Library Notes

BY ALICE BRYAN
County Librarian

Home Demonstration Club Members may borrow books for their Reading Program from the library headquarters at the Community Building in Marion, from Community Bookmobile Stations, or directly from the Bookmobile. Requests may be made to McDowell Public Library, by telephone, by postcard, or by personal visits. The library can supply all titles on the 1949 Home Demonstration Club Reading List.

The following titles are listed on the 1949 Reading List for Home Demonstration Clubs:

"Remembrance Rock" by Carl Sandburg; "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living" by Dale Carnegie; "The Big Fisherman" by Lloyd C. Douglas; "Light in the Windows" by Mary Roberts Rinehart; "Family Circle" by Cornelia Otis Skinner; "It Was Not What I Expected" by Valentine Teal; "City Boy" by Herman Wouk; "The Family Members" by Martin Yoseloff; "Shannon's Way" by A. J. Cronin; "Eskimo Doctor" by Aage Gilberg; "Pilgrim's Inn" by Elizabeth Gouge; "Red Push" by Guy McCrone; "New Song in a Strange Land" by Esther Warner; "David Lilienthal" by Wilson Whitman; "Within the Harbor" by Sara Ware Bassett; "Jibby the Cat" by Felix Salten; "Woman With a Sword" by Hollister Noble.

"The Running of the Tide" by Esther Forbes—Story of Ma'am Inman, a ship owner in the wealthy town of Salem, and her grandsons who are sea captains.

"The Birth of Israel: The Drama As I Saw It" by Jorge Garcia-Granados — Eye-witness account, exciting in its urgency, of what the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine found in the Holy Land and of how they decided in favor of partition and of how Israel was born.

"If I Forget Thee, A Picture Story of Modern Palestine" by Mayor Levin—How the boy David came to Palestine, thus keeping his promise to his father, and what he found among his own people in the Palestine of today.

"Highland Heart in Nova Scotia" by Neil MacNeil—Kindly, entertaining tales of the author's relatives and their friends on Nova Scotia's Cape Breton Island some forty years ago.

"Iceland, New World Outpost" by A. E. Rothery—Enthusiastic account of the world's oldest democracy as it is today with the customs and crafts of the ages combining with ways of the modern living.

"Another Year" by R. C. Sheriff—story of wholesomeness and humor about a clergyman in his London slum parish.

"Prophet in the Wilderness" by Hermann Hagedorn—Story of Dr. Albert Schweitzer who took up the study of medicine at thirty, after he was already established in the arts, and who went to Central Africa as a medical missionary.

"The Babe Ruth Story" by G. H. Ruth—Story of the man who rose from the Baltimore waterfront and a school for orphans and delinquents to become baseball's most famous and best-loved figure and the champion and friend of boys all over America.

"Fifty Great Americans" by H. T. Schmittkind and D. L. Thomas—Biographies of fifty great modern Americans, presented in readable style.

"Roses for Every Garden" by R. C. Allen—Easily understood, sensible advice on growing roses with information on rose culture in different climates.

"Jobs for Women Over Thirty-Five" by J. K. Arthur—"Recognizing the difficulties in starting to earn a living after thirty-five, the author suggests both jobs in which age is an advantage and those where it is a handicap. There is a chapter on taking stock of assets and liabilities."

"Science, Servant of Man" by J. B. Cohen—Inside story of the scientists work, with examples as shown in the development of synthetic rubber, nylon, plant stimulants, weed killers, hybrid corn, blood transfusion and others.

"Everyday Miracle" by Gustav Eckstein—Sketches of animal intelligence and habits as seen in the canaries, mice and other animals the author has cherished; Beautifully and humorously written.

"Early Tales of the Atomic Age" by Daniel Lang—Stories of what went on behind the thick curtain of secrecy till the first atom bombs were ready, of how the physicists who turned the bomb loose feel about what followed, and of what the future may hold as far as this fearsome force is concerned.

"An Inheritance of Poetry" compiled by Gladys L. Adshead and Annie Duff—An anthology for family reading with selections based on the deep and lasting enjoyment on the part of its compilers.

"Still Water" by Katherine Burt—In the foothills of the Smoky Mountains Thomas Baird, a young musician, and his wife Ruth return to an old family mansion and to an old mystery which takes on renewed life.

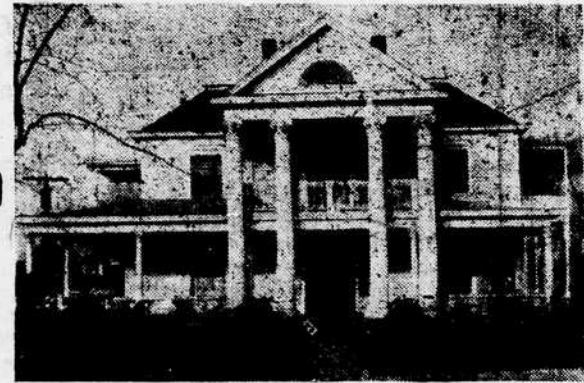

Nankeen cloth is said to derive its name from Nanking, China, where it is said to have been first manufactured.

Announcing

Another Public Service Added

We are happy to announce the addition of a new 1949 Miller Cadillac, Funeral Car, to our fleet. This gives us a complete motor service. We are in position to serve our patrons anywhere at any time, day or night, with our straight modern ambulance, and two Funeral Limousines. This new car is a Vista Grey in color and has the Beauty and Comfort that only the 1949 Cadillac can give.
