Selling Ice Water.

A St. Louis firm has started a new business-that of selling ice water to cabmen, coachmen and others. A can is supplied to each carriage, which is filled with ice before starting out on a journey, the contents of which are to be used both for the horses and occupants of the carriage. Sponges are used on the horses' heads during hot weather, and they are saturated with water from the can as often as necessary.—Boston Transcript.

ALLIANCE COLUMN. National President Loucks on the Labor Troubles.

The Texas State Alliance Meets at Austin and Elects Officers.

Bertie County Union, North Carolina, declares that as the rights and liberties of the people are being constantly abridged by the elections of presidential tickets and senators, by the money of plu-tocrats, that they demand of their rep-resentatives in Congress the repeal of present laws and direct election by the people. They also appeal to all good Americans for agitation and support of these demands.

During the discussion of the United States banking bill in Congress some time in 1835 or 1836 John Randolph, of Roanoke, who was opposed to the passage of the bill, which was intended to establish a United States bank, said that he had discovered perpetual motion, and it was very simple, being the fact that-

A Tickling Feast.

At a recent Neuilly Fair, Paris, which this year has been of a more attractive character than ever and visited by many American residents and tourists, a new fad was introduced which, like the confetti of Italian fame, gave rise to some serio-comic encounters. Peacock feathers were sold everywhere, and hundreds of people were seen carrying them in bundles through the thoroughfares and over the sidewalks every day for the purpose of tickling the necks and the faces of the visitors. When the sellers attempted to transfer the sale and use of the peacock feathers to the boulevards of the city they promptly fell under the ban of the police. The Parisian dudes tickling each other's noses on the streets or in the Bois would undoubtedly have been a very edifying spectacle.-New

Notes and Observations of His Travels

Through the State.

I left Fort Worth a few days ago for Brown wood, which is 150 miles southwest. The Fort Worth and Blo Grands southwest. The Fort Worth and Blo Grands railroad is a new one, and its recent completion has brought all that beautiful country within the limits of a new civilization. It is a splendid road, and its officers and its management are in general favor with the people. Gov. Hogg is said to be a prosecutor and a persecutor of railroads, and this has rendered him very unpopular with tail-road towns that are building up all along the road towns that are building up all along the lines of the new roads. I believe that it is within the power of any railload company to make friends of the people. This road is an example. It has no enomies, and there are no heavy damage suits and no cutrageous varieties. Everybody speaks well of Mr. Hornsby, the general manager. I went to Coleman, which is thirty-five miles west of Brownwood on the read to San Angelo. The names of towns and counties in this great country are peculiar and impressive. The saints, and the angels and the holy land (Palestine) are all represented. The herees of the Texas remulties are all before you heroes of the Texas republic are all before you on the map, Sam Houston, Crockett, Travis, Bowle, Fannin and Lamar and many others have counties named for them, and the are Tom Green and Deaf Smith counties. They were pioneers who is it a name and a record. Deaf Smith is the man who burnt the bridge behind them at San Jacinto. These Texans go the whole hear or names, for they have a Jeff Davis county, and it is pretty well settled that they will go the saving for the heroes of the next war. Coleman is a brand new town of 2,000 people—not an old house in it. They have one of these governy-five-thousand-dellar courthouses that are so common in Texas.

