A number of important inventions are coming out. One recently tested is an earth which preserves whatever it surrounds for an indefinite period. Embalming can be done, it is kaid, as it used to be done in Fgypt, and food can be kept for years. The clay comes cheap. The doctors are deeply interested in it.

It has been settled, announces the New York Telegram, that nobody is obliged to pay the value ($2500) of the cargo thrown overboard by the Missouri to save the Danmark's' passengers. Of course the insurance men are never responsible for any sentimental act of humanity. It's strictly business with them. A maritime authority says "A captain is justified in throwing part of his cargo overboard in ase of a severe gale, when he considers t necessary to save his ship and the rest. of the vessel's cargo. The insurance on the cargo holds and there is no question regarding the payment. But in the present case the circumstances were different. No such necessity existed and, while the general public may applaud him, the owners of the eargo object to losing their property. I agree with the Board of Underwriters that under these circumstances the firm cannot recover from them. Their only recourse will be to attach the Missouri for their claims." This, continues the Telegram, is a cheerful sequel to such a heroic performance. If it has taken the Christian world 1889 years to find out that no provision exists for indemnifying life-savers on the high seas, it is time for the world to cut its wisdom teeth.

Recently attention has been called to the elaborate system of drum signals used by the Cameroon negroes, by means of which long messages are sent from village to village. Explorations in the Congo use large wooden drums, on which different tones are produced by drumsticks. Sometimes the natives "converse" in this way for hours, and from the energy displayed by the drummers, and the rapidity Gen. Jubal A. Early paid his first visit of the successive blows, it seemed that the drums stationed at certain points of the roads leading to the neighboring States. On Monday last a coroner's inquest Special watchmen are appointed, who have to beat the drum on the approach of enemies. Ceochi, who observes this custom, designated it as a "system of telegraphs." The same use of drums is found Ida Bush, his widow, and Peachie At- in New Guinea. From the rhythm and rapidity of the blows the natives know at once whether an attack, a death, or a festival is announced. The same tribes use columns of smoke or (at night) fires to convey messages to distant friends. The latter are also used in Australia. Columns of smoke of different forms are used for signals by the inhabitants of Cape York and the neighboring island.

In Victoria hollow trees are filled with fresh leaves, which are lighted. The signals thus made are understood by friends. In eastern Australia the movements of a traveler are made known by columns of smoke, and so was the discovery of a whale in Portland hav.
