Those who cook on a gas or electric range or on an oil stove which has its oven set above the burners, do not have to stoop to reach the oven. But the coal or wood range which is so much used in farm homes generally has the oven alongside of the firebox below the level of the top of the stove. The housewife who has a batch of bread, a cake, pie, roast, or anything else in the oven, may find that, because of constantly stooping to watch

Home demonstration agents in Illinois and other states are stressing good posture in doing housework as contributing to the health of the homemaker. They recommend, as a remedy for the tired feeling due to stooping down many times to look into the oven, that the housewife train herself to bend knees, ankles, and hips, but keep her back straight when obliged to look at anything below the usual angle of vision. A little practice—perhaps a few morning "setting-up exercises"—will assure good balance in this position, and if one is careful to think about keeping the back straight, going to the oven will be a beneficial bending rather than a source of fatigue.

Badly Run-Down

"Six years ago, I was very much run-down," says Mrs. Olympia Knight, of Lovett, Ga. "I did not sleep well, and was weak and restless. I dragged around the house with not enough strength to do my daily tasks. I worried a lot, and this disturbed state of mind reacted on my health. "I had often read of Cardui, so I thought I would try it. I soon began to improve after I had taken Cardui for a while. "It was astonishing how much I picked up. I slept better, my appetite improved, and that awful dragging-down feeling left me. "I was so much better that I continued taking Cardui until I felt perfectly well." Cardui has been used by women for over 50 years. For sale by all druggists.
