MOTOR VEHICLE UNIT SAYS 734 DIED ON ROADS

Raleigh—The department of motor vehicles reported today that 734 persons lost their lives on North Carolina's streets and highways in 1948.

This was a decrease of 12 per cent in fatalities over the 836 killed the preceding year. The department said 7,490 persons were injured in 16,218 traffic accidents last year compared with 6,524 injured in 12,511 traffic accidents in 1947.

Charlotte led all cities in fatalities with 14 killed. Fayetteville was second with 8; Raleigh had 7; Winston-Salem 6; and Burlington, Greensboro, and Henderson four each.

Most Dangerous Day

Saturday was the most dangerous day of the week for travel with 3,382—133 of them fatal—reported. Sunday was the second most dangerous while Tuesday was the safest.

A total of 1,178 defective vehicles were involved in all of 1948's accidents, and 35 of them were involved in fatal accidents. Bad brakes were the most widely reported defect.

In 1947, a total of 58 defective vehicles were involved in fatal accidents.

A majority of accidents occurred on straight, level dry roads in clear weather, the report said. Of the 734 persons killed, 110 were children under 14. Eighty-one of the 878 drivers involved in fatal accidents were definitely known to have been drinking.

Highest Fatalities

Wake county was highest in fatalities during 1948 with 20 persons killed as compared with 34 in 1947.

Mecklenburg, Guilford, and Cumberland were next with 28. (During 1947, Mecklenburg had 45 killed; Guilford 19; and Cumberland 37.)

Buncombe was fifth with 24, compared with 32. Forsyth had 21 deaths compared with 23, and Johnston had 20 compared with 13.

Robeson and Rowan each had 10 fatalities during 1948 and Rockingham and Gaston 18 each.

Counties reporting only one traffic death during the year were Alexander, Alleghany, Cherokee, Currituck, Jones, and Yancey.

Seven counties reported no fatalities: Ashe, Avery, Clay, Hoke, Mitchell, Swain, and Tyrell.

Westmoreland-Hawkins Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

JOHN TYERS

John Tyers, baritone, will be featured at the next and last Community Concert of the season at eight o'clock Monday evening.

Born in a little Kansas town, John Tyers was brought up in Los Angeles and graduated from the San Diego State College. Strangely enough, his goal in life was a diplomatic career, but participation in musical events at school revealed his voice, and he was encouraged to come east and enroll at the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

His first professional engagements were at the New York World's Fair and with the St. Louis and Louisville summer companies, as well as the leading role in the Los Angeles Light Opera production of "Gypsy Baron." During the seasons of 1942 and 1943, John Tyers sang the role of Figaro in the streamlined modern version of "The Marriage of Figaro" with the Nine O'Clock Opera Company which, under the auspices of Columbia Artists Management, toured from coast to coast with enormous success.

War interrupted the career of the young baritone, and he served for almost three years. Naturally, his special talents were utilized, and he participated in the eminently successful air force show, "Winged Victory." Later, he toured the entire Pacific theater with another unit.

Returning to civilian life, John Tyers was immediately engaged by the Los Angeles Light Opera Company to sing the leading roles in "Vagabond King" and "Gypsy Lady," the latter of these two works had a successful run on Broadway during the season 46-47. At its close, John Tyers went to England to sing the leading role in the same show produced there under the name of "Romany Life." Last fall and winter, the dashing young baritone re-established himself as a concert favorite on a trans-continental recital tour. This past spring, he assumed the singing lead in the highly successful Lea Billie musical, "Inside U. S. A.," which he left a new phase in his interesting career, his debut in Grand Opera. The famous New York City Center Opera Company engaged him for leading roles in "Eugen Onegin," "The Marriage of Figaro," "Madama Butterfly," and "I Pagliacci."
