

IN MEMORIAM

MISS CARRIE PATTERSON

Friends of Miss Carrie Patterson were grieved to hear of her death at her home on route No. 4, Maxton, Sunday, March 19th. She had been in declining health for a year but was about her usual tasks until 10 days prior to her death when she contracted a severe case of measles. In a few days pneumonia developed, followed by other complications and all that skilled physicians, nurses, as well as loving sisterly care could do, did not stay the hand of death. She will be greatly missed in the home community and church and especially will the members of her auxiliary circle miss her for she was a loyal member.

Surviving are three sisters: Mrs. Maggie Morgan, Misses Mary Nancy and Beulah, one brother, Dave Patterson, several nieces and nephews and host of other relatives and friends.

The funeral was conducted at the home Monday morning at 10 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. G. W. Hanna. A choir sang, "Abide with Me," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Sometime We'll Understand." Interment was made in the family burying plot nearby. Pall bearers were: D. J. Campbell, D. E. Dunn, H. E. Taylor, A. H. White, R. L. Purcell and L. H. Currie.

"CONSERVATOR" IS GOOD WORD

A word long used in legal documents has been put into ordinary usage by President Roosevelt, who announced recently that in certain cases conservators would be appointed for banks. The functions of a conservator are implied in the origin of the word, which is derived from the Latin verb "conserve," meaning to conserve or preserve. In the case of a bank, he is a guardian or protector of the institution's assets.

In England during the Middle Ages conservators of the peace were appointed to guard the peace, and conservators of the truce and safe-conduct inquired into offenses against the King's trust and safe-conduct on the high seas. These conservators have been superseded by present justices of the peace in England.

"HOW IS YOUR CHIMNEY?"

"How's your chimney?" is a well-timed question to put to ourselves, following a report recently made public by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, which shows that one of the principal causes of fire in most localities is defective flues and chimneys.

Original poor construction of chimneys and hazardous conditions developing later, are the underlying causes. In connection with its report, the National Board recommends that chimneys be solidly built from the ground up. They should not rest upon a platform of any kind in the house or outside, as this will settle, possibly developing cracks in the chimney, permitting sparts to escape into the walls. Most urgent of all, floor beams should be carried around the chimney so that they can not touch it. If these timbers are supported by the chimney, the ends will exert tremendous leverage when the building settles. Cracks will become larger each year, until heat and sparks can pass into the concealed space between ceilings and floors. All chimneys should be equipped with an approved flue lining.

It is equally important that chimneys be kept in condition. They should be inspected and cleaned thoroughly each year. If soft coal or oil-burning equipment is used, a hazardous layer of soot usually forms on flue walls. Even when hard coal is used, soot should be cleaned from smokepipes and the bottom of the chimney at least once a year.

In the entire United States the total loss due to chimneys during 1931 amounted to $25,921,046. "Safer chimney!" should have a place among the national slogans.

MAGICIAN SUES REYNOLDS

New York, March 21.—Horace Goldin, professional magician, filed suit in supreme court here Friday against R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company to restrain it from disclosing the explanation of the illusion "sawing a woman in half" in cigarette advertisements.

Goldin asserted he conceived the illusion in 1911 and since had patented it and that the so-called explanation is a violation of his rights.

He asserts that the advertisements have affected his ability to get bookings and asks $50,000 damages.