"What makes your people build such mag-nificent and costly courthouses?" said I to a "Anchors," said he; "they are anchors to hold down the county seat."
They are building so many new reflected across this country, and so many towns spring up along the line or at their intersection that sometimes they move the county sen by a ma-North Dakota on Tuesday nominated James F. O'Brien, straight out candida e fority vote and that leaves the old town out in the cold. But they can't afford to sacrifice a seventy-five-thousand-dollar courthouse. It is just an anchor—that's all. I saw that provin at Stephenville, which is the c. Erath. It has but one railrowl, Colonel Harris, the candidate of the the same county has two, and Dublin is progress sive and ambitious and has street cars and water works and wanted the courthouse. It was an old fashioned, common one, and they thought they could move it to Dublin. There was great excitement and money was spent on the election, but Dublin lost and now they have just purch-ased a seventy-five-thousand-del'ar courtlesses at Stephenville, which they say will anchor the around me there and I was told half of my andience was from the good old State. The truth is, I don't see how we have so many people left in Georgia, for they are all over this country. I found seven men on the train that I took for Brownwood—seven from Murray and Cobb and Whitfield counties-all going to Comanche to buy land. I am told that every train takes as many or more from Georgia. They all know me and I know men of their fathers. Georgians come to the train to meet me at every station. They want to say "howdy" and welcome me to Terms. I was so sorry for old Judge Mobley at Cateman. who had just heard of the death of his noble son who taught school in our town of Carters-ville. He was a good son and one of the most talented and exemplary young men that I over knew of. His untimely death was a great loss and it grieved me when I heard of it. I mak my venerable friend, Judge Yarborough, at Comanche. He was my father's friend and the friend of my young manhood. After the war he emigrated away out into this unsettled wilderness to get away from the free negroes and here he has lived until a railroad has come to his town and now, in his eighty-fourth year he bething after all, for almost every day it brings to him somebody that he used to know and he is comforted. How tenderly he inquires of every visitor, "Are you from Georgia?" When I left him in the evening be pressed my hand and said, "Can't you come back in the morning before you take the train? It will do me so much good." Of course I went back. His good wife is still well preserved, and we talked lovingly about Rome and her people, especially those who have crossed the river. Commuchs boasts that there is not a negro in the county, except one—just one who runs on the railroad and is one—just one who runs on the rathroad and is allowed to pass through. He is a democrat, they said, and behaves himself. I found an extucated negro over here by the name of Baller, who publishes a democratic newspaper. He is from Rome, Ga., he said, and he hade a special the other day at Granbury—a Cleveland special idid not hear it, but they say he speaks well and headles the people's varie without player.

and handles the people's party without gloves. He is, however, working for revenue only and he gets it from his white friends: Some of these immigrants get homesick very soon after they get here. They never took a journey before and it seems like they have come so far they can never get back again. It is like burning the bridge behind them. One of the seven that I found on the train was lo bing very solemn at the immense quaettled plains that were swiftly passing by and nudged his com-panion with his clbow and said: "Jim yon-der's a gully-don't you want to see it?" One thing that strikes all newcomers is the biguess of the country-the long distance to the herizon. A boy would hardly undertake to go to the end of the rainbow here to find the his eric bag of money. But the sky does not a em any higher nor the moon any smaller, and I see the big dipper every night just as I did at home, and I suppose that Texas is just as near to Heaven as it is in Georgia. Indeed, it may be nearer, for I have not seen but one intoxicated min in the State, and he was a Georgian. Politics is pretty hot, but nobody gets mad but the edi-

It is only around the towns that it is set led up. There are in I lions of acres here that can be had from $3 to $7 that will produce more grain and cotton to an the best valley lands in Georgia and such test labor of cultivation. I saw one farm of 2,000 acres near Brownwood that was all in cultiva-tion and had 11,000 pecun trees on it. They are three years old and are forty feet apart and will be in full bearing ten years from now. They showed their tops just above the cotton all over the vast area. Of course it was not an American who owned this form and planted these trees. It was an Englishman. An American won't wait ten years for snothing. But he Englishman plants for posterity. He figures now for his children that in ten years he will have 11,000 trees that will average at less five bushels to the tree, and as the pecanyage of the

is an income. Just think of it; $250,000 a year and no work to do. Oh, if I had enly occurs out here fifteen years ago and planted even 200 seres in pecane, do you think that I would now be traveling a thousand miles from losses to sell my talk for more than it is well in No. sir ; nary time -Bill Arp in Smart South.
