

TEN INNINGS GIVES VICTORY TO LINCOLNTON

In a game that you sometimes read about but seldom see, the Marion Marauders lost Friday 5-4 in a ten inning affair to the Lincoln-ton Cards at Lincolnton. A throw-away ball from shortstop to home in the tenth frame lost the locals the game.

It looked like a victory for Manager Lanning and his boys until the last of the ninth when the Cardinals came across with the tying run. Marion jumped into an early lead in the second when they scored to give the Marauders a substantial lead. The Lincolntonites were held scoreless until the seventh when they were successful in running two men across home plate. The next inning was scoreless but in the ninth they tied the score at four all.

In the tenth Fred Withers lead off with a double for Lincolnton. He advanced to third on a fiddlers choice. At this point he waited as the Marauder hurler, Nat Yablon, filled the bases with two walks. Then Catcher Duncan hit to short. The throw to St. George was wild and Lincolnton had another scalp under her belt.

The line score:
Marion -- 022 000 000 0-4 13 2
Lincolnton 000 000 203 1-5 8 5
Batteries: Yablon to St. George; Harmon, Riaker (10) to Duncan. Two base hits: Holt and Withers.

ROLLED BISCUITS

Attractive biscuit "whirls" are made with little effort. Spread regular baking powder dough with butter, then a coating of honey and grated orange rind. Roll the dough up like a jelly roll and cut it into 1 inch pieces. The dough bakes in a hot oven in about 15 minutes.

DRIPPINGS ADDED

Strained meat drippings not only enhance the flavor of cabbage, beans and other vegetables, but they can be used in quick bread batter, chocolate or spice cakes, or cookies— to mention only a few.

fer to let their children visit the library for their first visit. Other parents prefer to let their children visit the library a few times before they take books home with them.

How old should a child be before he uses the public library? A child should be brought to the library when he begins to be interested in books. He should have his own library registration card and borrow books to take home as soon as he shows an interest in turning the pages and looking at the pictures on each page.

Can small children be trusted with library books? Accidents to library books are no more common with the young library users than with the older children. Even adults sometimes bring back not only damaged books, but also books that have to be elected before they can be loaned to other readers! A small child will, upon occasion, especially when tired or angry, tear or throw down a library book, or even break his most cherished possession. Most children are easily trained to care for their own books and the books they borrow from the public library.
